Cuba deadlock heating up

Times News Services

The Soviet Union Thursday night sharply attacked President Carter's pledge to take unspecified action to counter the presence of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba, charging his tone was "ultimatum-like" and "threatening."

Carter, who was holding a second urgent meeting with his national security advisers today, will go on television Sunday night to report on the U.S.-Soviet deadlock.

The attack by the Soviet news agency Tass came as Secretary of State Cyrus Vance was locked in protracted negotiations in New York with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in an effort to resolve the issue, which has strained U.S.-Soviet relations and endangered ratification of SALT II accords.

Carter, in a "town meeting" in New York Tuesday night, reiterated the American contention that a Soviet force in Cuba is a combat unit, despite Soviet denials. He said he did not know if the current Vance-Gromyko negotiations will be successful.

But, the president said, he will take action "to change the status quo" if the current talks fail.

Referring to the president's speech, Tass said he made demands "in an ultimatum-like tone that the status quo, which has existed for almost two decades now, be changed."

It said the entire problem surrounding the Soviet combat brigade in Cuba was a propaganda "hullabaloo" that was "deliberately whipped up by circles having a stake in kindling" anti-Soviet feelings in the United States.

"It is really absolutely obvious that the Soviet military personnel do not and cannot constitute any threat, either by their numbers or their functions, to the United States or any other state," it said, adding they have been in Cuba for "the last 17 years."

While the speech contains "absolutely unfounded and crude attacks on Cuba's policy," Tass said, Carter at the same time expressed intentions "to continue keeping U.S. troops and numerous military bases in close proximity to the Soviet Union's borders."

In the Senate, meanwhile, Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., introduced an amendment to the SALT II treaty under which the pact — even if ratified — would not take effect until Carter certifies the Soviets have no combat capability in Cuba.

Under the amendment, the president also would be required to tell the Soviets that any future combat capability in Cuba would jeopardize the continuance of SALT.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd termed the situation a "pseudo-crisis" and said there should be no connection between the presence of the troops and a decision on SALT II.

He told the Senate the troops have created a mood of "near hysteria" in some quarters.

Crown firms selling for $200M

OTTAWA (CP) — Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens said today the government may sell four Crown corporations and their subsidiaries for more than $200 million.

He made the statement in a news conference after releasing an announcement that said the declared assets of the corporations is more than $804 million and their total debts are $323 million.

Saying that it is possible the companies will not be sold, Stevens listed them as Canadair Ltd. of Montreal with assets of $246.5 million, de Havilland Aircraft Ltd. of Toronto, valued at $184.2 million, Eldorado Nuclear Ltd., which mines, markets and refines uranium, valued at $314.9 million and Northern Transportation Co. Ltd., which operates mostly in the North and has assets of $58.7 million.

The minister said the government would be content to recover its total investment in the corporations — about $188 million — but said it might be willing to take a loss on individual companies.

However, Stevens said it is possible that some of the companies — comprising the federal involvement in the uranium production, aircraft production and northern transportation — will not be sold.

He said cabinet had only made an "initial decision" that the four companies should "at least in a serious way be considered for return to the private sector."

A treasury board study group would be asked to determine not only whether sale was possible, but also to recommend the best way to do it.

Reacting to news of the intended sales, Opposition Leader Pierre Trudeau, whose Liberal government took over Canada's two major aircraft companies, said today he will be watching to make sure the new Conservative government leaves them under Canadian control.

Trudeau was interviewed at the airport here as he prepared to fly to the Maritimes to speak to Liberals.

In Toronto, union leaders were concerned while company executives expressed indifference to the federal

Seagram penalty a record

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Joseph E. Seagram & Sons Inc., a subsidiary of Seagram Corp. of Montreal, must pay $1.5 million in fines for its guilty plea to making political payoffs in cash and liquor, the largest penalties ever in a commerical bribery case, the government says.

The fines were levied Thursday by U.S. District Judge Edward R. Becker as part of a plea-bargaining agreement.

Under terms of the agreement, the government refused to discuss the exact nature of the payoffs and agreed to curtail its investigation of Seagram's.

Seagram's, the largest U.S. distiller, was charged in an 82-count criminal information filed by the U.S. Attorney's office in Philadelphia.

The bribery charges are based on payments of cash and cases of liquor to Edwin Winner, former member of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board.

Winner, 79, of Huntingdon Valley, Pa., has pleaded guilty to related extortion charges and is awaiting sentencing.

The currency charges stem from the transportation of $130,000 cash from Seagram's parent company in Canada to its New York headquarters.

The cash was used to make "illegal and questionable poltical contributions and other payments to facilitate the sale of Seagrams products".

No time to be scared

ALAMOSA, Colo. (AP) — When the first grizzly sighted in Colorado in 28 years attacked, there wasn't time to be scared. Ed Wiseman killed the 350-pound bear with an arrow and his bare hands.

The soft-spoken Colorado mountain man picked up a razor-tipped arrow that had fallen to the ground and stabbed the animal twice in the throat, severing its jugular vein with the second thrust.

"It was a strange sensation," he said. "I was thinking mainly of survival — what do I do now, what do I do next. I was oblivious to the pain, but I could actually hear the flesh tearing when he bit me."

Wiseman, bleeding from his wounds and his leg broken, spent the night in —9°C temperatures before he was taken by helicopter to Alamosa Community Hospital, where he recounted the ordeal Thursday.

Wiseman, a Crestone hunting-party outfitter and guide for 14 years, is 46, a six-foot, 185-pounder, and looks as rugged as his trade implies.

He had led a party of bow hunters from Great Bend, Kan., into the rugged back country of the San Juan Mountains west of Alamosa looking for elk. On Sunday, Wiseman and one of the hunters rode on horseback about 10 kilometres from their base camp before splitting up to hunt.

It was about 5 p.m., and Wiseman was alone. He had no gun, and his knife was in his backpack.

"I heard a bear growling and running at me through the pine trees," he recalled.

The bear, a mature female, rammed Wiseman, knocking him down and sending the bow flying, then bit into his right leg.

"The thought of dying passed through my head," he said. "The thought was: 'Could this be the end?' "

Wiseman said he did "what most experienced hunters would do." He rolled into a ball and lay still. But the grizzly kept biting.

"I let it go on for a while, but it was getting worse," said Wiseman. "I saw the arrow on the ground."

He reached out, picked up the broadhead aluminum hunting arrow and jammed it into the bear's throat. It broke in half. He grabbed the bear's head, pulled out the arrow and rammed it again into the animal's throat.

"Then shortly she quit growling and biting me," he said. "She went up on a little hill and she just sort of settled down and died."

Wiseman said he found his companion, Mike Niedree, and the two rode about 2½ kilometres, "but I couldn't go any farther. I was nauseated and dizzy from shock and loss of blood."

Niedree started a fire and went on to the camp for help. He returned about 3 a.m. By then, the temperature had dropped sharply.

Clean-shaven Pierre back

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Trudeau has shaved off his beard.

"I just got up and decided vacations were over," the opposition leader said today, as he headed off for two days of meetings with Liberals in New Brunswick at Chatham and Fredericton.

He shaved it Thursday night.

Trudeau grew the beard in August on a canoe trip in the Northwest Territories.

He once joked that he would leave it on until he won the next federal election.

Oklahoma beauty killed in hotel fire

VIENNA, (UPI) — Twenty-six people, including a former American beauty queen who leapt to her death, perished in a choking, pre-dawn blaze that swept an old Vienna hotel today.

Two other U.S. tourists and 23 Yugoslavian tourists also died in the fire. About 17 hotel guests were treated for smoke poisoning.

Clutching a pillow in desperate hope it would cushion her fall, Ellen Wight, 24, Miss Oklahoma 1977, jumped to her death to escape the flames and smoke that ravaged the Hotel Am Augarten near Vienna's Prater amusement park.

Despite emergency surgery, she died several hours later from a skull fracture.

Family friends said Wight was to have married William McCright, a Tulsa advertising executive, in Oklahoma City on Nov. 4.

Deepening recession ahead

TORONTO (UPC) — The North American economy is on the brink of "a sharp deepening" of its recession, a senior economist said Thursday, but eventual recovery is in sight.

John Grant, director and chief economist of Wood Gundy Ltd. of Toronto, told the Conference Board's business outlook meeting that the finance world's "sensation of crisis is quite intense."

Grant noted that both the U.S. and Canadian economies have been ravaged by oil-price hikes and stagnation in productivity, and that both countries are prepared to keep money-supply growth down "by pushing interest rates aggressively upward."

He predicted that the United States "has an extremely painful job ahead of it in attempting to reduce the rate of inflation even to the 6- or 7-per-cent level."

The indicators add up to the "serious probability to a sharp deepening of the current North American recession in the next few quarters," Grant said, predicting "a serious drop in commodity prices.

He thought the recession would last through the first half of 1980, with slow recovery in late 1980 and 1981.

"I think it likely that Canada will achieve little better than 1-per-cent real growth in 1980, accompanied by a decline in export volumes that could last through the first or second quarter of next year," Grant said.

He anticipated "further, probably modest tax cuts" in the November federal budget and a growing current accounts deficit. All Canadian governments will probably "keep backing out of the economy for at least the next two or three years."

In private industry, profits will drop "quite sharply" for at least a few quarters, but retained earnings will continue to be healthy and cash balances strong, Grant said.

The board's chief economist, Dr. Thomas Maxwell, said Canadians can look forward to at least one more year of high inflation and a sluggish economy as a result of accumulated inventories and the U.S. recession.

Chief's used car probed

DELTA (CP) — Mayor Ernie Burnett said today police Chief Mervyn Smith was suspended and the RCMP were called in to an investigation into the police force here because the inquiry board discovered that the chief had bought a used police car.

Burnett said he did not know the circumstances and could not comment on reports that it was common practice for members of the force to buy used police cars they knew were in good condition when traded in.

The mayor said it is quite possible that other members of the force in this municipality south of Vancouver will be under investigation, but that only the sale of a used police car to Smith was brought to the attention of the Delta police commission by the inquiry board.

"The only one brought to our attention was the chief," Burnett said. "He was suspended by us (the Delta board) and the RCMP called in at the request of the B.C. Police Commission, because there might be charges laid."

The inquiry was set up in July by the B.C. Police Commission after complaints by citizens about the municipal force.

Smith had gone fishing and was not available for comment.

However, his wife Kari Smith reacted angrily to the suspension.

"My husband is an honorable man," she said. "You can ask anyone in Delta. He wouldn't have stayed there all those years unless he was."

Smith, 60, had been scheduled to retire six monoths ago after 26 years in the service, but stayed on to help select a new chief.

Mrs. Smith said her husband bought the used police car from a dealer because her car had broken down and it would take four weeks to repair.

She said the car was bought last spring and was used to visit her sick father on Vancouver Island and to go shopping. Smith subseqently sold the car.

Board delays Prentice issue

By JANE COVERNTON

The Royal Jubilee Hospital Board Thursday night postponed dealing with a motion of non-confidence in board chairman Terry Prentice.

It will come up at a special meeting of the board Oct. 4 after Prentice returns from holidays.

The motion of non-confidence was brought to the board by chief of medical staff Dr. Elinor Powell on behalf of 120 doctors who voted unanimously Sept 18 to ask Prentice to resign.

She said that she would never have thought six months ago that she would present such a motion.

"We had the greatest belief in Mr. Prentice. He went to the government and fought for us. He tried to get better services for patients," Dr. Powell said.

But, she said, doctors now have lost confidence in Prentice.

Dr. Powell said Prentice's implementation of the Moreton Report calling for changes in the administrative structure has isolated the board from the staff, even though the doctors looked forward to being involved in the implementation of the report.

Barber denies fake letters

An NDP MLA denied Thursday allegations that his party uses fictitious names to sign letters to editors of newspapers.

Charles Barber, MLA for Victoria, said the practice is "cheap and stupid."

Jack Kelly, a Social Credit party researcher, has said the party has used this procedure many times and the tactic is also employed by the NDP, including Barber.

Meanwhile, Hugh Harris, Social Credit executive director, said Kelly has been asked not to address any more Social Credit constituency meetings.

"We'd prefer that Mr. Kelly doesn't go into our constituencies," Harris said.

Harris, who met with Premier Bill Bennett Thursday, said the party has no jurisdiction over caucus staff, of which Kelly is a member.

"In this case we are darned concerned over comments like that and I've registered my distaste for what has happened."

The issue arose Sept. 18 when Kelly was reported to have suggested the tactic to a meeting of the Esquimalt-Port Renfrew Social Credit Association, which was reviewing the party's performance during the provincial election campaign last May.

Jack Kempf, Social Credit caucus chairman and Omineca MLA, ordered Kelly to take a one-week vacation early because of the report in a local weekly newspaper and said he would investigate the incident.

Kelly was reported to have suggested that party members engage in letter-writing bees to local newspapers and use fictitious names tied to real addresses so that they will pass the scrutiny of newspaper editors.

Work hours main snag in B.C. Ferries dispute

By MIKE HUGHES

The chief barrier to resolving the B.C. Ferries dispute is the nagging hours-of-work problem, according to industrial inquiry commissioner Clive McKee.

In his report to Labor Minister Allan Williams on the current contract dispute, McKee says neither party is to blame for the problem but neither seems willing or able to resolve it.

Officials of the 2,600-member B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union are recommending rejection of McKee's non-binding recommendations for settlement. A ratification vote will be taken next Thursday.

Union leaders have not mentioned the hours-of-work issue, saying the main items in contention are wages and the term of the contract.

McKee recommends a 27-month contract expiring Oct. 31, with wage increases of eight per cent in each of the first two years and two per cent in the final three months.

The union wants a two-year agreement with the expiry date remaining at July 31. Negotiators also want more money.

The so-called "50-hour problem" mentioned by McKee centres on the fact that wages for 1,800 ferry workers are based on them working 1,875 hours a year. However, the maximum normal hours they can work under the present system is 1,827.

Therefore, they are paid for roughly 50 hours that they don't work, a cost to the B.C. Ferry Corp. of about $1 million a year.

The definition of the employees' work year in terms of hours, in this case 1,875, goes back to a time when there was a civil service requirement that employees work a certain number of hours a year.

Other government employees' wages are now based on the 35-hour work week but because of the unique problems of a ferry operation, working out an hourly schedule for the employees has proven to be a thorny task.

In 1976, another industrial inquiry commissioner, Hugh Ladner, studied the hours-of-work issue and was unable to settle it.

The issue led to a strike in October, 1977, and McKee was appointed as a special mediator by the labor ministry in an effort to find a solution.

He was unable to do so. A special factfinder was then appointed but this proved fruitless as well.

McKee says in his latest report that the problem must be dealt with and not put off any longer.

"Stability of labor relations in the ferry service is important to the province and the travelling public."

McKee recommends the elimination in the contract of any definition of the work year in hours.

He said this will enable the parties to bargain wage increases on an hourly basis.

McKee says this recommendation is made on the understanding that the employees suffer no loss in take-home pay and that the corporation will not incur any additional costs.

"I have been impressed by the calibre of the corporation and union representatives and I am convinced that if the 50-hour problem could be removed, labor relations in this service could quickly return to an even keel."

McKee says in his report that when he stepped into the dispute there were more than 60 items in contention.

He says he makes his recommendation that the contract expire Oct. 31 instead of July 31 to avoid any unnecessary disruption to the tourist industry.

Police facing space squeeze

Saanich police chief Bob Peterson has warned that space problems at the Vernon Avenue station are reaching the critical stage.

The police board decided to form a special committee to look into ways of solving the space problems after Peterson suggested a new building, possibly in the McKenzie-Quadra area, may be the answer.

The board conceded a solution will have to be found soon and agreed as a stop-gap measure to lease the bottom floor of the adjacent health and welfare building.

The force's community services division will use the 5,000 square feet of office space which will vacated by the provincial health ministry next month.

Peterson said the force is running out of space in the records-keeping unit, has a serious deficiency in the number of rooms available for interviews, and a general lack of working space for members.

In addition, there is a space problem for storage, equipment and quartermaster's stores.

When the building was built in 1960 the police department had a staff of 23 including three civilian members. In 1971 when an addition to the building was built, the force strength was 108.

Currently there are 115 officers and 23 support staff, a six-fold increase over the 19-year period.

Peterson said that if population forecasts are accurate, the force will have to have 177 officers and 35 support staff by the year 2,000 if the current police-to-population ratio is to be maintained.

Trustee warns of hospital takeover

A provincial government takeover of the board of the Vancouver General Hospital could be applied to other hospitals unless it is challenged, a retiring Victoria General Hospital trustee warned Thursday night.

Carol Pickup told the Vancouver Island Hospital Society, which runs Victoria General, that 1979 amendments to the Vancouver General Hospital Act change a clause on membership so that members of the hospital society are appointed or named and the board is made up of those members.

United Way hits target

A campaign spokesman said today $138,940 or 13.6 per cent of its $1,020,000 goal has been collected.

At this point in last year's campaign, which met its goal, 13.5 per cent had been collected.

The business branch, which includes employees of all businesses has reached 7.1 per cent of its $28,077 goal while the public service branch, which includes federal, provincial, municipal, hospital, and school employees, has collected four per cent of its $10,845 goal.

The individual gift branch, including professional people and special large donors, has collected 27.1 per cent of its $90,054 total.

The Sidney branch has already reached 19.7 per cent of its goal — $3,937.

Events such as Bingo and the Oktoberfest have brought in another $9,948.

Strike stress almost made controllers mental cases

VANCOUVER (CP) — Almost half of the air traffic controllers tested at the time of their strike three years ago would have been welcome in a hospital mental unit, says a Toronto psychiatrist.

Dr. S. J. J. Freeman, chief of the social and community psychiatry section at the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry in Toronto, said that 651 controllers were interviewed and tested during the strike.

Of that number, 47 per cent scored high enough on a questionnaire measuring psychological stress that they "would be welcome in a psychiatric unit," although they would not be classified as seriously ill.

In follow-up testing after the strike, stress levels dropped and the number of controllers qualifying as psychiatric cases dropped to 28 per cent.

Freeman told a Wednesday session of the Canadian Psychiatric Association's annual meeting that the figures tended to bear out the judgment of pilots who refused to fly during the labor dispute because they felt stress on the controllers might compromise public safety.

The doctor said the controllers ranked bilingualism in air control, a major issue in the walkout, at the top of a list of stress factors.

The federal government announced last month that it would proceed with implementing bilingual air traffic control at all Quebec airports after a commission of inquiry found it to be safe. Previously, only a selected number of small airports in that province were allowed to use French in control communications.

Research assistant Brian Lancee told the meeting that the 28 per cent of controllers with high stress levels in the post-strike testing was not a high figure compared with other occupations, but still merits attention.

"Indeed, because of the enormous safety responsibility controllers bear, many members of the flying public might argue that air traffic controllers might be entitled to an even healthier and stress-free work setting (than other groups)," Lancee said.

MB offers $8.4M in suit

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. has offered to pay $8.4 million as its share of a $298 million settlement proposal arising from the biggest price-fixing civil suit ever in the United States, a company spokesman confirmed Thursday.

Settlement proposals have come from 24 of the 39 companies named in the suit brought against manufacturers of corrugated containers and sheets by 55 U.S. purchasers of the material.

A U.S. federal court in Dallas, Tex. will decide Dec. 3 on the proposed settlement after hearing any objections from companies which initiated the action.

Court officials in Houston, Tex., say the settlements are not an admission of guilt or liability, but "a compromise of disputed claims."

Gary McGowan, a lawyer with Mandell and Wright, the firm representing the purchasers, said in an interview from Houston that MacMillan Bloedel made the settlement offer sometime in December or January.

Radium, Castlegar radiation levels high

VANCOUVER (CP) — Radium Hot Springs and Castlegar were identified Thursday as two other areas of British Columbia having possibly harmful radiation levels.

Evidence introduced earlier this week at the royal commission inquiry into uranium mining showed water supplies in Atlin and parts of the Okanagan contain higher-than-acceptable levels of uranium.

Dr. Wayne Greene, head of the provincial health ministry's radiation protection service, said basements in Castlegar houses contain approximately 3½ times as much gamma radiation as houses measured in Burnaby.

Greene said the radiation comes from uranium-bearing soil on which the houses are built and from radon — a gas which is given off when uranium decays.

Greene said persons living in houses which contain those levels of radiation are at a greater risk than most people but the risk is very small.

He said his department is monitoring radiation in the Castlegar area to see what effects this radiation has.

He said that because water from Radium Hot Springs contains high amounts of radon, a study should be conducted on people who work around the Rocky Mountains resort.

Greene said visitors to the hot springs shouldn't worry as radon is inert and readily passes through the body.

But he said its daughter elements, those formed when radon decays, are harmful and could cause health problems.

Dr. Lloyd Skarsgard, head of the biophysics unit of the B.C. Cancer Research Unit, told the commission that scientists now assume that there's no threshold level of radiation below which cell damage won't occur.

Meanwhile, the United Church of B.C. has expanded its campaign for a ban on uranium mining.

Alberni capt. back

Ferry captain Al Bahry, on vacation since his vessel grounded on Collinson Reef in Active Pass Aug. 9, will return to work without penalty.

The corporation agrees with and is following a Department of Transport report on the ferry accident blaming Bahry's human error for the grounding of the Queen of Alberni but recommended no disciplinary action be taken.

The report said Bahry's error was in avoiding a possible two-ferry collision at the risk of damage to his own ship.

GRASS IS GREENER on the other side of the fence after dogs have been ordered to use it. Municipal officials in West Vancouver have erected signs along the seawall to keep dogs on the grass and people on the sea wall.

McGeer 'just telling truth'

Education Minister Pat McGeer says he is only guilty of telling the truth after the B.C. Labor Relations Board found him guilty of violating the provincial labor code.

"Apparently the labor relations board considers that I'm guilty of telling the truth," McGeer said Thursday.

A three-man panel headed by Don Munroe said Wednesday that statements made by McGeer and two of his officials — for which the minister accepted responsibility — amounted to coercive conduct and could reasonably have the effect of compelling or inducing members to leave their union at Notre Dame University in Nelson.

The report said Walter Hardwick, deputy education minister, told the mayor of Nelson and others that the existence of the faculty union was preventing continuation of third- and fourth-year courses at the university.

McGeer, the panel said, told a meeting in Nelson that the militant professors at the West Kootenay region university were discouraging other universities from taking over third- and fourth-year courses.

Take note, Mr. Atkey

Employment and Immigration Minister Ron Atkey deserves the Quote of the Week Award for his recent statement: "It makes no sense whatsoever that Canada's industrial sector is afflicted with a shortage of skilled labor — a key factor in limited plant capacity — when we have thousands of young people available."

The minister made that understatement during a speech to the Ontario Young Progressive Conservative Association. He said that federal-provincial co-operation is essential to tackle the mismatch between between unemployed people and available jobs.

The British Columbia experience is likely representative of the highly industrialized provinces, be their industries primary or secondary. Electricans, millrights and other tradespeople are in constant demand in northern mines and mills. Raids by one company on the skilled workforce of another are not uncommon, and only highlight the desperate straits in which some companies find themselves.

Last year, with the co-operation of the federal and province governments, the Pacific Vocational Institute was created. In its first year, the school, with its two campuses at Burnaby and Maple Ridge, and three training centers, served approximately 17,500 students. It offers career, technical, vocational, trades and upgrading training programs.

In the institute's annual report, principal and chief executive officer H.E. Justensen recounts the successes and frustrations of the first year of operation. But he also offers some statistical information that Atkey should find useful in looking for new initiatives.

Justensen says that last year there were about 39,000 students enrolled in universities and college academic programs. They represent 1.5 per cent of B.C.'s population. In the same year there were 54,000 students enrolled in post secondary vocational training and career technical studies in institutes and regional colleges. They represent 2.2 per cent of the population.

Justensen says that university and college students will be heading for what is called 'professional' occupations which account for 19 per cent of jobs. Vocational students will be employed in the 81 per cent of the labor force designated as 'other occupations'.

Thus he concludes: "This gives some indication of the present priorities when education/training is provided in universities and colleges, at public expense for 1.5 per cent of the population to fill 19 per cent of the jobs and in vocational institutions, participation rates in training are held at 2.2 per cent of the population to fill 81 per cent of the jobs.

"This low priority that has been given to vocational training, if continued, will contribute to decling productivity — and other socio-economic problems that can be avoided."

It would appear the distribution of education dollars has a lot to do with Atkey's bewilderment.

Silly scheduling

Air Canada says that it has changed its evening flight schedule from Vancouver to Victoria for the convenience of passengers from eastern Canada. What the Crown-owned airline should realize, however, is that the increased convenience of those eastern passengers is dwarfed by the great inconvenience that will be experienced by thousands of Vancouver Island residents who have come to depend upon Air Canada's late-night flight from Vancouver to Victoria.

What Air Canada has done is change the departure time of its last Victoria-bound flight to 9:35 p.m. from 10:55 p.m. That means the last flight to Victoria each day will be that of Pacific Western Airlines, scheduled to depart at 10 p.m.

Since passengers need to check in about 45 minutes before departure time and since it's at least a half-hour trip from downtown Vancouver to the airport, the end result is that persons wishing to return to Victoria by air will have to leave downtown Vancouver by 8:30 or 8:45 p.m. No one with an evening meeting — or even a leisurely dinner engagement — will be able to return to Victoria before the next morning.

As well as commuters, some Victoria travellers will be affected. Many people coming in on flights from Hawaii, for instance, will have to stay an extra night in Vancouver because their planes will arrive after 10 p.m.

Passengers coming from the east will be helped by the schedule change. Their waiting time to make the Vancouver — Victoria connection will be shortened by an hour or 90 minutes.

Surely, however, a 90-minute wait in Vancouver airport is a lot cheaper and less inconvenient than a whole extra night in Vancouver for travellers and commuters.

Air Canada cannot argue that the late-night flight is underused. Indeed, it seems to be one of the most popular and well-filled flights coming to Victoria.

The airline should leave the schedule the way it is.

RICHARD GWYN

Flora: people matter most

NEW YORK — You had to feel sorry for Sunac Sonoda. About the only way the Japanese foreign minister could have got anyone to pay attention as he orated from the podium of the United Nations' General Assembly, would have been to commit hari-kiri. The wretched man had just drawn the international equivalent of a short straw — a slot on the speaking roster right after Flora MacDonald.

While Sonoda spoke — about energy conservation, actually — Flora held court.

Her first courtier was the delegate from Mauritius. Flora had just told the UN delegates that they were becoming "increasingly irrelevant," and had warned that unless Third World countries stopped bitching about failures in aid, Canadians "will demand that we spend our effort and money at home." For this, as she walked back to her seat, the Mauritian foreign minister wanted to shake her hand.

Then the delegate from Uganda. Then the delegate from Zaire. Then the flash of the silk sari of a woman delegate from Bangladesh. Then the delegate from Bahrein.

Queued up

Flora never made it to her seat. Beside it, about 40 delegates queued, two-deep. One by one they stepped forward, bobbed, and then, since diplomats do little without a purpose, associated themselves by their act of being there with her — a new international phenomenon. A phenomenon, that is, put together out of nerve, out of spirit, and, by no means least, out of public relations.

Begin with the PR, since to be a phenomenon you have to know how to steal the spotlight. That spotlight — the first live coverage by CBC-TV, of a UN speech by an external affairs minister; the receiving-line while Sonoda spoke — Flora quite deliberately stole. Her speech itself mattered, but she herself mattered incomparably more. A dress, a creation rather, of purple and magenta, picked out the week before at Holt-Renfrew in Montreal, so that no camera could help but follow her; her back as straight and her head as high as any queen, and, in case anyone missed the image, her hair tinted to gold.

Then the spirit. In a speech of nine pages, she used one word 23 times — "people". As in: "The patience of the people is running thin. And the people are right." Or, as in: "This is an organization of people, not of governments."

FLORA MACDONALD
. . . how high can she fly?

The spirit of a populist, that is, summoning up a public opinion, that in fact is at best inarticulate and at worst uninterested, in order to warn an institution that unless it becomes an institution of and for the people, "our credibility, our relevance, our usefulness, and our very existence, are in peril."

The nerve, lastly. In the face of "crimes against humans (that) are common knowledge," the international community had been "culpably slow" to protect and to preserve human rights. Canada had lobbied for a UN Commissioner for Human Rights, "but as yet not enough member states have found the courage to proceed." Wars continued unceasingly, even though the UN's sole reason for existing was, "to ensure the human right to live in peace."

The nervy part here is that human rights, however noble as a cause, can come, as a policy, at a high price in lost trade and in lost friendships. By embracing human rights as a cause and by making it the foundation of her foreign policy, Flora MacDonald could as easily unmake her own career as make it. She knows this.

Switch to the Jetstar flying her home. She's tired, and asks the steward for aspirin and a glass of water. As two reporters interview her, her aides fret.

Just how far is she prepared to push human rights, I ask? Will she try to, and will the cabinet actually allow her to, cut off aid to this country, and trade to that one?

"Human rights are the most basic element of our foreign policy. I really believe this." One aide scribbles down her words. "We have got to face up to moral questions that we've been inclined to duck before." Another aide hovers anxiously in the background. "I don't believe we should treat all countries as equals regardless of their behavior," she says, and cites Argentina, Pakistan, Viet Nam, as officials crane to hear what she is saying. To their relief, she adds, "This will be harder to do, I know, in trade than in aid."

Began with father

The interview slips away to the nuts and bolts of foreign policy. About the time we cross the border, I get it back to the only part of foreign policy that now really matters — to Flora MacDonald herself.

Where did her passion for human rights begin? "My father. He taught us tolerance, and he's the defining influence on my life." As well, a tribal source. "The clearances of the Highland Scots. It was deliberate genocide, and its a folk-memory that is terribly deep in me."

Where might it end? In, for instance, too many losing causes, followed by her resignation (as she already has had to threaten to do over sales of nuclear reactors to Argentina)? "Sure it's going to be difficult, but I've had difficulties all my life. And I don't give up easily. But I won't resign just because I lose an argument, so long as people know I'm still working toward my goal."

At the moment, as a phenomenon, Flora's flying toward her goal. Undecided — the cabinet already is worried by her — is whether "the people" are ready to fly that high with her. It's the single, most compelling human question to be answered about this government.

For him who has everything

WASHINGTON — So what do you get the prince, prime minister or corporate baron who has everything?

Pat Sullivan, a Washington salesman, has just the thing for the insecure '70s: a bullet-proof, explosion-proof, kidnap-proof Cadillac Brougham with tear-gas vents, machine gun slots, radar, inch-and-a-half thick windows and special tires.

It can emit an oil slick from the back to shake off pursuers, and the glove compartment holds infra-red goggles for night driving without lights.

The price: a modest $245,000. And just to impress your friends, who've been jaded by James Bond movies, you can tell them the Caddy was built for the Shah of Iran, who didn't need it by the time it was built. A tear-gas control box in the trunk has Farsi lettering on it. Farsi is the Iranian language.

Synthetic fibres

"Try and ram this," boasts Sullivan, a linebacker-sized salesman and security equipment expert who invited the press for a look yesterday, "and it's the last thing you'll ever ram."

The car was offered to Boston police for the visit of Pope John Paul II next week.

The Cadillac is padded with 800 pounds of a synthetic fibre called kevlar, which is lighter and tougher than iron. A mortar or a bazooka could wreck it, but nothing smaller.

It comes with a three-year warranty which will be honored unless you chance to drive through a minefield, or the kidnappers are carrying nuclear weapons.

You can't even slow the beast by pumping bullets into the tires. The steel-radial Michelins are designed to hold up for two miles after being riddled with lead.

There's more: "Say you've parked it overnight and you're worried that a bomb may have been rigged to the ignition system," Sullivan explains. "With this remote control starter, you can start the engine from a safe distance and if it blows, you're unhurt."

The tear-gas system can emit a 50-foot cloud of searing smoke around the car at the press of a button.

The company will turn your full-sized car into an assault vehicle (it prefers the adjective "defensive") for as little as $75,000.

Sullivan, whose company has offices throughout the U.S. as well as London and Paris, admits to one tiny flaw: the security car can easily be stopped by firepower directed at the engine. "But who shoots at engines, anyway?" he asks.

The company also boasts an impressive line of gadgets for paranoid executives in the electronic age:

☐ Ingenious little "bug" alerts which light up or vibrate when they sniff out a hidden transmitter in the boardroom or the executive washroom.

☐ A voice stress analyzer (price $2,700) which you can hook up to your telephone. By analyzing "microtremors" in the voice of the person at the other end of the line, it tells you if he's lying or telling the truth.

☐ A kevlar-padded "plain white shirt" that weighs about three pounds and can stop a .45 calibre bullet."

For women too

For the worried housewife, there is:

☐ The electronic "handkerchief." This is a unit that, attached to the phone, automatically lowers the speaker's voice so that the woman sounds like a man and discourages obscene callers.

☐ The security blanket, a flashlight with a beam 20,000 times more powerful than a common lightbulb. The beam will blind an assailant for three minutes.

Company executives assure reporters that all this equipment is sold only for defensive purposes. Customers who are suspected of nefarious motives are turned away.

In a way, the high-technology security business is a child of Watergate. A top executive of Sullivan's company, Carmine Pellosie, is a polygrapher (lie detector expert) who was hired by a New York newspaper to analyze recordings of Richard Nixon's voice.

No surprise

We realistic-thinking Canadians are not surprised at Sept. 14 "Operation Entertainment", CBC's nationally televised program being a flop. Our governments, federal and provincial do not want to listen to the populace at large. There are several concrete reasons why these peoples should not be allowed in Canada, USA, Britain, etc. — countries our fathers, uncles, cousins, brothers went to war to keep them a reasonably peaceful nation.

We are not bigots and other names the do-gooders label us, because we do not follow their views like sheep following lead sheep on the run. The time has come for Ottawa to come to its senses and take heed to the vast majority of its populace

Much trouble lies ahead with resentment high as we see our government lay the "red carpet" treatment to the Viets when we are being told of cut backs in all directions of what little livelihood some of us struggle to exist on. With all the hokey pokey going on in Ottawa, regardless of what party is in power, one wonders what deals are made that we the people are kept in the dark. Mr. Clark is not doing his party any good by allowing so many Viets in Canada. He does not have the gumption to stop something started by the Liberals, thus he will pay for it come next election. — L. M. James, 50 Menzies Street.

Nuclear defence

A report by the World Health Organization on peaceful uses of atomic energy stated: "As atomic energy is so gigantic a force emanating from exceedingly small quantities of matter, and cannot be seen, heard, smelt, tasted or felt, it easily provokes irrational fantasies."

Your correspondent, Craig Carmichael, reports in his letter of Sept. 17 how well he was taken in by a program by the National Film Board. His letter shows how good they are at making a film. The partial truths put forward do not show them to have much knowledge of the production of nuclear power.

To call the Three-Mile Island incident a disaster in human terms is hardly accurate in view of the statement by the California professor of physics and chairman of the NRC risk assessment review group, Harold Lewis, who says: "The normal incidence in the region's population of approximately 100,000 is some 15,000 naturally occurring cancers in the next 30 years. Perhaps (and I emphasize perhaps) one of those will be caused by this accident." — Walter White, 302-1440 Beach Drive.

Ruining charm

I hope Victorians will take their last look at Wharf Street with its delightful, picturesque setting before our city father plug it up with a convention centre plus all the added vices. It was requested, I believe, to have the centre moved back 10 feet for traffic purposes, but this was refused.

Then we have the Hartwick group who want to put up an office building along the way. Have you noticed that office space has been available for months all over the city?

Have you really looked at our city lately? It is becoming the same as any other. It is slowly but surely losing its special character and charm to the developers and the dollar. The one thing it had going for it was the Inner Harbor, and this is being depleted too.

The Crystal Pool is a good example of poor planning, and in my view so is the convention centre. — Daphne Temple, Victoria.

Drives and tours

The Victorian Celebrations Society has embarked on a new fund raising scheme and at the same time is entering the hospitality-tour business.

On Sept. 29, the society is hosting 77 delegates from Washington, Oregon and as far away as Alaska, on their first Royal Victorian Tour. The group will arrive on the Princess Marguerite and will spend the afternoon enjoying the beauty of Victoria before departing on the ship back to Seattle.

Plans call for visits to the Olde England Inn and the Provincial Museum. The society has plans for regular visits from various tour groups throughout the Pacific Northwest and the Pacific Rim countries during 1980.

Since the society is a non-profit organization, all funds received will pay off debts still outstanding from last year's festival and will help defray expenses of Victorian Days, 1980, as well as their activities as hospitality hosts. — Glenda Osborne, Co-Ordinator, Victorian Celebrations Society.

Save farm land

In the Times Aug. 24 the removal of 129 acres of agricultural land, near Chilliwack, from the Agricultural Land Reserve was reported. This was done against the recommendation of the Agricultural Land Commission. The situation regarding agricultural land was highlighted by the recent Saanich Fair, which many of us enjoyed over the Labor Day weekend — where exhibits of agricultural produce can now only be enjoyed, with housing developments encroaching right up to the fairground itself.

To allow agricultural land in B.C. to disappear is absurdly short-sighted — particularly as there is so little of it. Inevitably we will become more dependent on supplies from outside the province. What will those who are allowing commercial development of agricultural land have to say when trucks of food no longer roll north from the United States, either because their own needs take precedence or because of a fuel shortage?

There are large areas of unproductive land available for housing commercial development, and it is quite possible for the government to provide incentives for this land to be used and agricultural land preserved. — Dr. P. K. Buxton, 5705 Oldfield Road.

STRAY FEATHERS

Harold Hosford

Autumn 'strangers' keep birdwatchers busy

If you've noticed a slightly harassed look on the face of your favorite birdwatcher lately, there's been good reason for it; the combined cups of Victoria's birdwatching fraternity have, to coin a phrase, runneth over.

And they can thank autumn, and the peculiar effect that season has on birds, for what has been a "full" month.

I've said it before, but it bears repeating, that once the nesting season is over and the young of the year are on the wing, strange things begin to happen in the bird world. The most obvious manifestation of these "strange things" is that birds start showing up where they're not supposed to be. Scientists have a name for this. They call it post-breeding dispersal, which, they explain, is simply a means of breaking up families to protect against the kind of thing that can happen when animals that are near-relatives inter-breed.

Of course, the appearance of wanderers far from home can have another, simpler, explanation; they just took a wrong turn somewhere along the way.

Whatever the reason, Victoria has had more than its share of avian wanderers this year, among them birds that should be on their way to South America via the eastern United States, birds that should be on the east coast of Asia rather than the west coast of North America, and birds that are just so uncommon in these parts that their appearance is enough to get the local birdwatchers out of their armchairs.

The two Bobolinks seen at Quick's Bottom on September 22 are in the first category. Normally birds that nest no farther west than the Okanagan Valley, Bobolinks traditionally migrate east for a thousand miles before starting south to end up in Argentina and such places. The two at Quick's obviously got their directions crossed.

The same might be said, although not to the same degree, about the Black-headed Gull that turned up at Clover Point — also on September 22. Its usual ports of call in autumn lie along the coasts of Japan and China, with an address like Kamchatka more appropriate for this time of year than Clover Point.

When last seen, the Black-headed Gull — apparently undismayed by its wrong turn — was consorting with our Bonaparte's Gulls and a Franklin's Gull, which, come to think of it, was a little off course itself.

While on the subject of gulls, a word about another wanderer from the Old World — a Little Gull that turned up on MacNeil Bay recently. This, our smallest gull, has invaded North America from points east, from Iceland and Northern Europe. Twenty years ago it was a rarity on Canada's east coast. Then, in 1962, it was found nesting near Oshawa, Ont. It continues to turn up in the most unexpected places in North America — one of them here.

In the category of the uncommon, a Red Knot at Metchosin Lagoon on September 19 is a prime candidate. These medium-sized, rather dumpy looking shorebirds can be found around the Northern Hemisphere — in Canada they nest just about as far north as you can go — but unless you happen to run into one of their great migration concentrations, you have to be satisfied with the odd one here and there. Such was the bird in Metchosin; it stayed around long enough to make the list, then left.

About in the same category as the Knot were the four or five Golden Plovers that have turned up here in the past two weeks. These birds represent a slight trickle of the vast flights of Golden Plovers that jump off from the Aleutians for a 2,000-mile flight across the open Pacific to the Hawaiian Islands.

In their drab autumn plumage, Golden Plovers can easily be mistaken for their much more common local relative, the Black-bellied Plover. Fortunately, Victoria has enough of the sharp-eyed variety of birdwatcher who can detect the subtle differences between the two that we can now count Golden Plovers as fairly regular, though uncommon, autumn visitors.

And that's only part of what has been keeping Victoria's birdwatchers on the run in September.

'Indians want same as we do'

DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — Recently I wrote columns about the native peoples' juggernaut and why I thought "Indianism" should end. The new MP for Regina East, Simon de Jong, has many Indian constituents and disagrees with me. He writes:

First, I must say that I believe you suffer from a misunderstanding of the treaties. It was the white man who wanted the treaties and access to the land that the Indians had inhabited for over 20,000 years.

When the Indians signed the treaties they were not signing a document that would last only a few years — they were signing a document that would serve all the generations of Indians that would follow them.

It was the white man who said that the treaty would be binding forever. 'As long as the rivers flow and the sun shines.'

Just as many of us have some confusion understanding that Confederation was an economic proposal — some people do not recognize that the treaties were also an economic document.

In return for certain perpetual rights, the Indians surrendered to us their land. Economically the white men have done very well by the treaties. The Indians have not done as well as you suggest. The treaties stated that the Indians would receive 'an equitable share of all wealth gained from land surrendered.' In Saskatchewan (the jurisdiction best known to me) the Indians have not received an equitable share of the wealth.

No fair share

For example: the gross provincial product of Saskatchewan last year was $7.7 billion. Indians, who represent some 5 per cent of the population, should by right of treaty receive some $350 million. Instead, $70 million was earmarked for Saskatchewan Indians. Of this amount, 80 per cent was for administration. Indians and Indian organizations received only $14 million — hardly a fair share!

Again, in Saskatchewan, Indians have as yet only received one-third of the lands that they are entitled to by the treaties. I know that Saskatchewan has gone further than any other province in settling land claims, yet Indians have only one-third of their legal entitlement. And this is over 100 years after the signing!

You talk of the vast amounts of money that Indians receive every year. Indians never see most of it — it is usually spent for and by white bureaucrats.

Regina East . . . has a large number of people of native ancestry. Most of these people are living in an urban area. The problems that are created when a people who were historically nomadic, rural and self-sufficient are forced into the city are problems acutely felt in Regina.

Problems of unemployment, alcoholism, welfare dependency, crime and suicides are problems that affect our community as a whole. While there are no easy solutions, the reality is such that it is imperative that solutions are found.

Indian people don't want to live their lives dependent upon welfare handouts from some bureaucrat. They have been forced into this dependency role for too long. They now seek the means whereby they can as a people regain their pride.

Toward this end, the land claims must first be settled. The longer these settlements are delayed, the more difficult it will become. Secondly, Indian people must gain a greater measure of control over their lives. We must stop doing things for Indian people — they must have the resources to do things for themselves.

What Indian people are asking for is no different than what every other Canadian wants — a decent home, good health and education systems, a secure source of income with dignity. We shouldn't begrudge native people asking for this — rather we should be joining with them and insisting that this should be a right for all Canadians.

Indianism is not just some romantic notion. To most Indians it doesn't mean abandoning modern society and reverting to the old way of life. However, it does not mean abandoning their past and just becoming 'simply Canadians.' There is something well worth preserving — an outlook on life that is globally spiritual rather than competitively materialistic. I believe that the Indian tradition has a valuable contribution to make to all humanity.

Traditions

Indian people are going through a difficult process in trying to evolve a lifestyle that will be viable in our society while also in tune with their traditions. Their success could well become our hope as we struggle with pollution, the energy crisis, unemployment and many other social and psychological problems of our age.

The 'Indian problem' grew from our incursion into their lives. I would like to close by quoting from an early North American philosopher: '. . . The white man is smart, but not wise.'

A nod from mother

Russell Baker

As all humanity now knows, Senator Kennedy has received his mother's permission to run for president. He has been free with interviews ever since, and in that openhanded spirit he has kindly responded to a request that he write his own account of what may well turn out to be one of the great moments of American politics.

I had promised my mother that when I grew up I would never cuss, wear double-knits or run for president. Eventually, of course, I did run for the Senate and, naturally, got elected. Everybody in our family was in the habit of running for the Senate and getting elected, and it was always assumed that I would do the same.

I remember a grade-school teacher once asking everybody in class what we wanted to do when we grew up, and I said, "I want to run for the Senate and get elected."

"Why?" she asked. I couldn't answer. That night I asked my father why we were always running for the Senate and getting elected, and he said, "Because it's there."

Well, it was there, all right, and as soon as I was old enough I was there, too, and for 17 years I stayed there and did my homework. Everybody always said, "One thing about Teddy — he does his homework."

Meantime, everybody else was running for president. Evenings when I was heading home loaded down with my night's homework, I'd see them all rushing off to the airport with their suitcases and their custom-tailored Chief Executive smiles to run for president here and there. And they would ask me why I insisted on being such a drone.

"You ought to get out and have a good time like everybody else, Teddy," they would say. "Running for president is the only game in town."

"I can't," I'd say. "I've got too much homework to do."

It was hard sitting in my lonely room over the homework while, outside, you could hear everybody else having a good time. One night, when the racket was so loud I couldn't concentrate, I came downstairs to get a glass of milk and some graham crackers.

"Get back to your homework, Teddy," said my mother, "or you will never amount to anything."

"I am already a United States senator," I said.

"So are 99 other fellows," she pointed out, "and how many of them will ever amount to anything?"

"I have been a senator for 17 years," I said.

"I've known men who have been senators for 30 years and still never amounted to anything," she said.

"I am already chairman of the powerful Senate Judiciary Committee," I said.

"Then you must have a lot of homework," she said. "Get to it."

At that moment a cry of inexpressible frustration escaped my lips. "Why can't I run for president like everybody else?" I blurted.

My mother, who dislikes emotional outbursts, gave me a look of stern disapproval. She has never spanked me or made me sit on a bad-boy chair in the corner, and I realized that she would not do so now, and was grateful for her tolerant spirit, the more so since I knew what sport the press would have if the chairman of the powerful Senate Judiciary Committee were to be photographed sitting on a bad-boy chair in the corner.

Instead, she gave me a look suffused with kindness and understanding and posed a simple question: "Do you believe in your heart of hearts that you would be a good president?" she asked.

At this question, I became somewhat cagey. These days you never know who may leak to the press. And so I did not tell her that I was the only person who could unite the Democratic Party, give the country dynamic leadership, relieve the suffering of the poor, establish equality of opportunity for all, reduce the prohibitive cost of medical care, restore the dollar, establish respect for the flag throughout the earth, get the Republic's chin up off the floor and make the Congress's liver bile flow at a rate of four pints a day per capita.

Instead, I said, "If a determination were made by you that it would be all right for me to run, and if the people saw fit to nominate and elect me, I should do my best to make sure that I should not be found wanting."

"Are you going to run or not?" she asked. "Judging from that mushmouth talk, you're already a candidate."

"That, of course, is your statement," I pointed out. "I have not announced any decision as of yet."

Her curiosity was whetted. Would I run or wouldn't I? She could never know the answer unless she first granted me permission to run. "If I say it's all right," she asked, "will you tell me the answer?"

"I promise," I said.

"Then you have my permission," she said.

I told her what I had in mind. It wasn't homework.

Enjoy an A&W Whistle Dog

and get a Dog Whistle* to train him with

Two weeks only Monday, September 17 to Sunday, September 30.

But don't get them confused. The Whistle Dog is the great tasting one. It starts out like a hot dog and then we add some great little touches. Like Canadian bacon, processed cheese and relish. As for the dog whistle, it's pretty simple. We don't add any of those things. But you can use it to order your next Whistle Dog. At your participating A&W only.

New York

Stock prices slipped in moderate trading today as the prime interest rate and gold both pushed to record highs.

Citibank, the nation's second largest, announced it was increasing its prime rate — or basic corporate lending rate — by a quarter-point to a record 13½ per cent. The move quickly spread to other major banks.

London

The Financial Times index was down 1.7 to 471.3.

Canadian stocks also declined.

Shakeup coming in B.C. labor pool

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Employers' Council of British Columbia says a major restructuring of the makeup of the labor force in the future is inevitable and will jack up productions costs in certain industries.

A report by the council says employers could be forced to abandon mandatory retirement policies and hire older employees to fill vacancies because of a shift in the numbers of people of certain ages in the work force.

It says the province faces a shortage of semi-skilled and skilled workers as trends in education and training, apprenticeship, aging and retirement all affect the work force.

"The labor market faced by corporate planners and recruiters in the future will be very different from that of today," the report says.

The council says the number of men between 15 and 24 in the work force will decrease to 173,000 from 175,000 between 1981 and 1986. At the same time, the number of men between 25 and 65 in the work force will increase to 713,000 from 616,000.

While the male work force will grow by 22.2 per cent between 1978 and 1986, the council says, the female work force is expected to increase by 36.4 per cent.

"The concentration of individuals in the 24 to 44 age group, coupled with increased female participation, will likely result in decreased employee turnover in management and administrative positions," it says.

Employers will have to implement employee training and development programs that provide new career opportunities, the council says.

Rogers Tel closes $34M deal

TORONTO (CP) — Some of the assets of Rogers Telecommunications Ltd., including its Toronto cable television service, will be sold to Canadian Cablesystems Ltd. for $34.6 million.

A Cablesystems spokesman said the deal still must be approved by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission and the shareholders of Canadian Cablesystems.

If all necessary approvals are received, the deal could be closed by Sept. 2, 1980, the spokesman said.

Bonds

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were lower in moderate trading, as cautiousness prevailed in the Canadian and U.S. markets.

The short end of the market was unchanged. Mid- and long-term issues fell three-eighths of a point. Provincial and corporate issues were down one-eighth of a point.

The negative sentiment began late Wednesday afternoon when the U.S. budget deficit for August 1979 was reported to be $14 billion, compared to $7.21 billion for July, and $4.5 billion for August 1978, the Investment Dealers Association said. Bond participants were also discouraged by this week's increase of $1.73 billion in U.S. commercial and industrial loans. Dealers said the decline of 3.24 billion in adjusted demand deposits for the same week did little to abate the bearish overtones.

The Canadian dollar moved to 86.10 after closing 85.60 Wednesday night, with good buying interest from Europe andn from the Chicago International Money Market.

Day-to-day money was available at 12 per cent.

Silver

Thursday

Closing basic price of 1,000-ounce certificates in the Victoria area, according to the Scotiabank, $16.25 U.S. bid per troy ounce and $17.25 asked. Previous day $15.00 and $16.00.

Refugees checked: no active TB cases

VANCOUVER (CP) — No cases of active tuberculosis have been found among Vietnamese refugees who have settled in British Columbia, provincial epidemiologist Dr. A. A. Larsen said Thursday.

Dr. Doug Mackenzie, provincial director of TB control, agreed with Larsen but said there are three or four cases under investigation which might be active but not infectious.

"At the most, we have found a low-grade activity which doesn't present a hazard but we've been notified about it immediately from Southeast Asia and so we've been able to get the refugee on a treatment program as soon as he or she arrived," said Mackenzie.

An Ottawa newspaper said recently that some 40 cases of active tuberculosis have been found among boat people in Ontario but the B.C. doctors said they don't expect such a situation here.

"It would be ludicrous to say that no active cases of TB will come to Canada but if any do slip through it will be a total accident," said Larsen.

"We're due to get over 8,000 refugees in B.C. and I'm sure we'll get the odd slip-up but I don't expect any major problem."

Mackenzie said Canadians who are concerned about TB among the boat people should realize that active TB still exists in this country in considerable numbers.

"Last year we had more than 400 new active cases in B.C.," said Mackenzie.

Gulf denies scrubber need

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Gulf Canada says it is operating within provincial pollution control standards at its refinery here and should not be forced to install a $2 million sulphur recovery system.

But environment groups which are appealing a goverment decision allowing Gulf to bypass a previous ruling to install a recovery system said Thursday the company's alternate proposal is not sufficient.

At a Pollution Control Board hearing Wednesday, Gulf spokesmen said by maintaining an air monitoring system and by refining low-sulphur crude five months of the year the plant's sulphur dioxide emissions would remain within provincial standards.

If Gulf is allowed to use this system, rather than extracting sulphur from its emissions, a dangerous precedent would be set, said Kim Roberts, the environmentalists' lawyer, and result in a reduction of air pollution control standards.

"The Kamloops refinery is the only one we know of in Canada without a sulphur dioxide scrubber," he said.

Not installing a scrubber is a potential threat to the health of the community, and the cost of treating people with the health problems that result has not been considered by the board.

Endako pact near

FRASER LAKE (CP) — There's an air of optimism today surrounding the long labor dispute at the Endako molybdenum mine near this Central British Columbia community.

The Canadian Association of Industrial Mechanical and Allied Workers submitted an 11-point proposal to Placer Development Ltd., the mine operators, Thursday in an effort to resolve the tricky issue involving amnesty for strikers which the company claims were involved in incidents since the walkout Feb. 14.

The company has agreed with the intent of nine of the points and made counter proposals on the others.

Both sides said they were optimistic that talks will resume and observers said there is a positive attitude in the latest effort.

Vancouver PO crisis brewing

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers has warned that a major confrontation between workers and management is inevitable in the Vancouver post office unless postal officials act quickly to end a staffing crisis.

Acting president Evert Hoogers said in a news release that since June 1 121 persons have resigned or retired in the Vancouver post office and only six new workers have been hired.

Hoogers said management insists that only 30 of these vacancies will be filled, adding that the union has been told that the quota established by the post office for hiring has been exhausted.

He said that already intolerable conditions exist at the wicket outlets at the Vancouver post office and the chaos can be directly attributed to management policy.

'Escort' manager charged as pimp

VANCOUVER (CP) — The operator of an escort service, charged with 12 counts of procuring, living off the avails of prostitution and aiding and abetting 10 alleged prostitutes through the service, was committed for trial in provincial court Thursday.

William Arthur, 52, alias Slimey Parker, of the Exclusive Escort Service, was charged following a one-month investigation by vice squad detectives.

Laskin to miss session

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chief Justice Bora Laskin of the Supreme Court of Canada will not be released from hospital in time to resume his duties for the opening of the high court's fall session on Tuesday, his doctors said Thursday.

Laskin is in intensive care at St. Paul's Hospital. He was admitted to hospital Aug. 22 for a hernia operation while on holiday.

Heroin running charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three men and a woman have been charged with conspiracy to traffic in heroin following a two-month investigation by police of a Bangkok-Vancouver importing ring.

Charged are Keith Arnold Anderson, 56, and James Charles Mancor, 38, both of Vancouver, James Holtjer, 21, of Kelowna, and Maureen Dawn Hardy, also of Vancouver.

Talks break off

VANCOUVER (CP) — Joe Morris, special mediator for the Canadian Labor Congress in the jurisdictional dispute between the International Woodworkers of America and the British Columbia and Yukon Building Trades Council, said Thursday he has adjourned talks with the two union groups after three meetings.

Morris had no success in his effort to resolve the dispute that broke out over construction work on the Duke Point industrial project near Nanaimo.

Parliament blamed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the Public Service Alliance of Canada says Parliament, not the union, is to blame for pay disparities between immigration officers at Vancouver International Airport and their counterparts in Montreal and Toronto.

The lens of a new telescope on Hawaii's Mauna Kea was ground in Victoria.

Local lens reflects success

By AB KENT

Lens grinders at Little Saanich Mountain can puff out their chests today with the formal opening of the Canada-Hawaii-France telescope on snow-capped Mauna Kea in Hawaii.

The ceremony at the remote site concludes nearly five years of planning and construction, a major part of which was the grinding of a 3.66-metre primary reflector at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory here.

The DAO optical crew took a rough-cast ceramic lens blank and over a three-year period polished it into a 14-tonne mirror for one of the world's largest optical telescopes.

Master opticians who tested it last year judged it to be of superior quality when the intricate task was being completed.

Painstaking preparations were made to ship the disc in a bullet-proof container to its destination, the rim of an extinct volcano high above the clouds where nearly perfect viewing conditions prevail.

By comparison, the 72-inch telescope at Little Saanich Mountain observatory is about half the diameter of the new instrument, which gives astrophysicists power to probe much deeper into the galaxies.

So sensitive is the new telescope, it could pick out the glow of a flashlight on the darkened side of the moon.

Canada and France shared the $30 million construction cost and Hawaii provided the site and support facilities for the project.

Mauna Kea was chosen because its lofty 4,200-metre crest is the highest spot in the Pacific with an atmosphere affording ideal conditions for detecting infrared emissions and photographing unblurred star images.

Some of the electronic and spectrographic equipment for the telescope was also built here, and Canadian Marconi, in Montreal, put together the computerized control system to operate the mechanical mounting and drive structure which was built in France.

The moving parts and telescope together weigh 300 tonnes and can be turned and directed with clockwork accuracy.

Canada and France will each get 42.5 per cent of the viewing time. The University of Hawaii will get the rest.

Saanich co-op dispute moves into courtroom

A dispute within the Marigold Co-Operative Housing Association in Saanich has moved into county court.

Gail Davidson is suing the association and its manager, William McElroy, for damages and cancellation of her co-op membership and lease in the housing project off Burnside near Tillicum.

In material filed at the Law Courts, she charged she was offered a unit for lease and McElroy said the rental would be $178 a month subject to an expected across-the-board increase of $20 but because she had an income of less than $863.91 she was entitled to a "deep subsidy" and would pay the reduced rate of $178.

This claim, she said, was untrue because it was the policy of the co-op's board of directors not to make available "deep subsidy" benefits to welfare recipients.

She also said McElroy knew this and was aware she was or would be a welfare recipient and that he made the statements fraudulently or recklessly with the intention of inducing her to become a member of the co-op and lease the housing unit which she moved into April 30.

McElroy, in a statement of defence, specifically denied this allegation.

He and the co-op deny entering into negotiations with her and claimed it was she who applied for admission to the co-op.

The rental rate quoted was given after she made a representation that she was not on welfare and thus McElroy's representations were not deliberately untrue but rather were based upon a mistake as to her financial status which had been misrepresented to him.

They said she represented herself as a student working for the summer and at no time did she indicate she was receiving welfare.

As soon as it became apparent she was on welfare, they said, she was told she was not entitled to a "deep subsidy" of her rent but would be required to pay an "economic rent" of $248 a month.

A date has yet to be set to hear the matter in county court.

Before the judge

Three members of a local motorcycle club were charged in provincial court Thursday with two counts of assault causing bodily harm and one count each of unlawful confinement and possession of a shotgun dangerous to the public peace.

Jointly charged were 32-year-old Brock Douglas Flett, 840 Victoria, 22-year-old David Dean Krenbrink, 511 Macaulay, and 20-year-old Daniel David Purgaj, 765 Hillside.

They were charged with the unlawful confinement of 24-year-old Gregory Alan Howard, 839 Princess, assaulting Howard and 25-year-old Mark Haley, 3572 Quadra, and possession of the weapon following a Wednesday night incident in the 3500-block Quadra.

Judge Blake Allan remanded the trio, represented by lawyer Harold Turnham, in custody until today for bail hearing and possible election of trial method.

A 17-year-old was given jail terms totalling one year and was advised by Allan to give his future some thought.

Michael James Greene, no fixed address, was given nine-month, concurrent sentences on three counts of breaking and entering and a consecutive, three-month term for common assault.

Greene pleaded guilty Monday to break-ins at 1871 Feltham on Sept. 7, 2294 Greenlands on Sept. 8, and 4031 Hollydene Place on Sept. 20, cooking and eating food in each case before leaving with liquor taken from the residences.

Greene, who told Saanich police he lived under a tree on Tyndall, also pleaded guilty to the assault incident on Sept. 10.

Crown counsel Wayne Smith told the court Greene was a passenger in a vehicle on Shelbourne at about noon when he leaned out and threw a beer bottle at a 73-year-old pedestrian crosswalk guard, hitting him in the arm.

Smith said witnesses heard Greene yell, "Wow, I hit him!" as the car sped off.

He was arrested four days later by police and admitted throwing the bottle.

Before handing down the sentences, Allan noted that the pre-sentence report was a "long way from being a recommendation as to your character."

Allan handed a 31-year-old landed immigrant from Hong Kong a 30-day jail sentence for performing an indecent act July 24.

Court was told Tang Wai Kwong, now residing in Vancouver, stopped his car on Carey Road in Saanich shortly after 2 p.m. and asked a 10-year-old girl waiting at a bus stop for directions. Smith said Tang then removed a towel — the only thing he was wearing at the time — and exposed himself. The young girl ran away and reported the incident to Saanich police.

Four days later, police stopped a car matching the description given by the girl and found Tang completely naked again except for a towel. He was taken to the police station where he was positively identified in a line-up by the victim.

Defence lawyer Barry Mah Ming said his client had no explanation for the incident but was willing to seek medical help and counselling.

"In my view . . . you ought to be deported," Allan said.

The judge also directed Smith to make the circumstances known to immigration officials and placed Tang on 12 months probation as well as ordering him to report to the psychiatric unit at Riverdale on the Mainland for counselling.

A psychiatric examination was ordered for a 26-year-old man up for the second time this week for obtaining food by fraud.

Derek William Lundell, 841 Esquimalt, was charged Thursday with obtaining food from Mr. Mike's restaurant, 1740 Douglas, without paying for it. He was before the same judge Tuesday when he pleaded guilty to not paying for a $13.40 meal Monday night at the Sun Lock restaurant, 548 Fisgard.

Allan remanded the man until Oct. 26.

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: Ronald Archibald Stephenson, 46, of 3135 Glasgow, $450; Antonio Segui, 20, of 1323 Pandora, $400; and Erna Joseph, 23, of 7621 Central Saanich, $100.

Man guilty of stabbing in brawl outside disco

A drunken brawl on the sidewalk outside the Royal Olympic Hotel on Johnson June 14 led to the conviction in county court Thursday of 36-year-old Thomas Bernard Mathers.

He was convicted of wounding with intent by stabbing Ronald Kenneth Westman in the neck and chest.

Judge Peter Millward said because of the seriousness of the offence and Mathers' long criminal record he was remanding him in custody until 11 a.m. Wednesday for sentence.

The jury in the four-day case deliberated one hour and 20 minutes, returning to the courtroom once to hear a readback by the official reporter of the evidence of cab driver Douglas Gibson.

He testified to seeing three men around 2:15 a.m. and there seemed to be an argument which was quickly developing into a fight with one man waving his arms in a pushing motion and another man backing up.

Five minutes after hearing Gibson's evidence the second time, the jury sent out word it had reached a verdict.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told the jury in his summation that the first refuge of a guilty mind is saying "I don't remember" and he suggested Mathers took the knife out of his pocket before the fight and that indicated his intention.

Mathers had friends nearby whom he could call for help and there was no reason to pull out the knife in the circumstances, he said.

Defence counsel Scott Marshall reminded the jury that Mathers admitted in his evidence he stabbed Westman, but that wasn't the end of the matter because it was contended that it was self defence.

He said Mathers contended that what he did was justified according to law to protect himself from harm and he only used such force as was necessary.

After the verdict, Marshall said he had difficulty making a submission on sentence because there is a considerable difference between using excessive force and intentionally setting out to stab.

Millward noted there was not a specific finding on this aspect by the jury and he must take the most favorable view for Mathers, meaning he did not have a preconceived intention to injure Westman with a knife.

"I must take the view that the force used was excessive," he said.

Westman and Mathers and others were drinking during the evening and at one point, when they moved to a disco, Westman's jacket and cap went missing. The jacket was found under a woman's chair with her bag on it and an argument developed which spilled on to the sidewalk when the group was ejected. The cap wasn't found.

Westman, after he was stabbed, flagged cab driver Gibson who took him to Victoria General Hospital.

Mathers, who said he carried the knife he used in his wood-carving trade, has a criminal record going back to 1960 with convictions for break-ins, thefts, armed robbery, uttering and dealing in forged documents, possession of stolen property, possession of a spring knife, and possession of burglar tools.

C. Saanich club seeking old police headquarters

A request from the Central Saanich Boys and Girls Club to use the old police and fire building in Saanichton will be considered at next week's meeting of council's accommodation and maintenance committee.

The parks and recreation committee has already supported the club's application.

The building on East Saanich Road will become vacant next year. The new building is adjacent to the municipal hall and is still under construction.

McGeer's 'forgotten' poll grades schools better

Education Minister Pat McGeer Thursday released the findings of a year-old education survey in an apparent effort to show British Columbians are not totally displeased with the school system.

McGeer said the ministry-commissioned study done by Goldfarb Consultants, of Toronto, used more pertinent data than a survey by Gallup and produced a more positive response from the public than the more recent Gallup poll.

McGeer said he was set to release the findings of the Goldfarb report last year but never got around to it.

The negative findings of the Gallup poll prompted him to finally release the results.

The national Gallup poll done for the Canadian Education Association found 54 per cent of respondents in B.C. — 14 per cent above the national average — believe education standards in B.C. have declined.

McGeer said however, that conclusion was drawn in response to a question asking respondents to compare today's school system to the school system of their day.

The Goldfarb report, however, asked respondents to compare the school system of today to three years ago — before the Socreds were returned to power and introduced the core curriculum program.

That poll revealed that 30 per cent of those surveyed felt that the quality of education had improved while only 18 per cent felt it had deteriorated, McGeer said.

McGeer said the Goldfarb poll interviewed 800 people as opposed to 200 for the Gallup poll.

McGeer admitted that not enough people — especially those with no children in the system — feel the schools are doing a good job.

He said: "British Columbians are more aware of our system's weaknesses than are people in other provinces because we have done more work in the last three years to identify our shortcomings."

But he said according to his ministry's study, full time students, more than other groups of people, expressed the feeling that education has improved, relative to three years ago.

B.C. School Trustees president Rubymay Parrot this week criticized McGeer and blamed him for much of the poor public perception of the school system.

"British Columbians have turned around in their perceptions," he said.

The minister said since the introduction of the core curriculum and the learning assessment program three years ago, people are once more beginning to believe in the school system.

"We've turned the corner."

The least satisfied groups are the ones just out of the school system and those with no children in the schools, he said.

"If confidence is to be built into our system, then it must be perceived as having strong direction. We cannot have 75 captains for one ship charting a course," McGeer said.

If the programs are going to be successful, everyone must get behind them.

He said that comment should not be construed as a criticism of Parrot and others in the education system who have been attacking his leadership.

Tuna war's cause traced

Scientists working on the Pacific shelf have come up with an underlying cause of this summer's tuna war between Canada and the U.S.

Biologist Ken Denman of the Institute of Ocean Sciences said three cruises onto the shelf to gain information for fisheries, oceanographic and hydrographic purposes, indicate tuna migrated much farther north than usual this year because of a change in normal ocean circulation.

Tuna usually follow warm currents that are not normally found as close, as early, or as far north as Vancouver Island.

Denman said the water does not usually get as warm as the survey discovered — almost 18 C. or two degrees warmer than expected.

The warm flow in the last two weeks of July reached the latitude of Nootka Sound, at some places within 10 miles of land.

September is usually the month of warmest water in the circulation system.

"We think that's why the tuna came so close this year," Denman said.

The tuna war, which saw 19 U.S. boats arrested by Canadian authorities, started when some of the American tuna fleet followed the fish into Canada's 200-mile territorial limit and continued fishing.

Tuna migrate in warm water but curiously the warm water carries a lower level of microscopic plankton than colder water, leading scientists to think that the fish were feeding on the fringes of the warm flow, or eating other fish they found in the warmer water.

The research cruises between May and August covered the principal fishing banks off the Vancouver Island coast, from Swiftsure Bank to north of Barclay Sound.

Denman said he is trying to see if quantities of plankton are related to the angle of the sun. He said in the Gulf of Georgia with the return of stronger, more direct sunlight in spring and summer, plankton blooms.

He also said scientists sighted a type of porpoise not familiar to northern waters.

Denman said more than 100 of the summersaulting, fishtailing creatures sported around the research ship.

He said they proved to be a pod of Pacific striped dolphin.

He concluded they, too, had followed the warm stream from the south.

Systems Corp. back on job

The provincial government's computer operations are back to normal today after employees voted 95.1 per cent in favor of a contract settlement.

Pickets at five B.C. Systems Corp. operations in Victoria came down at 5 p.m. Thursday.

The 360 members of the B.C. Government Employees Union voted Thursday shortly after an all-night bargaining session produced a tentative agreement.

The three-year pact offers the same wage increases as were accepted earlier by 40,000 other BCGEU members — an eight-per-cent increase in each year.

Union general secretary John Fryer said there are also a number of benefits tailor-made for the computer operators, programmers and clerical staff.

The employees went on strike early Wednesday in Victoria and Vancouver even though mediator R.J. Phillips had not yet withdrawn from the dispute.

The B.C. Labor Code states that no strike is allowed while a mediator is still involved.

The main issues in dispute were the union's demand that the workers get a wage increase comparable to that of the 40,000 public sector employees and that management drop its proposal that job security clauses be removed from the contract.

Speed limit boost hint draws chilly reaction

By PAUL NICHOLSON

Highways Minister Alex Fraser's hint last week that it may be time to increase some highway speed limits has drawn a cool and puzzled reaction from safety and police spokesmen.

Fraser said B.C. motorists generally exceed the speed limits and the fault may not lie with the driver, but with the limit itself.

But Sgt. Mike Fjermestad, RCMP Victoria subdivision traffic supervisor, said Wednesday drivers who exceed the limit will do so regardless of the maximum.

In other words, if the highway limit is raised by 10 km/h as Fraser suggested, speeders will exceed the new limit by as much as they did the lower one, he said.

Sgt. Fjermestad's responsibilities include the Island Highway from Victoria to Nanaimo.

"In my opinion 80 km/h is a high enough limit for that piece of road," he said.

Even though there are stretches of four-lane on the Island Highway, the middle lanes are also used for left turns.

Fjermestad said with that added element, the speed limit should be no higher even on the four-lane stretches.

The B.C. Safety Council didn't take Fraser's comments seriously at first and a spokesman said the body even now wonders what prompted the minister to make his statement last week.

Council traffic safety co-ordinator Howard Hicken said he's not convinced the government would be prepared to accept the trade-off that would accompany higher speed limits — a rise in the number of serious injury accidents.

"We know that a reduction of speed limits along with a greater use of seat belts has led to a decline in the severity of injuries," said Hicken.

"I'm sure the minister is aware of that fact."

Hicken said the council doesn't expect anything else to happen about speed limits "until there is solid evidence that chances will be beneficial."

So far the evidence points the other way.

Like Sgt. Fjermestad, Hicken does not buy Fraser's argument that maybe the limits should be increased because so many drivers exceed them.

He said that analogy is similar to arguing that murder should be legalized because some murders are going to be committed anyway.

Hicken was cautious when asked if the safety council would oppose any move toward increased speed limits.

"Our business is traffic education," he said. "We would like to think we have our facts straight before making a statement."

Hicken said the council won't make a statement for or against higher speed limits until Fraser makes a more definitive statement with facts and figures to back up his reasoning.

Fraser said he tested the limits himself: "At 80 km/h you're the last one on the road because everyone is going by. They make me feel like I'm standing still."

Crew member missing

An extensive search was under way Thursday for a female crew member believed missing at sea 160 kilometres southwest of Vancouver Island.

The enlisted woman was identified by the U.S. navy as Fireman Muriel Macbride, 22, of Ames, Iowa. She is believed to be the first woman sailor lost at sea. Women were not allowed to serve at sea until last November.

MacBride was assigned to the guided missile test ship U.S.S. Norton Sound, which is based at Fort Heume, Calif. The ship was participating in Operation Potlatch, a combined U.S.-Canadian exercise off Vancouver Island.

Holms seeks seat in Oak Bay

Gordon Holms, a chartered accountant and director of the civic affairs committtee of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, will run for an aldermanic seat in the Nov. 17 Oak Bay municipal elections.

The major plank in his election platform is development of an official community plan.

A director and treasurer of Kiwanis Village, Holms is a past member of the Victoria Advisory Planning Commission and a former Victoria representative on the board of the old St. Joseph's Hospital.

He has also served as a director on the board of Queen Alexandra Hospital for Children.

$6.4M injected into Victoria housing

Victoria has benefited from two federal neighborhood and residential improvement programs to the tune of more than $6.4 million between 1974 and 1978, council was told Thursday.

Some $3.42 million flowed into the city in grants and loans for the rehabilitation of 1,140 dwellings in James Bay, Vic West and the Spring Ridge area of Fernwood under the Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program, the city's advisory planning commission said in a report.

James Bay got the lion's share, more than half the single family houses and multiple dwelling units repaired under RRAP are located there. Fernwood saw 316 units renovated while in Vic West 184 homes were fixed up.

In the Neighborhood Improvement Program, which provides money for big ticket items, Victoria got $2.25 million in federal and provincial money, 7.5 per cent of the total allocation for B.C. The APC noted Victoria has only 2.5 per cent of B.C.'s population.

Saanich got a federal NIP grant of $150,000 while Esquimalt received $400,000.

Council passed a resolution asking Victoria MP Allan McKinnon to investigate the possibility of extending RRAP to cover all Victoria neighborhoods.

$3M, land for research parks

By AB KENT

Three hundred acres of choice land and $3 million cash were turned over today by the provincial government to the Discovery Foundation, a new technological development agency.

The assets are to be used to develop research parks at five sites, including the three public university campuses, the B.C. Institute of Technology and land adjoining the federal Institute of Ocean Sciences at Patricia Bay.

Education Minister Pat McGeer, whose portfolio includes science and technology, said the funding will enable the foundation to start building facilities to entice industrial projects that will lead to new high-technology industries and the creation of employment opportunities lacking in B.C.'s largely resource-based economy.

Both University of B.C. and Simon Fraser University have large undeveloped parcels of land adjoining campus buildings.

McGeer said while the University of Victoria has no such areas, it is laid out with numerous spaces between structures which research facilities might fill in.

The concept has met with the approval of UVic administrators, he said.

But the UVic student organization is on record as opposing discovery parks, which it said supply free land to corporations, offer publicly supported research facilities and no visible benefits to students.

"The whole concept is being railroaded through without adequate discussion," said Alma Mater Society vice-president Terry Johnson.

"Basically, we've been kept in the dark the whole time," said publications director Gordon Anderson.

"What benefit to students or the academic community is there in a research park working to the benefit of corporations?" he asked.

But McGeer said industries with heavy technological stress have spawned jobs at a spectacular rate, ninefold compared with other industries.

He said a number of prospective tenants representing small companies and a few large ones are already lined up to start the program off.

It is anticipated that small firms may take advantage of rental space in research facilities, while larger ones may put up funds to build to their own requirements.

Locations near research stations, universities and technical institutes are designed to entice industrial research installations to take advantage of academic or government scientists, post-graduates and special resources.

McGeer said the universities have land surplus to their needs that will enable construction to take place.

"Proximity to that environment will fill the need for an intellectual hosepipe to nourish ideas," McGeer said.

Other incentives to locate near such institutions include the provincial industrial post-doctoral grant program that assists new PhD-holders in securing employment.

McGeer said it also provides some industrial return on the public investment in scientific educational facilities.

A third area is in affording university professors with an opportunity to participate in research projects.

McGeer said the $3 million funding is part of $5 million set aside for scientific development and the balance will probably be disbursed by the Science Council.

The B.C. Development Corp. has been assembling land for the undertaking, some of it worth up to $200,000 an acre, the minister said.

Discovery Parks Inc. is a subsidiary of the BCDC and it may receive federal and privately-endowed funding.

Farrah, Margaux in movies: Lambs to the slaughter

Scott's World

By Vernon Scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The perils of going too far too fast are apparent in the curious cases of Farrah Fawcett and Margaux Hemingway, a pair of stunning beauties tossed into movies before they were ready.

Farrah, the toast of the tube as one of Charlie's Angels, and Margaux, the breathtaking covergirl-model, were called upon to fill movie theaters with top billing in Somebody Killed Her Husband and Lipstick respectively.

The gorgeous young women proved once more the Hollywood cliche that beauty is not enough. It also takes a good script, talent and guidance.

In the old days of contract players Farrah and Margaux would have appeared in modest roles in scenes with major stars fashioned to display their beauty and providing them the opportunity to learn the acting craft.

Such glamor girls as Lana Turner, Elizabeth Taylor and Rita Hayworth were groomed and trained for stardom with immaculate care for the long run.

Today quick buck producers with a single picture contract and a saleable beauty are in the exploitation business. Their promises of big money and instant stardom are difficult to refuse.

For that reason, among others, plucking an actress from TV or a pretty girl from the cover of a magazine and heaping on her the responsibility of carrying a movie is like leading a lamb to slaughter.

No one is more aware of the perils involved in making the transition than Valerie Harper whose career is in the hands of personal manager Rudy Altobelli.

Since leaving Rhoda less than a year ago, Valerie — who cannot be compared in terms of glamor with Farrah or Margaux — has been featured in two major unreleased films — The Last Married Couple In America and Chapter Two.

Valerie was cast with George Segal and Natalie Wood in The Last Married Couple and, naturally, takes second billing to them. In Neil Simon's Chapter Two she backs up James Caan and Marsha Mason.

If the movies fail, the onus does not fall on Valerie. If they succeed, she will be part and parcel of their success.

Altobelli, a quiet, unpossessing man, has guided her with the same care Louis B. Mayer accorded his contract players. Valerie unfailingly takes his advice.

"I was prepared to lie low for a while because I'd played Rhoda for five years on The Mary Tyler Moore Show and four years on my own. Rhoda had become so much a part of the American scene I thought it would be good to take a breather in a play or something.

"But almost immediately I was offered the part in The Last Married Couple and Rudy advised me to take it. The role is so different from Rhoda that I don't think many people will be distracted by the fact I played her so long.

"Also, I had my hair bleached platinum. The woman I play, Barbara, has none of Rhoda's traits. Barbara hangs out in singles bars and asks guys to go to bed with her. Rhoda was a straight-laced, middle class New York Jewish girl.

She told the board that the doctors are upset with remarks Prentice made in the Times suggesting that doctors order too many operations and the solution to high health care costs is for fewer people to get sick.

Dr. Powell said Prentice had spent 2½ hours with the medical staff, during which he made similiar statements.

"What amazed me more than anything was that he was not an advocate of the hospital, but a go-between with the government." said Dr. Powell.

She then moved the non-confidence.

The motion was seconded by board member Peter Bunn.

After a short discussion, which did not deal with the substance of the doctors' complaints, Bunn moved to table the motion until Oct. 4 — the day after the annual general meeting of the hospital society.

Bunn later said that deferring the motion would give Prentice a chance to resign gracefully before the vote.

"You never jam people into a corner. You give them room to manoeuvre, to do the right thing," said Bunn.

While Dr. Powell supported the move to table the vote of non-confidence, former Conservative leader Dr. Scott Wallace criticized the board for not dealing with the motion.

"It shows a lack of leadership on the part of the board. By stalling, they leave the impression that Mr. Prentice didn't say what he did. The record is clear," Wallace said.

Thursday night's meeting was historic — the first to be held in public and the first where questions from the public were accepted.

But it was preceded by a secret dinner meeting convened by acting chairman Eric Simmons.

Three sources told the Times it was called to let the board decide how to deal with the controversial non-confidence motion.

Simmons denied the claim.

He said the only reason the board met before the public meeting was so he could receive guidance and advice on how to conduct the public session since one had never been held before.

He said suggestions to the contrary are completely incorrect.

Simmons told a questioner that the in-camera meeting following the open meeting would deal with a number of issues, including attendance of trustees at city councils.

Gold tops $400 mark in trading

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold edged toward $400 U.S. in Europe today and moved over the $400 level for the first time in history during morning trading in Hong Kong.

The United States dollar opened steady but later came under some selling pressure on foreign exchanges.

In Paris, where the bullion price is inflated by a government tax, gold topped $400 for the first time. The morning fixing was $401.28.

During trading in Hong Kong earlier in the day, gold touched a peak of $400.20 before settling back to close at $396.25.

By mid-day, gold was trading at $399 an ounce in London after the city's big five dealers agreed on a morning fixing price of $397. In Zurich, gold was selling for $398 at noon.

Stolen Island plane crashes in Wash.

Ladysmith RCMP are investigating the theft of a single-engine plane that crashed on a logging road on the Olympic Peninsula Thursday morning.

A police spokesman said today the plane, stolen from Cassidy airport just before daybreak Thursday, probably ran out of gas forcing the pilot to make an emergency landing.

He said the pilot apparently tried to land on a logging road about two miles from Elma, Wash., but the aircraft's wing struck an embankment, flipping the plane over.

Sheriff's officers at Aberdeen, Wash., said the plane was badly damaged but there was no indication anyone had been hurt.

The RCMP spokesman said the single engine Cessna 172 was owned by CAVU Flying School.

He said someone broke into the CAVU office at Cassidy airport and stole the keys for four of the company's planes.

He said the thief took the oldest of the four planes.

A brand new Cessna was parked beside it, and although the keys were found in the ignition, there was no sign any attempt had been made to start it up.

A nearby resident heard a plane take off from the airport at 6:30 a.m.

The theft wasn't reported to police until two hours later.

The police spokesman said the plane had only about half a tank of gas, enough to fly about 300 miles.

He said Elma residents saw the plane flying low over the area but no one heard or saw it crash.

The wreckage was discovered just before noon.

"It was more than just a joy-ride," the spokesman said adding that whoever took the plane must have been familiar with the CAVU operation.

It was the second plane theft in recent years.

HOMES BUILT PRIOR TO 1961

As of April 20, 1979, the federal government has increased the Canadian Home Insulation Program (CHIP) grant to $500 on all homes built prior to 1961. (100% of materials to a maximum of $350 and 33% of labor to a maximum of $150.) If you qualify, why wait! You now have up to $500 towards your bill. Our estimating staff will help you with your grant forms to assure that you receive the maximum grant available.

De Havilland President John Sanford said the company's only concern — which was transmitted to the government in discussions this summer — was that the firm be taken over by "an owner of quality."

However, John Bettes, president of ~~Local 112~~ of the United Auto Workers Union, said the union opposes selling the company to private interests and will present a brief to the federal government outlining workers' objections.

Bettes said the history of the industry in the private sector has been one of mismanagement.

Also being put on the auction block are their four subsidiaries, Canadair Inc., a United States-based sales and service company, Eldorado Aviation and Eldor Resources and Grimshaw Trucking and Distributing Ltd.

The companies have a total of 12,468 employees and all but Northern Transporation are money makers.

Canadair Ltd., limping along when purchased by the government from the U.S.-owned General Dynamics Corp. in 1976 for $46 million, has been a success story ever since.

It successfully designed and produced the new Challenger long-range business jet and now has orders for 122 of them at about $7 million apiece.

De Havilland was purchased in 1974 for $40.5 million from British-owned Hawker-Siddeley and since then it has pushed ahead with the Dash-7 short-take-off-and-landing passenger aircraft. It now has sales or options for more than 50 of them.

Eldorado was established at the end of the Second World War to control the distribution of radium and has earned money in all but seven years. It is the only Canadian company with the capacity to refine raw uranium ore, which it does for the two largest producers — Denison Mines Ltd., and Rio Algom Ltd.

Stevens said control of all of the companies being sold will be retained in Canadian hands. But it appeared that actual sale would be some time away when the government receives report of a special study group being set up to recommend how to dispose of them.

Reports Thursday said the government also was considering selling Teleglobe, the trans-oceanic communications company. But the government evidently has reconsidered.

The total government investment in the eight companies last year and the total net earnings were $22 million.

He said selling corporations which no longer need to be owned by the taxpayer will help the Joe Clark administration achieve a "leaner and less expensive government."

TOWN TALK

"Aaah, intellectuals! Phooey!"

So thinks a driver taking Dr. Walter Langkowski of Simon Fraser University to a fateful meeting with The Incredible Hulk.

And that's probably the intellectual highpoint of the whole story contained in a comic book (Vol. 1, No. 8, 1979, Marvel Comics, New York, N.Y.) now making the rounds.

Before Langkowski can meet The Hulk, of course, he will metamorphosize into — can you hear that suspenseful background music? — SASQUATCH!

POW! KA-BOOM! SOCKO! CRUNCH! ARRRGHH!

This exciting battle between Hulk and Sasquatch is preceded by aerial views of the peaceful SFU Burnaby campus.

Remember when a comic cost 10¢? Then you're older than you think. The issue chronicling the fate of the rock-jawed SFU professor and his hairy alter ego will set you back 75¢.

That's if you can find it. A check of Victoria news agencies didn't turn one up.

Professors at University of Victoria could be drinking plenty of free coffee this year if a plan by president Howard Petch works.

PETCH
. . . coffee binge

New students will be given one free ticket each to take the professors of their choice out to coffee once during the academic year.

Faculty members will get to know their students better this way, Petch believes.

The offer was made by Petch during his opening address to about 600 new students last week in University Centre auditorium.

The tab is being picked up by the president's office and ticket printing and distribution will be handled by the Alma Mater Society.

Negative side effects of the program include an increase in caffeine addiction among popular professors, Petch joked.

Billy Bennett really wants you people to get your free BCRIC shares.

Deadline for picking up shares at banks and other financial institutions was supposed to be today. Now it has been put forward another week, to Friday, Oct. 5.

After that date unclaimed shares will have to be taken up via a complicated dealing through Vancouver — unless the deadline is changed again.

And speaking of our premier, he says there is nothing wrong with one of his senior aides accepting a free trip to Europe from a major appliance manufacturer.

He said he will not take any action against Tony Tozer, his office manager, for accepting a free trip to Sicily that the Bennett hardware stores granted to top salesmen.

"There is nothing there in conflict with the government," said the premier.

"I have turned down in the past attempts to include members of my staff, or the government, on free trips with firms that would do business with the government. But the government isn't buying washing machines these days."

More than a century ago the pioneer Alexander family built the little Shady Creek Church off East Saanich Road in Central Saanich.

Throughout the years the Alexander clan has used the church's graveyard to bury their dead.

But for some reason no member of the family was ever married in the church.

Election jockeying on Victoria city council brought out the needle at Thursday night's meeting when aldermen were discussing procedures for upgrading buildings considered fire hazards.

Ald. Bob Wright, who is shepherding the Chinatown renewal project, urged "those of my colleagues who will be here next year" to remember some of the old buildings on Fisgard Street will need special considertion.

"Who are you looking at?" yelled Ald. Robin Blencoe.

"We'll call you at home and tell you," said Ald. Murray Glazier in the direction of Wright, who is no personal or political friend.

Retiring Mayor Mike Young had the last word: "Don't call me."

Log-rolling champ Fred Wickheim of Shawnigan Lake will display his talents in Stanley Park in Vancouver on Sunday for a segment in a hour-long live television show featuring Canadian sports and entertainment.

But Canadians will have to go to Japan to catch a glimpse of it.

The show is being produced by a Japanese television station and will be beamed via satallite to an audience of about 20 million.

Two other competitors, Pete Holmcliff and his son, Eric, will appear with Fred.

During the show Fred will have a cross-the-ocean interview with the Japanese log-rolling champ, Suzuki.

Staggering increases in gold and silver pushing dental work fees out of sight . . . even scraps of fillings are salvaged

By AB KENT

If you haven't seen your dentist lately, don't be too surprised if the bill's worse than the drill at your next appointment for fillings.

According to one Victoria dentist's estimate, the recent escalation in silver prices could add 40 per cent to the cost of ordinary silver alloy fillings.

As for gold teeth, the cost has about tripled over a few months, putting gold dental work beyond the means of most people.

At the beginning of last week an ounce of process silver — 74 per cent silver with the balance consisting of copper, tin and zinc — was listed at $27.

Before the end of the week new stock was being quoted to dentists at $45 an ounce.

And a gold crown which dentists not long ago could install for $100 has soared to $289, thanks to a doubling of gold on the international market.

The dentist said he has found it profitable to salvage scraps of fillings or scrapings that otherwise would be flushed down the drain during tooth-filling operations.

His last batch, collected over about a year, brought $90 and will be reprocessed by his supplier who doubtless will apply the going market price when he resells it.

Dental work is only one way — a dramatic way — in which ordinary folk are being affected by the bullion markets gone mad.

Anyone shopping for gold and silver jewelry knows something is happening in Beirut, Zurich and London, even if they don't read the daily accounts of new records in precious metal markets.

"When it's jumping $10-$25 a day, it's incredible," said Ray Rose of Rose's Ltd., jewellers.

Most manufacturers of gold and silver jewelry have shut down until the situation stabilizes, Rose said.

A buyer placing an order has no idea of what it is going to cost him.

"The problem is that prices are as of the date of shipping."

Some merchandise in stock is priced well below replacement cost because storekeepers have not had time to adjust the frequent increases.

Simple 10k gold wedding bands sold a year ago for as little as $42, said a Grassie's Jewellers Ltd. spokesman.

This week they were priced at $52.

A 14k gold ring — the most preferred quality — ranges from $67.50 to $250 at Rose's.

Rose said sterling silver flatware is almost a thing of the past and hasn't been stocked in the Victoria market for several years.

At $20 or more for a single spoon, he said it is out of the market.

But there is lots of gold being sold in the form of chain necklaces at $80 and $90 each.

Much of the relatively inexpensive gold chain was manufactured in Italy until the gold market took off. Now workers there have been laid off because of the higher cost of production.

At pharmacies, catalogue prices for silver nitrate are not being updated because rates are changing too fast.

Bedford Bates, of McGill and Orme Ltd., said silver nitrate is used frequently in the dispensary and in May 500g sold for $225, up considerably from the previous order. He expects the next order to jump again.

Camera and electronics manufacturers are also paying more for gold and silver used in miniature and micro-circuitry and long-wearing electrical contacts, which will affect the price of everything from telephones to tape recorders, computers to pocket calculators.

Bob Metcalf, of Bill's Photo Supply Ltd., said the rise of silver will affect film prices to some extent, but probably not for about a year because stocks are ordered far in advance.

He said the film industry had reduced its dependency on silver and as a result, the most popular color film today has low silver content.

Black and white film still requires a relatively high proportion of silver but the demand for it is slight compared with color film.

The trail was completed with $6,000 raised by Saanich Kiwanis Club and 4,000 hours of volunteer labor. Gordon Head, Lambrick Park, Mt. Douglas and Cedar Hill schools competed. (Ian McKain photo)

Forces' probers to make city stop

The federal government study group on armed forces unification will hold hearings in Victoria and six other cities.

Bill Ritchie, the group's executive-secretary, said the five-member study group intends to start hearings Nov. 26, probably in Halifax, and conclude them by late December.

The date for the Victoria hearings has not been set.

Other cities on the list are Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Calgary.

The group, recently appointed by Defence Minister Allan McKinnon, is already interviewing senior officers and officials at defence headquarters here, he said.

Some of the senior people who prepared a report earlier this year judging unification a success are also being interviewed.

The group plans to invite former defence ministers, deputy and assistant deputy ministers to discuss unification privately.

Military associations, such as the Conference of Defence Associations, will also be asked to make submissions. These groups can either talk privately with the study group or appear at the public meetings.

Ordinary citizens will be asked in newspaper advertisements to write the study group if they wish to speak at public hearings.

McKinnon has given the group a Jan. 31 deadline for submitting a final report.

Industrial park approved

A bylaw creating an industrial park zone at Royal Oak will be passed at a Saanich council meeting on Tuesday, Mayor Mel Couvelier said today.

Highways Minister Alex Fraser finally approved the controversial plan on Thursday.

Couvelier said at least two properties will change hands as soon as the light industrial zone is created and numerous other deals are pending between property owners and companies.

Municipal staff is ironing out technical details with the ministry.

A ministry spokesman said today the technical points have to do with access to the 59-acre industrial site from the Pat Bay Highway, but didn't know whether they will be resolved in time for Tuesday's council meeting.

"Presumably they (the ministry and Saanich engineers) will work it out by then," senior information officer Ray Baines said.

Couvelier said the minister's approval appeared to have been drawn up quickly Thursday afternoon. Some parts of the report are not clear and officials are going over them, he said.

He praised Fraser for giving the approval while under pressure from Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis to reject it.

Curtis is vacationing in France.

His absence has nothing to do with Fraser's quick decision to go through with the approval, Couvelier believes.

"Curtis pressured him (Fraser) before he left," Couvelier said.

But Saanich Ald. Irene Block, strongly opposed to the industrial park, said she is disappointed Fraser approved the project while Curtis is away.

She said the industrial zone is unnecessary and is being created out of political pressure.

About 32 acres outside the northwest end of the site will be zoned for mixed density residential purposes.

City orders 3-year ban on 2,4-D

City council Thursday night banned the use of 2,4-D in city parks for three years, going against findings by parks administrator Al Smith that the herbicide is safe.

A specific fall spraying program for soccer fields in six city programs was rejected unanimously by council in one vote, but Ald. John Hayes' subsidiary motion for a three-year moratorium barely squeaked through in a 5-4 decision.

Mayor Mike Young and aldermen Bob Wright, Bill Tindall and Ron McKenzie were in the minority.

Hayes, chairman of the city's parks committee, said despite Smith's review of a National Research Council report which generally gave 2,4-D a clean bill of health, that doubts about its safety remain.

"It has become associated with the environmental and human atrocities committed in Vietnam. There are enough doubts in my mind and the minds of a lot of other people that we should discontinue its use," said Hayes.

He said if the city parks department has clear indication of council's intentions on using chemical herbicides, then it will look for other weed control methods. Hayes mentioned specifically a machine used in the U.S. which delivers a deadly electric shock to weeds but has no other harmful environmental effects.

Young said the whole argument had become fuzzy with claims and counter-claims but he believes there are no substantive claims to prove 2,4-D is hazardous.

"I think people take stuff in prescriptions that is more harmful to them than what they put on their lawns," he joked.

"I share some considerable concern that we can over-react. I've seen this council over-react to so many things that are supposed to be harmful to the environment."

McKenzie said Smith "wants to use it and should be allowed to use it."

Glazier commented that what made up his mind weren't the conflicting technical reports on its possible hazards, but the pleas of two James Bay doctors earlier this year that 2,4-D not be used because it might affect Victorians' health.

Blencoe noted the B.C. Medical Association is also on record against 2,4-D.

"When considering health in an urban area, when in doubt you should step back and suspend the chemical."

In Ontario, controversy rages over a schoolyard spraying program that has seen some children go home sick and temporarily blinded, added Blencoe.

Bowlers start Saturday in annual competition

Competition starts Saturday in the 17th annual Victoria Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest.

Open to all pin-spillers participating in league play on lower Vancouver Island lanes, the event will again run for 26 weeks, interrupted by a two-week holiday recess from Dec.22 until Jan. 4. A new weekly contest starts every Saturday.

Bowlers who roll to highest weekly scratch scores in each of the contest's four divisions — men's and women's sections in both fivepins and tenpins — will receive awards and will qualify for the annual Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs, in which trophies will be awarded to winners in all divisions. Any rolloff champion who is a daily subscriber to the Victoria Times will collect a bonus prize of $150.

Pirate loss good news for Expos

By Associated Press

Two National League pennant contenders took beatings from the weather and one lost on the field Thursday.

Pittsburgh Pirates lost to St. Louis Cardinals 9-5, while Montreal Expos and the Braves were rained out of a doubleheader at Atlanta. The second-place Expos moved within a game of Pittsburgh in the NL East.

The teams are even in the loss column with 63 each. The Pirates, who could have won the division outright by sweeping their final four games, thus lost a chance to clinch the title without any other team's help.

George Hendrick had five hits, including his 16th home run, in the Cardinals' romp.

CBC television said today it will carry the Philadelphia-Montreal baseball games tonight and Saturday. Tonight's game will start at 4:30 (PST) while Saturday's will begin at 11 a.m.

The Expos and Braves had their doubleheader rescheduled for Monday afternoon — if it is necessary in determining the NL East winner. Montreal is at home for three games with Philadelphia Phillies this weekend while the Pirates play host to Chicago Cubs.

If the Pirates and Expos are tied after the prospective action Monday, they would play a one-game playoff Tuesday — forcing the NL playoffs to open Wednesday.

In the West, Cincinnati — which leads idle Houston by 2½ games — was rained out of a contest with San Diego. The Padres were leading 3-2 in the second inning.

The Reds open a three-game series at home with Atlanta on Friday while Houston finishes in Los Angeles.

Mike Ivie's three-run homer and three Dodger errors helped San Francisco Giants defeat Los Angeles 5-3 in the only other NL game.

In the American League, Jim Morrison's two-run homer in the 10th inning lifted Chicago White Sox past Minnesota Twins 4-2, Carlton Fisk homered to lead off the ninth and boost Boston past Toronto Blue Jays 6-5, Oscar Gamble pinch-hit a three-run homer in the ninth to give the Yankees a 5-2 decision over Cleveland Indians, Jim Sundberg's run-scoring single in the sixth provided the winning run as Texas Rangers beat Oakland 4-3 and Buck Martinez singled home Dick Davis in the bottom of the 11th inning to give Milwaukee Brewers a 7-6 victory over Seattle Mariners.

Nancy sets pace in Mt. Doug win

Mt. Douglas blanked Norfolk House to tighten a hold on third place during the lone "A" division match played Thursday in the Greater Victoria High School Field Hockey League.

Oak Bay had closed within one point of Spectrum by tripping St. Michael's University School 4-1 Wednesday.

Nancy Charlton set the pace for Mt. Douglas with three goals, Allison Snow added two and Laurie Gordon chipped in a single.

Standings and "B" division results:

B.C. player signed

TORONTO (CP) — Rick Patterson, a 17-year-old pitcher from Slocan, B.C., has been signed by Toronto Blue Jays. The club said the 6-foot-5, 200-pound pitcher would report to the Jays' rookie farm club at Medicine Hat next spring.

Bean burns Firestone without aid of driver

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Big Andy Bean has had his difficulties in finding a driver to replace the club he shattered a couple of months ago.

Right now, it bothers him not a bit.

"I can do without a driver if I can keep on shooting 64s," Bean grinned after Thursday's magnificent, six-under-par effort, one shot off the course record, staked him to a two-shot lead in the first round of the $400,000 World Series of Golf.

Almost incredibly on the vast, sprawling length of the famed Firestone Country Club course — at 7,180 yards and only a par 70, one of the longest courses the touring pros ever see — Bean did it with his driver in the bag.

He used a 3-wood — or less — off the tee on all but four holes. He used the driver only on two par-5 holes, the 469-yard sixth and the first.

"I put it in a fairway bunker on the first and that's when the driver went back in the bag," Bean said. He said he'd shattered the driver during a practice round at the PGA national championship and hasn't been able to find "a replacement that I'm really confident with."

He didn't make a bogey and birdied the last three holes to open up a lead over J. C. Snead and Australian Graham Marsh, tied for second at 66. Tom Kite, Lee Trevino and Lon Hinkle were another stroke behind at 67.

Nelford sharing top spot

NOMES, France (Reuter) — Jim Nelford of Burnaby, the defending champion, and South African Denis Watson shared the lead with two-under-par 70s after Thursday's first round of the world under-25 golf championship.

Skeeter Heath of the United States was one stroke behind.

The three were the only ones in an 18-man field to break par on the 6,700-yard Nomes course.

Oak Bay clips Gulls

Oak Bay Trios edged Juan de Fuca Gulls 7-5 Thursday night in the final pre-season exhibition game in the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League.

Andy Turner and Lane Crockett set the pace for Trios with two goals each and Guy Moran was the top gun for Gulls with three.

Horton top choice

SEATTLE (AP) — Veteran designated hitter Willie Horton, 35, who has 28 home runs and 103 runs batted in this season, has been selected as Seattle Mariners' most-valuable player by Seattle baseball writers.

Algeria was leading Yugoslavia 2-1 in a semi-final match when Miso Kristicevic tied the score in the 86th minute. Two minutes later, left winger Milos Sestic scored the decisive goal for Yugoslavia.

Galler gave Merzekane a yellow card for a warning, instead of the red card signifying an ejection, but that was enough to rile the Algerian team. Some players began chasing Galler. As they were about to catch him — some already throwing kicks and punches at him — police charged in and started hitting the Algerians.

Their batons cooled the players' tempers.

For 'Action,' stick to Rick

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Rick Acton has an identity problem, but it doesn't bother the 33-year-old golf professional from Kirkland, Wash.

When he finished second in the 1977 British Columbia Open championship at Vancouver, Acton remembers the final-round introduction at the first tee:

"The first in our threesome was a guy who was seventh in the Saskatchewan Open, 14th in Manitoba and so on; and the other player won the St. John's championship and was fourth in the Newfoundland Open. The announcer listed off long lists of accomplishments.

"Then came my turn:

"'And from Seattle, Rick Acton. Period.'"

There is no letup. Out at Glen Meadows, where the 1979 B.C. Open is being run off, the official program lists him as "R. Actom."

Some have identified him as Ron Acton.

"I don't know what it is about my name," said Acton, "because I have pretty good handwriting.

"I get it all the time. They call me 'Action' and 'Atkins' more than Acton.

"I don't mind. And up here (in Canada), I expect to be overlooked. You guys should pay attention to your golfers. I would be disappointed if you didn't."

It was hard to ignore the Canadian threats.

Cec Ferguson and Jimmy Rutledge, a pair of "hometown" threats, and Dave Barr, hardly a stranger to B.C. golf, were out in front of Acton.

Ferguson, a Victoria native who moved in as head pro at Regina Golf Club earlier this year, set the first-round pace with a five-under-par 67, missing a chance to tie the course record when he three-putted the final green for a bogey five. It was his only over-par hole of the day but the amiable 220-pounder brushed it off by saying: "I didn't want to touch it (the record) because I know the guy who owns it."

The record 66 was set, of course, by Ferguson, in 1967.

The youthful Rutledge and Barr, bidding for his third straight B.C. Open, followed Fergie in with 68s. Then came Acton and Dan Halldorson, who campaigns on the PGA tour from out of Shilo, Man.

But the feeling is that, if they don't know him now, the good folk watching may get to know Rick Acton.

He is not without credentials, or a PGA card. A tourist like Barr and Halldorson, Acton hasn't played on the main tour this year because he underwent a knee operation five months ago.

"I can't play four days in succession and do the same thing again the following week," said Acton. "A 54-hole tournament like this is just what I need to get into shape."

Acton, who didn't take up the game until 11 years ago, has won 10 events in the Northwest. He won both the Oregon Open and Pacific Northwest PGA titles three times; the Northwest Open and Washington PGA twice; the Payless Classic in Eugene, and this year added the Washinton Open to the list.

Acton likes his chances because "this is a good course.

"When it comes to Saturday, you'll see someone (winning) who has won before. There won't be any surprises. This course won't allow it."

Both Barr and Halldorson echoed his sentiments.

Still, 14 players matched or broke par in Thursday's opening round. A good figure, especially in view of Thursday's rainfall, but the scoring won't get easier because tournament officials have indicated they plan to stretch it out for the last two days.

That suits Ron Action . . . er, pardon me . . . Rick Acton.

Vikings count late to blank T-Birds

VANCOUVER — University of Victoria Vikings pumped in all their goals in the second half Thursday to blank University of British Columbia Thunderbirds 3-0 in a Canada West University Athletic Association soccer match played in a steady downpour.

Bob Dlamini opened scoring in the 51st minute and other markers came from Dave Secco at 65 minutes and John Dyson five minutes from full time.

Indoor soccer on the way

NEW YORK (AP) — The North American Soccer League will sanction a 10-team indoor soccer league this year, the league announced Thursday.

The regular season, which will open Nov. 23, will feature a two-division setup. The Eastern Conference will consist of Atlanta Chiefs, Detroit Express, Fort Lauderdale Strikers, New England Tea Men and Tampa Bay Rowdies. The Western Conference will have California Surf, Los Angeles Aztecs, Memphis Rogues, Minnesota Kicks, and Tulsa Roughnecks.

Marlene inspires Canadians

PERTH, Australia (Reuter) — Marlene Streit of Fonthill, Ont., captain of the Canadian team, played brilliant golf Thursday to lead Canada to a 4½-1½ win over Britain on the opening day of the women's Commonwealth team championship.

Streit, former U.S., British and Australian champion, beat British amateur champion Maureen Madill 7 and 6.

Marilyn Palmer O'Connor of Calgary and Michele Guilbault of Montreal were other Canadian winners, both defeating players from Britain. O'Connor won 3 and 2 over Gwen Perkins while Guilbault defeated Vicki Rawlings by the same score.

Gorge Invitational soccer tournament draws 28 teams

The eighth annual Gorge Invitational Youth Soccer Tournament has drawn 28 teams from Washington, the mainland and the Island this year and will take place Oct. 6 and 7.

The entry includes seven teams from the lower mainland area, two from Kelowna, one from Duncan, four from Seattle plus the seven Lower Island divisional champions and seven teams from the host Gorge organization.

Four teams will play in each of the seven divisions and ties will be decided on the shootout system in the North American Soccer League.

The tight schedule of games prohibits overtime play.

The Lower Island Youth Soccer Association schedule for that weekend has been cancelled in deference to the tournament.

Shavers has fierce front

LAS VEGAS (AP) — His bald pate glistens like an onyx door knob, and a Fu Manchu mustache gives him the sinister look of a villain in a horror movie.

"I shave my head every day," the veteran Earnie Shavers says, flashing two rows of teeth that look like twin piano keys. "I want to look like the Mongolian Warrior."

Across the ring sits reigning World Boxing Council heavyweight champion Larry Holmes, hair short-cropped, skin like burnished copper, a pleasant, round face that belies his profession of ring violence.

"Everything happens for a reason," he says softly, wandering unknowingly into the mysterious realm of predestination. "I figure I am chosen to be the champion."

Both were born in the Jim Crow south under oppressed economic conditions and were uprooted by their families and taken north at the age of five. Both struggled at menial jobs, gravitated to the ring — a natural haven for underprivileged black kids — and fought their way to mansions, sleek limousines and million-dollar bank accounts on the coattails of the Muhammad Ali boxing phenomena.

Holmes was one of 12 children born to poor parents in Cuthbert, Ga., near the Alabama border. A school dropout, Larry worked at odd jobs before becoming a sparring partner for such fighters as Muhammad Ali, Joe Frazier and even his foe tonight, Shavers.

Shavers was born in Garland, Ala., one of 11 children of an impoverished sharecropper. After the family moved to Warren, Ohio, Earnie spurned college and launched into a career of odd jobs to help support his big family. Now 35, he didn't throw a punch with boxing gloves until he was 23.

Television coverage of the title fight will start at 5 tonight on Channels 4 and 8.

Salmon fishing good in Becher-Pedder area

Salmon fishing success has tapered off in a number of spots around Vancouver Island but continues to be rated good between Becher Bay and Pedder Bay.

Returns have slowed down off Sooke for the number of boats on the water but Dan Kerr and P. McCarthy managed to beat the odds earlier this week.

The catch consists mainly of coho with a few winter and jack chinooks to 10 pounds thrown in for variety. Best success was noted by driftfishing the herring ball-ups between Secretary Island and Church Rock with Stingsildas and Buzz Bombs.

At Pedder Bay, Fred Cross of Lethbridge topped the return this week with a 32 pound chinook landed on strip Wednesday near Cudlip Point and Clay Gillis weighed in a 17:06 pound coho taken on a needlefish Monday off Church.

Two-thirds of the catch at Oak Bay is coming from the vicinity of Trial Island, where Don Lindgren managed to land a 12½ pound coho earlier this week.

Chinooks to seven pounds dominate the catch with strip, minnows and driftfishing lures supplying the best results.

A few coho to 12 pounds relieve an otherwise quiet picture off Deep Cove, with best catches noted bucktailing with Grey Ghost patterns off Coal Point and Wain Rock. Fishermen and boaters will be glad that Deep Cove Marina is back in the gasoline business.

The middle part of Saanich Inlet is yielding a few chinooks and coho to eight pounds.

Chinooks to 20 pounds, but averaging about six, supply the majority of the fair returns in Finlayson Arm with coho averaging eight pounds forming the balance. Just about any type of terminal gear is working when fished with about 200 feet of wire and a pound of weight in front of Goldstream Island.

Bucktailers are picking up coho to 10 pounds off Mill Bay and Cherry Point. Separation Point, Sansum Narrows and waters around Tent, Thetis and Kuper Islands are yielding small chinooks and a few coho.

Action has dropped off at Port Alberni but a few chinooks to 45 pounds have been boated right at the top end of Alberni Inlet and along the Franklin River wall. A few coho to 10 pounds are showing off Bamfield.

NIBBLES: Victoria's YM-YWCA still has room for people in their salmon fishing course conducted by Neil Rawlins. The course, which has seven sessions remaining, runs from 7 to 9 p.m. Mondays in Room F at the "Y". It costs $12 for members, $20 for nonmembers and $14 for senior citizens. Registrations should be made this Monday at the "Y" and further information may be obtained by telephoning 386-7511.

Cougars earn praise

Victoria Cougars may have come up short on the scoreboard but came up tall in the bouquet-throwing department Thursday.

The Western Hockey League team lost an 8-6 exhibition decision at Memorial Arena to Dallas Black Hawks, the Central (pro) League entry staffed by Vancouver Canuck-owned players, but a pair of coaches didn't think the Cougars suffered any embarassment.

"The Cougars are better skaters and more mobile than the (New Westminster) Bruins looked when they played us earlier this week," said Harry Neale, coach of the National League Canucks.

"I was very pleased with the team's skating," said Shupe. "There's good speed among the forwards as well as the defence."

Both Neale and Shupe, as might many in the crowd of 1,269 on hand, also agreed there is good size to the Victoria team that opens its regular campaign Saturday night against the Bruins.

There were some negative points, directed mainly at defensive failings, but the Cougars did earn the bouquets.

Trailing 7-3 at one stage, Victoria struck for three goals in a space of two minutes and 14 seconds to close to within one (7-6) before Rick Vaive wrapped up the scoring for Dallas.

Dave Ross and Rob Tudor each scored twice for Dallas while Jeff Bandura, Gerry Minor and Dirk Graham added the singles. With the exception of Vaive, all Hawk scorers are WHL graduates.

Dallas took 35 minutes in penalties while Victoria drew 27. The totals included a 10-minute misconduct and major to each team. Victoria rookie Bob McGill and Tudor drew the majors for a first-period fight.

Despite that flareup, and two other "roughing" incidents, it was a cleanly-played affair, a factor that pleased Neale.

"Exhibitions between pros and juniors are tough," Neale noted. "We have everthing to gain and nothing to lose. We don't want any of our guys hurt, and the juniors don't want any of their players injured.

"But this was a sensible game, unlike the two games in New Westminster."

Both defences had their good moments and some bad ones, as the 14-goal total might indicate.

The Victoria defence can expect some bolstering, however. Mark Robinson, drafted as an under-age by Buffalo Sabres, is scheduled to return from the NHL team's training camp next week.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

Glamour but also talent

DALLAS (AP) — Jan Stephenson held a two-shot lead as the second round began today in the $150,000 Dallas Open, but cooling her image as a sex symbol seems almost as important to her as golf these days.

"I hardly could be labelled the sex symbol type," the attractive Stephenson said after posting a six-under-par 66 in the first round of the Ladies' Professional Golf Association tournament. "I go to bed early, I eat most of my meals in my room and I'm probably the hardest worker on the tour."

The native of Australia joined the LPGA tour in 1973 and has solid credentials, winning almost $300,000 including $55,354 in 23 tournaments this year.

She fired 33s on both nines Thursday, posting seven birdies and a bogey.

Stephenson has yet to win a tournament this year.

Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., was five shots off the pace at 71, while tour rookie Cathy Sherk of Port Colborne, Ont., and Dale Shaw of Victoria both carded 75s.

AROUND OUR SHORES

Pat Dufour

Members of the Bluewater Cruising Association of British Columbia are growing in numbers every year as more and more boaters get the yen to travel in foreign parts.

The association will probably get more Vancouver Island members after a three-part series on well-known circumnavigators it is holding in the Provincial Museum's Newcombe auditorium.

The first of the series takes place at 8 p.m. on Oct. 28 and features Nancy Griffith, one of the world's most experienced sailors. She cruised some 300,000 miles and did three circumnavigations of the world with her late husband Dr. Bob Griffith in their 48-foot ketch Awahnee.

They were awarded the Cruising Class of America's coveted Blue Water Medal in 1973 in recognition of outstanding seamanship, including their 111-day circumnavigation by the way of Antarctica in the 1960s. Their 88 sailing days with 23 in port is an all-time record for sailing vessels.

Nancy will show the 16-metre film, In the Wake of Captain Cook, that they made on that journey. The Griffiths' book Blue Water is a selection of the Dolphin Book Club this fall. If you have a copy take it along and get Nancy to sign it.

The second speaker, Willi de Roos, on Nov. 19 will show films and slides taken on his history-making trip when he sailed his 42-foot ketch, the Williwaw, through the Northwest Passage then back to Belgium via Cape Horn. His book on the Northwest Passage has been published in French and an English version will be out shortly.

Robin Lee Graham will be the last speaker in the series. On Feb. 25, 1980, he will describe what it was like to leave home at 16 and spend the next five years sailing around the world in his 24-foot sloop Dove. Many of you will know Robin through his articles in the National Geographic and the film, Dove, based on his circumnavigation.

This is a series that should appeal to sailors and landlubbers alike. Tickets are being sold as a $15 series and are available at the Maritime Museum, Sailtrend on Newport Avenue and the Suntime Yacht Shop in Sidney.

Meanwhile the association will hold monthly meetings for its Vancouver Island members at 7:30 p.m. every first Wednesday of the month at the Sidney Hotel. Ian and Susan Grant will be at next week's meeting to show slides taken on their voyage here from Britain in Morar of Victoria.

The Turkey Head Sailing Association starts a new season of competition on Sunday with two around-the-buoy races in waters off Oak Bay Marina. Start times are 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Victoria's Cal 20 fleet will hold its Beaumont Ledge race, beginning at 11 a.m.

Forty-two boats turned out on Saturday for the Canoe Bay Sailing Club's first race of the season. The over-all winner of the six-miler was Jim Morris' Madeleine.

Another race is set for Sunday. The boats will get their start gun at 10 a.m.

Cruising class boats of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, competed in the annual Albatross Trophy race on Sunday with Olaf Thyvold's Gjoa ending in top spot. After her came Bill Sargent's Southern Comfort, Paul Jensen's Dania, Doug Russell's Ithaqua and Fred Douglas's Virtu. Not content with Gjoa's win, Olaf also cleaned up in Laser competition. Maurice Robinson was top Fireball sailor.

There will be another race for cruising class boats this Sunday, starting at 10 a.m. in Esquimalt Harbor. Dinghy sailors will have series racing, beginning at 1 p.m.

Members of the Victoria Canoe Club will have a paddle along the shoreline from Taylor Beach on Sunday, meeting on the highway parking lot on Helmcken Road at 10 a.m. Access to the beach is by Taylor Road which joins the Williams Head road beyond 'Bligh's' corner.

On Tuesday they will have a short business meeting, starting at 7:30 p.m., in the upper hall of St. Martin-in-the-Field Church, 550 Obed Street. Frank Johnson will then show slides taken on a recent trip around Murtle Lake in the wilderness area of Wells Gray Park.

Oldtimers here in rim tourney

Continuity breeds success, or should, and that's probably why Victoria has been awarded the new Pacific Cup Oldtimers' Hockey Tournament by the Canadian Oldtimers Hockey Association.

The city played host to both the second and third annual Western Canada Oldtimers' Tournaments the last two years. They were successful. So now the Pacific Cup, which will be an annual affair, comes to town Jan. 11-13 and will precede the various COHA major tournaments such as the Western Canada and National.

The South Vancouver Island Minor Hockey Association will once again sponsor the event and the continuity will be maintained as over 90 per cent of last year's host committee chairpersons have indicated they will return.

Frank Hegyi will again act as general chairman.

It is estimated that 60 teams will participate in the three-day tournament which will take place at six arenas — Juan de Fuca, Oak Bay, Memorial, Pearkes, Racquet Club and Esquimalt. All final games will be played at Memorial.

Registrations have been received from 18 teams with 13 other clubs signifying their intentions of taking part.

Persons interested in assisting with pre-tournament ticket sales under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club are asked to contact George Stewart at the Town and Country Texaco Service Station (383-8352), while local teams interested in entering should contact Joe Iannarelli at Esquimalt Sports Centre (386-3261).

Brown Bomber's making the long, hard fight back

By WILL GRIMSLEY

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — It's a long, hard fight back from open heart surgery and two mild strokes, but boxing's revered Brown Bomber, Joe Louis, is making it.

"Joe is coming along fine — he can now get out of his wheelchair and walk to the table for breakfast," says physical therapist Keith Kleven. "He is much more active and alert."

"He can feed himself, too," added nurse Jeanette Johnson, one of a team of five who watch over the former heavyweight titleholder day and night, "But he's spoiled rotten — he likes for us to feed him."

Louis, whose feebleness shocked admirers when he showed up for the Frank Sinatra tribute to him last November at Caesars Palace, is staging the battle of his life at his sprawling ranch house on Seminole Drive in suburban Las Vegas.

He is up at 6:30 a. m. daily. He spends 20 minutes in the whirlpool followed by an hour on the exercise table under the supervision of therapists Kleven and Noel Lattimer, then takes a short walk prior to breakfast.

"He is on a prescribed diet," said Kleven. "No fats, little starches or sweets, mostly cereal, grains and liquids."

Louis still has difficulty speaking but has no trouble communicating with his bustling family — wife Martha, four adopted children, ages three to 11 — and attendants and friends who are constantly dropping in.

An old friend, photographer Ike Sutton, is a house guest this week for the Larry Holmes-Earnie Shavers title bout at the Caesars Pavilion. Louis hopes to attend the fight in a wheelchair.

Louis wore a white T-shirt with the name Larry Holmes on it, but insisted he was making no prediction on Friday's fight. Holmes has been likened to the Bomber in ring and life style — low key. The hard-punching Shavers is compared with Jersey Joe Walcott, who almost too the title from Louis in the late 1940s.

During his period of recuperation, the old champ, now 65, sits in a thickly-carpeted den surrounded by gleaming trophies, watching TV.

"He likes anything sports," said his daughter, Joyce. "Baseball, basketball, boxing. He also watches Sesame Street with me."

Button victory

Uplands partners Eric Ware and George Ferguson regained possession of the Victoria District senior golf buttons this week by defeating the Victoria Golf Club pair of Jake Peters and George Bigelow on the 16th green in a match played at Gorge Vale.

Never with title-winner, Young keeps enthusiasm

By GRANT KERR

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jim Young will be given a special night in his honor Saturday by British Columbia Lions when the Lions tackle Winnipeg Blue Bombers, an occasion the Canadian Football League veteran surely would trade for the treasure he'd like the most.

The multi-purpose receiver, playing in his 15th professional season, has never played on a championship pro team.

Young, 36, has been with the Lions 13 seasons and before that was with the National League Minnesota Vikings for two years. He was too early for success in Minnesota and too late to enjoy the brief success of the Lions.

The Hamilton native has been one of the most controversial figures in the CFL since he joined the Lions in 1967. He has caught more than 500 passes and also authored a book called Dirty 30, a collection of on-and-off-the-field highlights and hi-jinks.

For the last two seasons, Young has been a spare part in the offensive arsenal of the Lions. Coach Vic Rapp has used Young at many positions as a backup, including defensive back. And through it all, Young has retained his enthusiasm for the game.

Last month, for example, Young caught his first pass of the season. His timing couldn't have been better.

The Lions trailed Calgary Stampeders by five points with less than a minute left. Inexperienced quarterback Joe Paopao suddenly found tight end Harry Holt for two long gainers and the Lions had the ball at the Calgary 12-yard line with time for one more play.

As Paopao frantically tried to get the Lions to line up on the ball, Young motioned for a huddle, telling his teammates to take their time and make sure of their assignments. In the huddle he told all the receivers to make sure they got across the goal line on their pass patterns.

Paopao dropped back to pass and, with everyone watching Holt, calmly rifled a pass to Young, who was a yard into the end zone, for the winning touchdown.

Young has been a clutch receiver for years and twice has won a Schenley Award as the outstanding Canadian player in the CFL. He's been an all-star and played in many all-star games. Only the storied Willie Fleming has scored more touchdowns than Young (86 compared with 64) in the 26-year history of the team.

Masters' basketball

Something new will be added when the 1980 edition of the British Columbia Winter Games is staged next March at Kimberley.

Included on the basketball schedule for the first time will be a masters' division, for men who have reached the age of 35 as of January 1, 1980, and who are not active in senior 'A' competition.

Veterans in the Victoria area intend to assemble a masters team and players interested in joining the club are asked to call Ken McCulloch at 656-5330.

'Only Jews can save Jews'

By WILLIAM CLAIBORNE
Washington Post

TEL AVIV — Jacobo Timerman, the Argentinian Jewish newspaper owner whose 29 months in prison and house confinement became a litmus test of the Argentine government's policy on human rights, arrived in Israel Thursday and said "only Jews can save Jews."

In an emotional news conference at Ben-Gurion airport, Timerman, who was released Tuesday following a relentless campaign on his behalf by American Jewish organizations and several U.S. congressmen, was handed Israeli citizenship papers and reunited with his wife, Rische, who sat tearfully at his side.

"Once, a member of the military junta said of me, 'he's in prison because he is an arrogant Jew,'" said Timerman, who spent a year in prisons and was tortured for an alleged association with a leftist guerrilla group. "Yes, I was born arrogant, because I am a proud Jew," Timerman added.

Timerman, smiling and apparently physically recovered from his ordeal, sidestepped questions about political repression in Argentina, where an estimated 15,000 to 20,000 persons have been jailed or have disappeared in the last three years.The junta recently passed a measure declaring all missing persons "legally dead."

Timerman said there "will be plenty of time for that later."

But the former publisher of the influential daily, La Opinion, said that during a stopover in Rome, he telephoned Israeli immigration authorities and told them since he had been stripped of his Argentinian citizenship upon being expelled, "I wanted to become an Israeli citizen the moment I landed in Israel. I didn't want to wait."

"It is really important to a Jew who is deprived of his citizenship and expelled from his country that he doesn't need to go around the world to find a country. I learned from the 2½ years in jail the meaning of Jewish life — the richness and solidarity of Jewish institutions in the United States. They fought from the beginning."

Timerman's imprisonment and torture began in the middle of the night in April 1977, when 12 heavily armed men in civilian clothing dragged him from his home and took him to prison.

Timerman, a talented publishing entrepreneur who in the 1960s brought the news magazine concept to Argentina by starting the journal, Prima Plana, was cleared by a military tribunal of charges that he received money from the Montoneros, a Peronist-Marxist guerrilla group.

But the military junta kept him under house arrest in his 15th-floor apartment because of his liberal and pro-American views and because of suspected "Zionist" plots.

"La Opinion," while tolerant of the hunger for revolutionary change in Argentina, was tame by comparison with some other publications and was quick to recover from a brief infatuation with Juan Peron. At its end three years ago, Timerman ironically advocated the coup d'etat that was his own undoing.

Three climbers swept away

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Two Americans and one Briton in an eight-member climbing team were killed by an avalanche on the world's 10th highest peak, Mount Annapurna-I, the Nepalese ministry of tourism announced today.

Maynard Eugene Cohick, 40, of Republic, Mo., Gilber Harder, 33, of Abilene, Texas, and the team's only British member, Eric Robers, 33, of Ruthin, Wales, were swept away by an avalanche and died Sept. 19, the ministry said.

The team, led by Robert Wilson, 38, of Gresham, Ore., was trying to scale the north face of the 8,090-metre peak, and had established a fourth high altitude camp on the mountain the day before the avalanche, the report said.

Beatles sue Beatlemania

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Lawyers for the Beatles are seeking $60 million in damages from the producers of Beatlemania, a hit show which re-enacts the songs of the British group.

A complaint filed in Superior Court by the Beatles' Apple Core Ltd. charges unfair competition and asks $30 million in actual damages and $30 million punitively.

"This is not just one guy going on stage and doing an impression of Groucho Marx and then doing an impression of Richard Nixon," said Bertram Fields, an Apple Core lawyer.

"This is a whole evening. They have imitated every aspect of the Beatles — their dress, their actions, their style — everything."

The suit also asks for an injunction to stop a planned film and televison series based on the Beatlemania show, which has enjoyed a long run on Broadway in New York.

Defendants named in the suit are Steven Leber and David Krebs, producers of Beatlemania; promoter William Sargeant; the NBC network, which Apple Core claims is producing the television program; Proctor and Gamble, named as sponsors of the proposed television series; Plitt Theatres, which the suit claims is giving financial backing to the film and Lexington Broadcast Services, producers of the television series.

To illusrate his claim, Fields said a record album of the stage show directly competes with numerous records by the Beatles.

Bio tests in U.K. admitted

LONDON (UPI) — An undisclosed quantity of "biological warfare stimulants" has been released over Britain to test the impact of poisonous chemicals, defence officials said.

The test was part of a joint program between the Microbiological Research Station and the United States, they said Thursday.

But the experiment, designed to gauge Britain's vulnerability to biological weapons, did not use the controversial bacteria serratia marcesens, already shown in the United States to cause a type of fatal pneumonia.

The officials stated that the "stimulants" were not released widely, but refused to disclose which stimulants were used.

Phone Mart's the talk of the town.

Open House:
107-1633 Hillside Avenue, Victoria.
Saturday, September 29th. 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

On September 29th, B.C.Tel is officially opening its 17th Phone Mart.

And just in case you haven't heard, Phone Mart is a telephone store where you can pick and choose from a terrific selection of telephone styles and colours.

What would you say to a candy apple red Styleline? Or a beige Touch Button wall phone?

Come to our Open House this Saturday. Maybe we can talk you into a cup of coffee. Then we'll tell you about our surprise prize.

We'll also tell you how Phone Mart works. (Once you're on the Phone Mart system, it's a snap.)

And we'll tell you how you can buy the outer housing of some of our beautiful decorator phones. Like the Mediterranean cradlephone pictured above.

CLUES ACROSS

4. CHIPS not ships. Strictly speaking they weren't little ships, but only toy ships. Wood CHIPS frequently acted as imaginary boats while playing in puddles.

9 LATEST not latent. One may doubt if latent ideas are sufficiently near the surface, or actively being worked on, to be the cause of frustrated feelings in the manner suggested.

10. RODEO not Romeo. A RODEO exploits "certain talents," of course, to play the role of Romeo well, simply calls for talent in the understood sense.

12. SEE not sew. SEE is the natural word to apply to the clue. Why should a man have such firm views about how he wants his wife to sew things?

18. REEF not beef. Since a beef, or complaint, may not have the backing of any particular threat of danger, REEF is the stronger answer.

19. ROOF not room. The clue's phrase "place of access provided" hardly has the air of simply meaning a door (as of a room), but rather suggests one or another means of getting on to a ROOF.

20. MIND not kind. There is agreement or harmony in people being of the same MIND, but not if they happen to be of the surly, argumentative kind!

23. YELL not bell. As the clue implies, a YELL would count at untypical of a peaceful location (though "even' there, one might hear it). A bell, e.g., of a village church, is quite in keeping with tranquillity.

24. CHARMS not charts. The clue suits things one may collect rapidly, simply as they come — as an "assortment." CHARMS, e.g., of the novelty trinket type, are more apt in this way than charts, which would be acquired more selectively.

CLUES DOWN

1. SCORE not scorn. As the clue hints, the stronger player's SCORE is open knowledge. On the other hand, the suggestion that a player is apt to play an opponent for whom he has great scorn and to whom he will make his scorn evident, is less convincing.

2. STEED not steer. A steer is simply driven in a required direction, rather than really controlled in the positive and direct way a STEED needs to be. Also it is rather in the case of STEED that there are considerable differences in tractability.

5. HEEL not heed. The clue isn't quite right for heed. It's a question of wanting the dog to heed the word of command, not to heed "on" the word of command (as one may wish him to HEEL when told to do so).

6. PUTTER not potter. The clue's inclusion of "really skillful" has more point for PUTTER. It takes time to become any sort of potter, much less a really skillful one.

11. ROME not dome or home. As the clue hints, if some sort of cataclysm were to destroy ROME, there would be some reasonable question of wanting it rebuilt. The loss of a home would be met by finding a new home rather than rebuilding. Why should just the dome of a building be reduced to rubble, other than by intentional demolition?

12. SOLDIERS not soldiery. The girls would be interested in the SOLDIERS as fellows, rather than in the "soldiery" in a collective sense, as the local military.

13. FLOORED not flooded. As the clue's reference to a "lesson" implies, the speaker doesn't want to be FLOORED. He may be quite happy to be flooded with eager questions.

21. PLY not fly. Merely to "fly" between certain places (perhaps only occasionally) is insufficient to justify the clue's phrase: "thus making the same crossing regularly." PLY is better in this respect.

Global plan for energy proposed

By JEREMIAH O'LEARY
Washington Star

UNITED NATIONS — Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo, in a United Nations speech devoted exclusively to the energy problem, Thursday proposed the adoption of a world energy plan.

The plan, he said, should "cover all nations, both haves and have-nots, binding on all and having as its fundamental objective the assurance of an orderly, progressive, integrated and just transition from one age of man's history to the next."

The president of the newest oil-rich developing country noted that the global "unifying element may well be the lack of energy sources," and added that "we have reached a watershed between two different eras in the life of mankind."

He urged that the United Nations set up a working group consisting of oil producers, consumers and developing countries in need of oil.

He also supported the establishment of an international energy institute that has been proposed by Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

The world energy plan, said Lopez Portillo, should not only provide financial and technical assistance to "rationalize the exploration, production. distribution, consumption and conservation of present-day sources of energy," but should also help in the "systematic exploitation of potential reserves of all types," including solar, water, geothermal, wind, sea and atomic resources.

Oil Slick Blues goes down well in resort area

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — First it was Tar Baby T-shirts. Now the world's largest oil spill has inspired a record.

Local singer and songwriter Amy Quates said she and three musician, billed as Slick Chic and the Tar Babies, recorded the Mexican Oil Slick Blues after the song enjoyed such a good reception at the hotel dining room where she performs.

Accompanied by marimbas and other south-of-the-border sounds, she sings:

"I've got the Mexican oil slick blues
This black crud all over my shoes
If only somebody wiser put that hole in the ground
We'd have more oil in the pumps and less crudė floating around."

Adverse weather has prevented capping the blown-out well in the Bay of Campeche about 800 kilometres south of here. Tarballs and patches of sticky oil from the spill washed up on Texas beaches last month.

$800M in pipe for OPEC fund

VIENNA (AP) — Finance ministers from the Organization of Oil Exporting Countries approved in principle Thursday an addition of $800 million to a special aid fund for developing countries, and "exchanged views regarding several issues of the international monetary system," said Secretary-General Rene Ortiz.

In a short briefing after the session, Ortiz denied that the weakness of the U.S. dollar or what OPEC countries have called imported inflation from industrialized countries were on the agenda.

The statement said the ministers agreed to support a recommendation of the oil ministers' conference earlier this year to commit $800 million to the OPEC special fund "in order to enable the fund to continue its activities to the benefit of other developing countries."

Commonwealth finance ministers gloomy

VALLETTA (Reuter) — Commonwealth finance ministers ended a two-day conference Thursday with a call for more aid for developing countries and a gloomy appraisal of world economy.

A statement called for a substantial increase in aid from developed countries and others able to give it.

But three developed Commonwealth countries, Canada (represented by Finance Minister John Crosbie), Britain and Australia, told the conference they could not increase their aid while their own economies were in trouble.

Delegates from some Third World countries said they were dissatisfied with this stand.

"It is unethical to link aid to the developing world with a need to cut spending at home," one delegate said.

HBMS increases price of cathodes

TORONTO (CP) — Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. has increased the Canadian price for full-plate electrolytic copper cathodes to $1.12 from $1.10 a pound, effective immediately. Its price in the U.S. is increased to 96 cents from 94 cents.

Forced labor greases Olympics

By ROBERT TOTH
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - A variety of medallions and souvenirs for the 1980 Moscow Olympics — including metal charms of the cute bear, Misha, the Olympics mascot — are being produced by forced labor in Soviet prison camps, a recently released prisoner said here Thursday.

Nikolai Scharegin, who spent 10 years in prison for alleged spying, told the International Sakharov Hearing that many other products are made in the network of camps for "slave wages," most of which are deducted to pay prison authorites for the prisoners' keep.

The prison-made products were usually destined for export markets, Scharegin said, including the Olympics souvenirs that will be sold in Moscow hard-currency ("dollar") shops.

Rep. John H. Buchanan Jr., R-Ala., one of several congressmen who took part in the hearing session devoted to Soviet "use of forced labor," said that next year he would "remember the way in which Olympic medals may be made in the Soviet Union."

Soviet prisoners before the Second World War were known to have worked at many jobs, from digging gold in the Arctic to designing military aircraft in special laboratories within prison camps. Some foreigners shunned buying wooden chess sets for years because the pieces that had to be hand-crafted, rather than turned out on a lathe, were grim reminders of the manual jobs given imprisoned intellectuals.

"This is a situation in the present day, not under Stalin," said Sister Ann Gillens of the National Interreligious Task Force for Soviet Jewry.

The hearing Thursday, the third to be held by the international human rights organization, is named for a leading Soviet dissident, Andrei Sakharov, a weapons physicist and winner of the Nobel Peace Prize.

Several other former prisoners, both political and non-political, Christian and Jewish, appeared before the hearing in a Senate office building.

One of them, Edward Kuznetsov, who spent more than 10 years in Soviet jails for plotting to hijack a plane to Israel, said that he also knew of prisoners making Olympic souvenirs, although he spent most of his years cutting crystal paperweights.

"There was no ventilation or showers in the work place," he said, "and an incredibly high level of air pollution" from the glass dust. Only in 1977 was the first face mask allowed, he said.

He estimated that 2 million to 2.5 million people are in Soviet jails and camps, another million in "exile" inside the country, all at work cheaply. Up to 10,000 were charged with offenses that Westerners consider "political."

Huey Newton free after 2 mistrials

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — After two mistrials and five years of facing the courts, murder charges against Black Panther leader Huey Newton were dropped today.

Judge Donald McCullum, on the recommendation of prosecutor Tom Orloff, dismissed charges against Newton of murdering prostitute Kathleen Smith in 1974.

McCullum declared a mistrial Tuesday when jurors said they were hopelessly deadlocked at 11-1 for acquittal.

Last March, another jury deadlocked at 10-2 for acquittal.

Newton is free on $130,000 bail, pending appeal of a conviction last year on an illegal weapons charge.

Danish vote on horizon after split

COPENHAGEN (Reuter) — Denmark's ruling coalition has broken up over an economic policy dispute and Prime Minister Anker Joergensen will tender his government's resignation to pave the way for general elections.

Political sources said the poll would probably take place on October 23 or 30.

Joergensen made the announcement after the failure of talks between his Social Democratic party and the Liberals, who have ruled in coalition for 13 months.

Elections would not normally have been due until 1981.

Bokassa 'cannibalism' probed

BANGUI (AP) — President David Dacko of the Central African Republic has ordered a judicial inquiry into cannibalism charges against deposed dictator Jean Bedel Bokassa following discovery of mutilated human bodies in the refrigerator of the self-proclaimed emperor's villa on the banks of the Oubangui River.

Bokassa also has been accused of ordering widespread executions during his 14-year reign, including the massacre of 100 schoolchildren in April, and these charges and allegations of other atrocities will also be covered by Dacko's investigation.

Dacko staged a bloodless coup earlier this month while Bokassa, 58, was in Libya seeking financial aid. Bokassa, a former officer in the French colonial army who holds dual French and Central African citizenship, was denied political asylum by France and given sanctuary Monday by the Ivory Coast.

In a radio broadcast Thursday, Dacko, said all those guilty of "crimes against the nation" — atrocities or abuses of power — would receive just punishment. However, Ivory Coast President Felix Houphouet-Boigny has denied Dacko's request to extradite Bokassa.

The 49-year-old Dacko, the Central African Republic's first elected president who was ousted and jailed by Bokassa in 1965, also announced a new cabinet retaining most of the former dictator's ministers.

Crowds of joyous Central Africans pulled down statues of Bokassa and hacked them to pieces soon after the coup, but triumphal arches erected by the former dictator are still standing.

Daily life is returning to normal in the sun-drenched city, although a curfew remains at night.

You are declarer with the West hand at Six Spades and North leads the jack of clubs, which you ruff. How would you play the hand?

East:
♠K53
♡642
♢K97
♣Q643

It is clear that the slam cannot be made if the trumps are divided 4-1. This is because, if either defender had four trumps and you drew them, you'd have no more trumps and would automatically go down two. You therefore start by assuming a 3-2 trump division.

You next consider how the missing five hearts may be divided. Again you make an assumption before proceeding with the play. Oddly enough, this time you assume that the hearts are not divided 3-2 because, if they are, the slam will come home with any reasonable line of play.

It is not that you don't want the hearts to be divided 3-2 — you surely do — but that you must arrange your play so as to protect against a 4-1 division. (You can't assume a 5-0 heart division because the slam is hopeless in that case.)

Once you assume the 4-1 heart division, you have to decide how to treat the case where North has the four hearts as well as the case where South has them. One method of dealing with the problem is to imagine that North has this type of hand:

At trick two you lead the ace of hearts, on which South plays the ten. Now you enter dummy and lead another heart. If South ruffs, you later draw two rounds of trumps, cash the king of hearts, ruff a heart in dummy and so make the slam. If South does not ruff, you win the heart with the king, concede a heart trick to North, and later ruff a heart high in dummy to produce twelve tricks.

If North has the singleton ten, jack or queen of hearts, the play is even simpler. After cashing the heart ace, you draw three rounds of trumps and lead a heart from dummy. If South follows low, finesse the eight; if South produces one of the two missing honors, win with the king and return the nine.

If both defenders follow low on the ace of hearts at trick two, cross to dummy with a diamond and return a heart towards you K-9-8-5. This protects you against a holding by North of the Q-J-10-x of hearts.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, September 29, 1979
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Establish "territorial rights." You get chance to move towards goal. Elements of timing and luck ride with you. Superior is willing to make room for you at top. You locate what had been lost or stolen. Cancer, Capricorn persons figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Open lines of communication. Submit suggestions, ideas, manuscripts. Accent on travel plans, philosophical concepts, willingness to overcome language and distance barriers. News from afar could lead to additional income. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play key roles.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Maintain steady, moderate pace. Being self-reliant now is a necessity. One who makes money promises actually could be financially embarrassed. Know it and prepare accordingly. You could meet someone who is attractive and mysterious. Protect self in emotional clinches.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Read Gemini message for valuable hint. Take nothing for granted, especially where contracts, special agreements are concerned. Emphasis on cooperative project, public relations and marital status. Get promises in writing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Patience and diplomacy are twin allies. Spotlight on dependents, special services, pets and employment. Restless relative may be talking, but not thinking too clearly. Keep diet, nutrition resolutions. You have chance now to elevate your position.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Define terms, avoid self-deception. Means see situations, people as they are, not merely as you wish they might be. Change, speculation, affairs of heart command attention. Another Virgo helps you to focus on ultimate goal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your position is stronger than you might realize; invest in your own capabilities. Get valid property appraisal. What you own may be worth more than imagined. Older individual is willing to lend benefit of experience. Be receptive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Short trip is likely to be on agenda. Finish project by getting rid of clutter. Aries, Libra persons figure in scenario. One close to you confides problem. Be interested without becoming inextricably involved. You do have right to live life of your own.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Special collection grabs spotlight. Accent on personal possessions, basic values and money in the bank. In deciding course of action, stick to familiar ground. Cancer, Capricorn individuals play significant roles. A debt is repaid.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Obtain hint from Sagittarius message. Lunar cycle is such that direct appeal succeeds. You learn what is really closest to your heart—make the most of knowledge. Take initiative. Refuse to be "put off" by one who lacks talent and faith.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What appeared a setback is due to boomerang in your favor. Plan ahead; you'll locate "missing link." Clandestine conference could be on agenda. Visit to one confined to home or hospital might lead to ultimate profit. Proceed accordingly.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Shake self free from emotional shell. Barriers are due to fall away. You'll have greater freedom of thought and action. Accent on friends, desires and ability to utilize powers of persuasion. Leo, Scorpio, Aquarius natives figure prominently.

IF SEPTEMBER 29 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a natural teacher and psychologist. You gain greatest success when you heed "inner voice." You are sensitive, intuitive and have ability to feel pulse of public.

PCB taint in Canada, says U.S. newspaper

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government inspectors have found animal feed and food contaminated with the toxic chemical PCB in 10 Western and Midwestern states, a U.S. agriculture department official told Congress today.

And a newspaper reported that PCB contamination had been traced to Canada.

The Washington Post reported today that PCB-tainted products had been traced to 19 states, from New Jersey to Washington state, and to Canada and Japan. The Post did not say where inCanada the tracings had been found.

Carol Tucker Foreman, an assistant agriculture secretary, also told a House of Representatives subcommittee that about 16,000 pounds of fresh pork have been ordered withheld from consumers.

Her disclosure was the first public statement that the PCB contamination, already responsible for the destruction of hundreds of thousands of chickens and millions of eggs, has spread to red meat.

PCB, or polychlorinated biphenyl, is a suspected cancer-causing agent.

Seed rooted in boy's eyeball

CHICAGO (UPI) — A seed took root in the eyeball of a South African boy and sprouted an eighth of an inch, but doctors were able to remove the plant and save the boy's vision.

The rare occurrence was reported in the September issue of the Archives of Ophthalmology, an American Medical Association journal.

The report said the boy went to Dr. Solomon Abel, an eye specialist in Cape Town, after 10 weeks of discomfort.

Abel found a seedling from a plant of the Compositae family — which includes daisies, chrysanthemums and thistles — had germinated in the eye and spiraled for an eighth of an inch under the surface of the eyeball.

The doctor removed the seed and its sprout microsurgically.

Rhodesia report grim

LONDON (Reuter) — A human rights report published Thursday draws a grim picture of life in war-ridden Zimbabwe-Rhodesia with disease and poverty rising, large areas of the country depopulated and people living "in continual fear for their lives."

The report was issued by the Salisbury-based human rights watchdog, the Catholic Commission for Justice and Peace.

It estimates that in seven years of guerrilla warfare, 235,000 people have fled the country, 250,000 have moved off the land into overcrowded urban centres and more than 1,000 people are dying each month.

Its publication coincides with British-sponsored peace talks here between the Salisbury administration of Bishop Abel Muzorewa and the Patriotic Front guerrillas of Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo.

The commission estimated that 400,000 black children are denied education because of school closures.

Tick-borne diseases were widespread and tsetse flies, once eradicated in Rhodesia, have returned to many parts of the country.

Meanwhile, the peace conference edged into its 18th day today with one of the warring parties forced to send one-third of its delegation home due to lack of funds.

Sources in the delegation of Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa said Muzorewa had been forced to send almost one-third of his government's delegation home because of the lengths of the talks and high costs incurred by keeping them in London.

The conference, held under British chairmanship, had originally been expected to last two or three weeks. Some diplomatic sources felt it now could go on for several more weeks as the delegations struggled for an end to the seven-year guerrilla war and to achieve legal independence for Zimbabwe-Rhodesia.

Thursday's talks were held under the shadow of another Zimbabwe-Rhodesian raid into Mozambique, said to be aimed at guerrilla forces. Officials of the Mozambique-based Zimaabwe African National Liberation Army of Mugabe said that no guerrilla forces were in Mozambique — they were all inside Zimbabwe-Rhodesia.

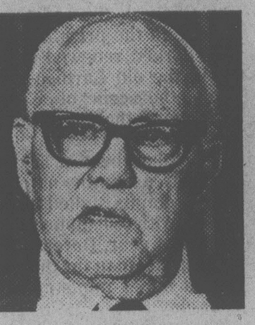
Lending rates rise

NEW YORK (UPI) — Citibank of New York today pushed its prime lending rate to another record high with a quarter point increase to 13½ per cent.

Following the Citibank annoucement, Manufacturers Hanover, Morgan Guaranty, Bank of New York and First Pennsylvania banks also adopted the 13½ per cent prime. Other major banks were expected to follow suit.

Illness forcing Meany to resign AFL-CIO post



MEANY

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — George Meany, long-time leader of the AFL-CIO, will step down at the end of his current term, an official of the labor body announced today.

Lane Kirkland, secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO, said the ailing 85-year-old labor leader will not seek re-election at the organization's November convention.

Kirkland said the ailing union president telephoned him with the news early today and asked him to pass on the word to the organization's executive council, which was meeting in Washington.

Kirkland is expected to succeed Meany.

Nuclear-plant leak threat to environment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate investigators today warned that contaminated water from the damaged Three Mile Island nuclear power plant could seep into the environment in 40 days unless corrective action is taken.

Staff investigators for the Senate Nuclear Regulation subcommittee based their assessment on information received from Harold Denton of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Denton told investigators Sept. 21 that currently there are 1 million gallons of contaminated water stored at the Three Mile Island site and the volume is increasing due to a leak in the letdown line drawing cooling water from the nuclear core of the reactor.

Curtis gets Senate nod

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate on Thursday approved the nomination of former Maine governor Kenneth Curtis to be U.S. ambassador to Canada.

Medical suits blamed on TV

CALGARY (CP) — Television is partly to blame for the high number of medical malpractice suits in the United States, an expert in legal medicine said Thursday.

And in Canada, the medicare system is helping to keep the number of suits down, said Dr. William Dornette, president of the American College of Legal Medicine.

Americans have learned a lot about medicine by watching soap operas, medical dramas, documentaries and news, he told reporters after a speech to the Alberta Medical Association.

They have come to expect a lot from doctors and are quick to turn to the courts when dissatisfied.

About one-third to one-half of the malpractice claims in the U.S. were valid.

Medicine has a high profile in the U.S., he said. Medical problems of leading figures, for example, are covered extensively by the news media.

"I suspect we go far overboard in these areas and I would suspect that's not the case in Canada."

He also said Canada's medicare system has helped limit the number of suits since "patients have essentially full health-care coverage."

"It's much less likely they'll sue than if they run out of insurance and have to drain their own assets" as often happens in the U.S.

On the other hand, he cautioned that medicare might result in more suits if doctors were led to sloppiness through overwork. Some doctors say they are forced to handle more patients under medicare to compensate for inadequate payments.

Dornette, a professor of medical jurisprudence at the University of Cincinnati, also blamed the high incidence of U.S. malpractice cases on a plethora of lawyers that does not exist in Canada.

The dollar value of lawsuits had risen dramatically in the U.S. Insurance premiums in some areas increased 10-fold during the 1960s and the average U.S. doctor now pays $5,000 a year compared with $500 for the average Canadian doctor.

Ont. gold fever contagious

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Representatives from at least 16 major mining and exploration companies rubbed shoulders with grey-haired prospectors today as gold fever returned to Northern Ontario.

The spectacular rise in the price of gold has made prospecting potentially very profitable.

During trading in Hong Kong earlier today, gold touched a peak of $400.20 before settling back to close at $396.25, and by mid-day, gold was trading at $399 an ounce in London.

At least six helicopters dotted hotel parking lots ready to head for the bush to stake new claims as the Ontario ministry of natural resources prepared to release copies of geological maps that may pin-point deposits of gold.

The maps are a result of airborne electromagnetic surveys of 24 townships and a federal-provincial uranium surveillance program covering six Ontario districts.

The electromagnetic survey, sponsored by the federal and provincial governments, is part of a five-year, $2.3-million program which will be completed by 1983.

Corporations and individual prospectors gathered outside the Kirkland Lake mining recorder's office today hoping the survey will provide a clue to the location of major gold deposits.

North Bay resident Bob Graham, representing Peck Explorations Ltd., had been waiting at the door of the mining recorder's office since 11 p.m. Wednesday to be the first person to see the maps.

More than 50 persons had gathered by noon to get the maps which were released on a first-come, first-served basis.

Television cameras and reporters, including one from the Wall Street Journal, New York's international finance newspaper, were on hand to witness the event.

The gold fever has hit British Columbia as well.

In Quesnel, the spectacular rise in the price of gold has sparked renewed interest in the old Cariboo gold fields, the scene of a gold rush more than a century ago.

There has been a 50-per-cent increase in the number of gold claims staked in the region, with 330 applications in the last year, Doreen Jaskela, spokesman for the provincial mines ministry said Thursday.

The main area of interest to claim stakers is the old Wells-Barkerville district, she added.

Canadian brew less dangerous

HALIFAX (CP) — With concern about cancer-causing nitrocimines in 28 brands of U.S. beer, a health official has assured Canadians their beer has considerably lower levels than the product south of the border.

Ralph McKelvie, acting regional director of the federal health protection branch in Halifax, said Thursday Canadian brewers have successfully reduced the amount of nitrocimines in their beer in the last two years to slightly less than one part per billion.

McKelvie said Canadian brewers approached the health protection branch in Ottawa in 1978 to find out the levels of nitrocimines in their beer. It was found that Canadian beers at that time contained an average of 2.54 parts per billion of nitrocimines — the same level found in American beer.

He said the brewers wanted a way to reduce that level and so adopted a successful process developed in Germany.

Single flight, double delay

TORONTO (CP) — Passengers on a flight to Halifax from Toronto had their trip delayed twice Thursday — by different mechanical problems on two separate aircraft, an Air Canada spokesman said.

The spokesman said that a Boeing 727 out of Toronto International Airport was taxiing down the runway for takeoff when a malfunction in the braking system registered on the cockpit instrument panel.

The pilot called off the trip, and the passengers were transferred to a Lockheed L-1011. The second aircraft was also taxiing when its pilot noticed a minor problem in the auxillary power unit, one of several power sources on the aircraft.

Flying safety 'never been better'

MONTREAL (CP) — Air travel is so safe that it can hardly be improved on, say the professionals who investigate air accidents.

About 350 members of the International Society of Air Safety Investigators from 16 countries have been meeting here this week to discuss the investigator's role in accident prevention.

And at the end of a four-day meeting Thursday, several delegates concluded that while there is still room for reducing the effects of human error, over-all air safety has never been better.

"The air safety record is so good that other industries with high-risk technology such as nuclear power and shipping . . . are looking to see if this industry's safety techniques and standards can be applied to their own areas," said Jerry Lederer.

Lederer, a veteran aeronautical engineer who is known as "Mr. Safety" in aviation circles for his pioneering of air safety standards in the United States, noted that there is only one fatal accident for every million hours of flying time in that country.

"To put it another way, 250 million people are carried by commercial aircraft every year in the U.S. and of them 200 get killed. If the risks of everyday living here on the ground were that good, what a great world this would be."

Lederer said that in comparison, between 500 and 600 Americans are killed in traffic accidents during just one day holiday weekend, such as Labor Day or Thanksgiving.

However, Gerard Bruggink, an inspector with the U.S. National Transportation Safety Board, warned of the dangers of complacency in stressing airline safety.

"Aviation is safe but brittle in that it doesn't forgive imperfections," he said. "Some days a slight imperfection at a certain time and in a certain condition can lead to something major. No one in the aviation industry can afford to relax."

SC asks probe on PC raid

OTTAWA (UPC) — Social Credit Leader Fabien Roy has called on the RCMP to investigate Tory attempts to raid his party for members, calling it a "direct attack" on the rights of voters who elected his MPs May 22.

In a letter to RCMP Commissioner R.H. Simmonds Thursday, Roy charged that Prime Minister Joe Clark was attempting to gain a majority government at the expense of the Socreds.

"I am demanding a complete inquiry into the actions and public declarations of certain members of the Clark government relative to public invitations made to Social Credit MPs and of other political parties to incite them to join the Conservative Party benches," Roy said.

"This is without precedence in the annals of Canadian politics and it constitutes a direct attack on the right of the population to be represented by the party of their choice."

Earlier in the week, Socred MP Richard Janelle announced he would sit as a Conservative when Parliament reconvenes Oct. 9.

Following Janelle's defection, newspaper reports said another Socred MP — Armand Caouette — was considering a switch to the Conservatives but Clark and his Quebec ministers denied any knowledge of other possible defections.

Roy told a news conference he has asked Simmonds to investigate the Tory tactics to see "if in these doubtful and public manoeuvers a law of Parliament has been broken."

Roy said the thought that the Tories could "with impunity publicly incite those elected to renege on a mandate they received constitutes a grave attack on fundamental liberties.

"This public contempt against Canadian institutions will not advance the cause of Conservatives in Quebec," he said. "Mr. Clark should use other means other than raids to other political parties to constitute his forces."

Star publisher cries 'foul'

MONTREAL (CP) — William Goodson, publisher of The Star during a crippling eight-month strike last winter, says FP Publications "is looking for a scapegoat" for the sudden closing of its newspaper last Tuesday.

"That's their prerogative," Goodson said in a CBC radio interview Thursday. He added that FP president George Currie and other executives of FP and The Star were "completely informed" of his actions during the strike and "at no time complained."

"Nobody disagreed with my decisions," Goodson said.

He resigned as Star publisher in July after what he described then as "a breakdown in personal relations between the corporate head office and me."

But Thursday, Goodson said he had a letter in his safety deposit box that he received in February, soon after the strike was settled, which says "they (FP) were pleased with my performance."

"Outside the few people taking cheap shots," Goodson said, "I believe that if you ask other newspaper publishers you'll get a different perspective on my competence."

Sugar firm shut down

MONTREAL (CP) — Redpath Sugars Ltd. announced Thursday it will shut down its sugar refining operations in Montreal by January, 1980, a move which will affect 423 people.

While some will remain with Redpath after the shutdown, others will "hopefully" be hired by another Montreal sugar refinery and a small number wil be transferred to the Toronto refinery.

The net loss of jobs will be 360, a company statement said.

Company president Murray McEwen said the decision to close the refinery is motivated purely by economics.

PQ poll results mixed

QUEBEC (CP) — Poll results published Thursday show Quebecers want economic ties with Canada and a chance to negotiate constitutional change, says the mastermind of the Parti Quebecois government's sovereignty-asssociation option.

Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Claude Morin said the sampling by CROP (Centre de Recherches sur l'Opinion Publique) of 1,016 Quebecers, also showed the government would win the constitutional plebiscite promised for next spring.

The poll, conducted last June, was commissioned by the government.

"It seems that according to these figures we would win (the referendum)," said Morin, who is generally credited with introducing the sovereignty-association approach to independence, as well as the notion of a referendum on the subject.

For instance, the poll suggests a clear majority of Quebecers prefer maintaining some form of Canadian federalism, but under certain circumstances would accept sovereignty-association.

Asked what their first choice was for the future of Canada, 65 per cent of the respondents favored some sort of federal state. Only 29 per cent said they favored independence or sovereignty-association. The rest didn't know.

But given a number of constitutional options to choose from, 39 per cent favored "renewed federalism," 20 per cent sovereignty-association, 11 per cent special status for Quebec and nine per cent independence.

Only 15 per cent said they wanted to retain the status quo.

Asked how they would vote if asked in a referendum: "Are you for sovereignty-association?" 37.5 per cent said "yes," 42.2 per cent said "no." The remainder didn't respond.

The pollsters also queried: "If, instead of asking you to support sovereignty-association, the Quebec government asked for a mandate to negotiate sovereignty-association with the rest of Canada, would you approve such a mandate?"

To that 53.9 per cent said "yes," 29.7 per cent said "no" and the balance didn't respond.

However, the poll indicated only 24.8 per cent of those surveyed think the Quebec government will win the referendum and 51.5 percent believe it will be lost.

Even though the referendum question hasn't been made public, 62.3 per cent of those surveyed said they knew how they will vote, while 24.2 per cent are undecided.

Two thousand respondents were chosen at random from voters' lists and 100 pollsters visited the 1,016 available to respond in their homes for face-to-face interviews.

Unification study 'useless'

OTTAWA (CP) — Retired Gen. J. A. Dextraze, former chief of defence staff, says he sees no useful purpose — except political — in the new government study on armed forces unification.

Dextraze said in a telephone interview from Montreal Thursday that "we have to do the right thing and stop playing with the emotions of the soldiers."

Sixty to 70 per cent of those in uniform today joined the forces after unification and know nothing else, he said. It would be expensive to turn the clock back to pre-unification days.

Dextraze retired from the armed forces in 1977 after heading the unified services for five years. He now is chairman of Canadian National Railways.

His view is bound to carry weight in the unification study recently ordered by Defence Minister Allan McKinnon. But there are others, such as retired rear-admiral Robert Timbrell, for commander of the country's maritime forces, who think differently.

Timbrell, who retired in 1972, said he favored integration of support services to eliminate duplication but he opposed unification which blended the navy, army and air force into a single unit.

The three services — particularly the army and the navy — liked their separate identities, he said.

$5 bill revamped

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada announced today it will begin circulating $5 bills Monday with the serial number on the back instead of the front.

The notes are being modified so they can be read by machines. The $20 bill was changed last December.

In a press release, the bank said the numbers are printed in black against a white background. Other features of the note remain unchanged.

Fisherman James Pauley is talking about the big one that got away — at gunpoint. Pauley, of Renton, caught a 25-inch salmon in the Duwamish River. But before he had time to savor his prize, a man identifying himself as a game warden walked up with a gun and demanded that Pauley 30, surrender his fish. The episode was witnessed by a Boeing Co. security guard, however, who notified police. The thief was stopped and charged with assault and robbery. Pauley is still waiting for his fish — which police have frozen as evidence.

Sara Jane Moore, who has been on a hunger strike for 48 days, has been put in hospital at Lexington. Moore, 47, was sentenced to life in jail for firing several shots at Gerald Ford in 1975 when he was U.S. president. Her protest is over what she calls "unjustified confinement" in maximum security cells after a brief escape with another inmate. Ford, incidently, has just purchased a one-acre mountain lot in Colorado near Vail. Price: A record $300,000.

Walters

Kennedy family matriarch Rose Kennedy, 89, is in good condition after an operation to remove part of her intestine, while Mamie Eisenhower, 82, is "more alert" one day after the stroke that partially paralyzed her right side.

While with the Kennedy family, their children have been making the people column with new frequency, but the families have become a blur. How many grandchildren does Rose have?

Twenty six. The grandchildren are divided this way: JFK and Jacqueline had two children; RFK and Ethel, 10; Teddy and Joan, three: Stephen and Jean Kennedy Smith, two; Peter and Patricia Kennedy Lawford, four; Robert Sargeant and Eunice Kennedy Shriver, five. David Kennedy, mugged earlier this month in a seedy Harlem hotel frequented by drug traffickers, is, at 24, the fourth oldest of the late RFK's children.

At the conference on non-aligned nations in Havana the Cuban official announced that 51 heads of state were to attend — then ABC newswoman Barbara Walters arrived. Said the official slyly: "Correction, 52."

Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas has sent $36 to Little Rock police for a traffic ticket he deserved but didn't get — after a news photographer clocked him at 128 km/h.

Dear Abby:

A reader in St. Augustine said he quit going to church because the organist played too loudly. Well, I've been an organist since 1934, and the problem is probably not the organist, but the organ. Over the years, churches replace worn-out organs with rebuilt theatre organs or parts of several organs, and the resulting sounds are disastrous!

The church is the only corporate body I know of with pay that bears no relationship to the cost in time and money spent to acquire professional status.

To all critics who think the organ music is too loud in church, I say the music in the service should run the gamut of soft to loud, depending on the occasion. Too many Christians today declare their faith sotto voce instead of fortissimo, and expert their organist to do likewise. I play for the joy of it, not for the pay, and God knows I sometimes pull out all the stops. Hallelujah and Amen!

Louise Childs

Dear Louise:

Dear Abby:

This is for that St. Augustine reader who quit attending church because of the organ music: I, too, had the same problem, but I asked God to show me the way, and He pointed me toward the Church of Christ.

The Church of Christ doesn't believe in instrumental music, and believe me, it is heavenly to go to church and not have to hear all that loud instrumental music. For true salvation in a quiet and spiritual atmosphere, try the Church of Christ.

Rebecca

Dear Abby:

I'll bet you're bombarded by nurses after advising Frustrated, who wanted sex with her husband in the hospital, to ask the physician to write an 'order' to that effect. You compared it to 'conjugal visits' such as some prisons allow. Prisoners are one thing. Patients are something else.

Abby, we nurses are held responsible for everything that happens to, with, for, on and around every patient in our care. I can just see the patient's chart: 'Patient's door closed for two hours. Patient presumed to be alive.' The floodgates for law suits would be wide open.

Patients who are well enough to engage in sex could ask their doctors for a pass to leave the hospital for a specific period of time. Of course the patient would have to sign a form, releasing the physician, the hospital and its employees of all responsibility for anything that occurs. I hope you back up on this one, Abby.

Nurse

Dear Nurse:

Consider me backed up.

Math whiz picks odds same as us

By AB KENT

The Lord of the Rings is no better at the numbers game than the rest of us when it comes to baseball or betting at Las Vegas.

Dr. Israel N. Herstein, 56, professor of mathematics at University of Chicago, is an ex-Winnipegger who has won international renown for his work in the algebraic system known as the theory of rings.

But when Herstein, a baseball fan, goes to the gambling casinos and plays the mathematical odds, he sometimes comes out ahead and sometimes it's the other way around.

Herstein was in Victoria recently to deliver three lectures as visiting professor at the University of Victoria, the latest university of many across the world to benefit by his expertise in the specialized subject of rings.

When asked if math had improved his chances at the tables, he said he didn't really gamble much but spent three or four hours in the Las Vegas casinos at intervals of three or four years as he travelled west from his home base.

He explained rings, in the easiest example, as a set of whole numbers, useful to mathematicians, physicists and chemists as a research tool.

Rings are represented in such equations as: $a+b = b+a; (a+b) + c = a + (b+c)$, or $(ab) c = a (bc)$.

The theory can recur in many situations, with applications in physics including the super symmetries of particle physics, or quantum mechanics.

Herstein's primary interest in rings dates at least from his days at the University of Indiana where he took his PhD 30 years ago. Up to then he had studied for his master's at University of Toronto where he went after graduating from University of Manitoba.

Born in Poland, Herstein was raised in Winnipeg, where a brother still resides and teaches high school history.

Twice a winner of both Guggenheim fellowships and Fullbright lectureships, Herstein has travelled much and is in steady demand at universities everywhere, although he has been on the faculty at University of Chicago for 17 years. For 10 years he worked in Rome and for four in Israel.

"I think I've been a tourist once in my life and I didn't like it," the professor said.

His visits have taken him to New Zealand, Brazil, Poland, Hungary, Roumania, Czechoslovakia and numerous American campuses including Cornell, Yale, Morehouse, Stanford, and the University of California at Los Angeles.

At present he is visiting professor at UC San Diego.

Herstein has lived in many cultures, speaks eight languages and likes being in new situations with opportunities to see things as a local sees them.

"It has enriched my life. It is a rewarding experience."

When he was 40 Herstein visited Poland for the first time since leaving the war-clouded Europe of his youth.

"I even found the house I was born in," he recalled.

He has been back twice during trips behind the Iron Curtain.

"But I refused to go to Russia because of their policy in the treatment of Jews," notwithstanding encouragement of some Soviet mathematicians, he said.

Besides, he thinks it could be embarrassing, perhaps risky, to show himself in Russia because of the active role he has played in organizing American protest and petitions against the treatment of Jews in Russia.

Herstein is familiar with some of the older, stable Russian mathematicians who have visited the U.S., but he would like particularly to work with younger Soviet mathematicians, "for their sake and for our sake. My own paranoia about the Russians prevents me from doing it."

There are no problems associated with other Iron Curtain countries, he said.

In the interval Herstein has written more than 100 mathematics research papers and several books, including Topics in Algebra, which students will recognize as a standard text at third and fourth-year university levels. It is translated into five languages and used the world over.

To relax Herstein reads a lot, plays tennis, billiards and watches ball games. His favorite team, ever since he was a boy in Winnipeg, is, "unfortunately, the Chicago White Sox."

Ancient loyalty prompted him to add: "I hope the Expos take it."

Baseball and mathematics do have some common ground, however. Herstein said calculating runs is a variation of the Travelling Salesman Problem well known to math, but without solution.

And as far as betting on games is concerned, successful mathematical formulae are almost impossible to achieve.

"You would have to know who's pitching every day," Herstein said.

Debbie Muir . . . no sesame seed fun

Down on the count

By PAUL MINVIELLE

In those fast-food outlets where they do it all for you, who does it all for the myriad smiling girls dispensing fries and smiles from behind gleaming counters?

At many McDonald's restaurants, keeping track of orders and adding up the bill is being done for them by a computer cash register that does an amazing variety of other chores as well.

Debbie Muir said she had worked at the Golden Arches on Saanich Road before they installed the miracle machine.

Asked how she liked the new cash register, Debbie didn't give the expected reply.

"I hate it," was her startling answer. Pressed for reasons, she went on to explain that before she started dishing out burgers and fries working for Ronald McDonald, her math marks hadn't been that great. Constant and rapid addition of bills in the common mealtime crush honed Debbie's mathematical mind to a keen edge. Her math marks soared.

"But then these machines came in and I'm having trouble with math again," she complained.

Manager Kevin Begley doesn't share Debbie's distaste of his restaurant's computer operation. The machine keeps track of things every time Debbie or anyone else punches in a burger, fries or a shake. And at anytime of the day, Begley can check a tape and tell you how many Big Macs, Quarter-Pounders or Macdonald's cookies have been sold that day.

Other computer operations, such as the one at Sears in Hillside Shopping Center, do an amazing variety of bookkeeping chores.

On the purchase of a $42.95 pair of shoes, for example, the clerk merely passes the special label on the side of the shoe box across the face of the cash register. Nothing has to be punched in. The label informtion, printed in magnetic ink, informs the computer what's being sold. The inventory information is automatically recorded, meaning that the amount of any particular item in stock is always instantly available.

The clerk punches in what's offered, and the computer either records the credit card transaction or says how much change is forthcoming from a cash payment.

Cashiers at such outlets as Shoppers Drug Marts and Woodward's in the Mayfair Shopping Center are almost unanimous in their praise of the computer cash registers. Is Debbie Muir the lone holdout? Apparently so. But perhaps those other cashiers don't have math tests to contend with.

Birthmark treatments are varied

By DR. L. L. COLEMAN

My daughter, Melissa, is 4½. She was born with a small, light-colored birthmark under her nose on the right side, above her lip. I was told by doctors that it would go away, but lately it is getting more purple, pinkish and becoming more noticeable. Is there a doctor somewhere who specializes in making such birthmarks lighter by some medical or surgical procedure?

Mrs. G. McM.

Dear Mrs. McM.:

There are many and varied kinds of birthmarks. Some are known as "angiomas." The so-called "immature" type may spontaneously disappear. Others may persist and create cosmetic problems.

Since there are so many different kinds of birthmarks, no universal treatment can be suggested for all of them. Each case must be individually examined to determine the exact nature of the skin blemish.

The doctors who are particularly interested in birthmarks are dermatologists and plastic surgeons. Your own family doctor is aware of the highly trained doctors in both of these specialties.

There are now many clever techniques that are used, either by injection or by a "tatooing" process, to make a birthmark less visible. The use of the laser beam and cryosurgery have been effective in specifically chosen cases.

Melissa is 4½ years old and is probably going to kindergarten. It is extremely important that she be given all the advantages of modern medicine and surgery before she enters grade school. That is the time when she stands the risk of being embarrassed by this blemish.

Dear Doctor:

For the past three years, I have been flying frequently. These flights have been of long duration — about 15 hours. Since last fall I have had a continuous noise in my head. It is most annoying, especially since it's been going on for such a long time. I would appreciate any suggestions you might have that might help me solve this problem.

Mrs. M. R.

Dear Mrs. R.:

Whether or not there is any connection between your long flights and the persistent noise in your head is, at best, speculative. Certainly, there is such a possibility.

My suggestion is that you be checked out for any presence of arteriosclerosis (you did not mention your age) of the blood vessels in your neck.

In addition, hearing studies should be done.

Dear Dr. Cotter:

I need some advice. I am 17 and have a 19-year-old boyfriend. Recently I had a scare and thought I was pregnant. I told my boyfriend and all he said was that I was the careless one and I would have to get an abortion.

Then the doctor told me I was not pregnant. When I told my boyfriend, all of a sudden he was my guy again. After a week he wanted me to have sex with him again. I said not for the time being. Do you think I should continue seeing him? I really love him.

Answer: I am sure you love him, but I have doubts about his love for you. The element of commitment is missing from his side, as shown by his attitude when you thought you were pregnant. He was prepared to blame you for the pregnancy and to encourage an abortion: That shows how much regard he had both for you and the new life which might have begun in you. Consider whether he would be able to stand the stresses of a long-term relationship such as family life.

I think he is irresponsible and you should drop him. It will hurt you, but love when it is real often gets hurt, because love is vulnerable and does not look for its own safety.

Dear Dr. Levine:

I'm a 15-year-old girl. I don't get along with my mum. I always cause her pain even though I don't run away, don't use drugs, don't drink. I'm pretty normal, but I'm starting to wonder if I should get on drugs and show her a real bad girl. She tells all our relatives I'm bad and so I think they would rather keep away from me.

I don't know why this is happening. I go to one of the best schools in Toronto and get good marks. Right now I don't care what happens to me as long as I can get away from relatives and mum. Please give me names, addresses or phone numbers where I can get help.

My dad is in another country.

Answer: I assume that you've at some point spoken to your mother about your frustration. You don't tell us what she is so critical about. According to you, your behavior is impeccable, and she is constantly tearing you down. Do you have any siblings, and are they criticized so unjustly? What I am getting at is, are we dealing with a problem that is entirely of your mother's making? Or is it mutual? Do you play any role in the situation?

If your portrayal of the situation is correct, then it is largely your mother's problem, and there is nothing you can do (discussion, affection, confrontation) to alleviate the situation alone. In that case, you could do well to get some help. Since your mum is so aware of your "faults", she might be more than willing to go to a Family Service Agency for example, to get help for you. There are also family therapists or counsellors at a variety of youth agencies and clinics throughout the city.

If your mum refuses to go with you, I would speak to somebody who can direct you — a school counsellor, your family doctor, etc. As a matter of fact, you could present yourself alone at any of the type of facilities I mentioned above, and get ideas and help in coping with the family problems.

But first, try to speak to your mother about this.

Dear Dr. Powell:

I am a mature 16-year-old and am going steady with a gorgeous 18-year-old. He is very big, 6 feet, about 200 pounds of pure muscle with absolutely no fat at all. We have been going out about eight months and we both feel we are ready to engage in sexual activity. We have considered all the advantages and disadvantages of sexual intercourse and we feel it will strengthen our relationship.

There is only one thing that scares me though. It is my first time and his second. And he is such a big guy I'm afraid he might hurt me. Can he hurt me by having sex with me?

Answer: It sounds as if you have found the guy most girls dream of finding. It also sounds as if he is considerate and that you can talk together. I sometimes wonder if girls your age have been oversold on the place intercourse has in a relationship. You should not feel that having intercourse will do all the things needed to cement and strengthen a relationship between two people. It is only one facet and should not be used exclusively or made too important.

Your concern about his size is valid one. However, the vagina is capable of stretching to accommodate a baby's head during delivery — and no man is that large. The entrance to the vagina can be tight and some women experience pain when the entrance is dilated or opened the first time.

The easiest way to find out is for you to go to a birth control clinic or to a women's clinic and find out.

I would suggest that your boyfriend go with you to the clinic so he can find out some of the answers too.

Dear Mr. Vichert:

I am a 15-year-old boy. I go to a private school and I don't get a chance to meet many girls so I find it very difficult to talk to girls. I would not know what to say and I don't have the courage to go up to a girl on the street and talk to her.

Do you have any suggestions of what to say to them or where to meet them?

Answer: Talking to people is a skill that can be learned. You probably can talk with boys with a good deal of comfort since you have been practising that for some time. So keep in mind that you can become better at talking with girls, and the best way is to practise.

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel including Marion Powell, physician; Graham Cotter, clergyman; Dr. Saul Levine, psychiatrist, and social worker Bruce Vichert.

Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria V8W 2N4. Readers wishing to talk with someone about their problems can call NEED at 386-6233.

Lady Godiva rides again

CLINTON, Conn. (UPI) — If you're looking for a memorable gift, a mail order company will arrange to have Lady Godiva and a band of minstrels deliver chocolates to any location in the country.

"The gift of a lifetime," as it is described in the Pepperidge Farm mail order company's catalogue, is a candy delivery by a woman dressed in a flesh-colored body suit astride a white Arabian horse. She is accompanied by a band of minstrels to make the moment complete.

The offer, which costs about $3,000, was developed after a similar stunt was used to open a Pepperidge Farm store in Greenwich, Conn., last year.

"That's where the germ of the idea came from," said company president Robert Schmalz. "We just embellished it with the minstrels to add to the affair. We were looking around for an idea to have fun with."

Schmalz said there have been no requests for the delivery yet.

WHEELS

by Mike Lamm

Dear Mike: My 1973 Porsche 914 now takes premium, 95-octane gasoline. As you know, 94-octane is the tops available today, and many oil companies have discontined premium leaded fuel altogether. Queston is, What will I — and other owners of high-compressioned cars — do in the future? A mechanic has told me to go to leaded regular gas instead of unleaded premium. What do you suggest? Getting Worried.

Dear Worried: Try both and see which pings less. You might also consider retarding your ignition slightly. And if you even have to pull the heads, you probably ought to install thick head gaskets to lower your compression ratio.

Dear Mike: I just purchased a 1977 Ford F-100 Ranger pickup with the 302 V-8 and 34,000 miles. When I shift into drive or reverse, the automatic transmission makes a terrible thud. Am I headed for trouble? Looking Down The Road.

Dear Looking: Possibly. But the problem might not be in your transmission. It could be that your engine is idling too fast or that your universal joints or rear end have play in them. Before you head for the transmission rebuilder, let a good general mechanic check.

Dear Mike: I own a new 1979 Honda Prelude — a fine car except for the standard AM/FM radio. It uses these crazy controls along the right side of the instrument cluster. I don't like the arrangement at all. No one makes a replacement radio. Is there any way I can change the standard radio to conventional controls? Crazy Radio.

Dear Radio: Not that I know of. I realize that different dashboards sometimes demand different knob and guage placement, but I've long advocated the standardization of such things as switches, horn placement, signals, and radio controls. The buyer ends up paying for the designer's whimsy. It's a problem the auto industry ought to clear up before the regulators step in.

'Fashion, business mix'

By AL FORREST

Militant feminists might not be amused but Norma Fitzsimmons doesn't care — the Women in Business seminar to be held in Victoria Tuesday will feature a fashion show.

"A woman's clothes and general appearance is important to her career," she said.

There is nothing sexist in dressing well. In fact people must dress well if they want to get ahead, whether they are male or female, she said.

"When I walk into some businesses I'm appalled at the casual, almost sloppy appearance of some of the employees.

I know freedom is the big thing and we are still rebelling against the idea of school uniforms but wearing blue jeans and tee shirts to work is not the way to make a good impression.

"That's why a fashion show is an important part of our seminar."

The day-long program, to be held in the Georgian Lounge of The Empress, is designed for all shades of the political spectrum in the world of women, from housewives to the libbers, Mrs. Fitzsimmons said.

McCarthy

Elford

"It is designed for any woman in business or any housewife who is interested in starting a career."

The program starts at 8:30 a.m. and runs through to 3:45 p.m. It features a lunch, with Human Resources minister Grace McCarthy as guest speaker.

The fashion show will follow her speech.

First address at 8:30 a.m. is by Frances Elford, judge of the Canadian Citizenship Court, and former mayor of Oak Bay. She will be followed at 9:15 a.m. by Mrs. Pat Bullo of Northwest Bell, Seattle, talking about power and office politics.

A panel discussion will be held from 10:15 a.m. until noon. Personal problems facing the working girl, including what to do with the husband and children, will be discussed by Sonia Birch-Jones, administrative oficer of University of Victoria's school of public administration.

Other panellists include Visitors Information Centre official Lorraine Cooper on goal-setting, B.C. Forest Products industrial relations manager Gordon Winter on women in industry, and Victoria Press senior sales representative Kay Paulin on selling as a profession for women.

In the afternoon there will be a motivational talk by Jamie Pannell-Merritt of Wayerhaeuser Company and a speech on how to play the business game by Cathy Robertson of Robertson Consultants Ltd.

Light glows in portrayal

By LIZ BADOLATO

Judith Light, as Karen Wolek on ABC's popular One Life to Live, portrays an ex-hooker with the sensitivity Jane Fonda evoked in Klute.

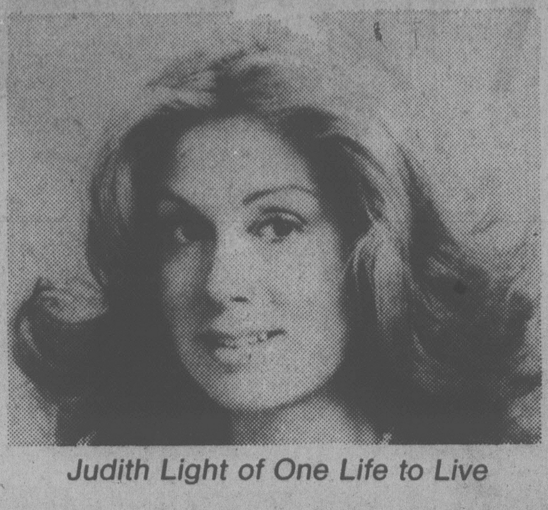
As fans know, Karen was originally driven to prostitution by a destructive sense of worthlessness. Blackmailed by the "enterprising" Marco Dane, she became a prisoner of her own weaknesses. When Marco was murdered, Karen was forced to reveal the whole sordid mess on the witness stand. In a most electrifying performance, Judith brought tears to both cast and crew.

"I was scared before those courtroom scenes," recalls Judith. "I was afraid to put myself out that much." But when Karen finally did break down it seemed like a natural evolution.

"With the agony of pulling it out piece by piece and having the prosecutor stick the knife in her gut," said Judith, "I couldn't help but let everything spew out of her."

There is no loss of intensity going from Karen to Judith. Through her own self-awareness, Judith is able to make Karen one of the most unusual characters in soaps. Judith is enormously reflective and sets high standards for herself. She is endowed with a vitality that becomes nothing short of contagious and is able to make the most of all her experiences.

"I'm not in a hurry," says Judith, who has just signed for another two years with the soap. "I wouldn't leave just to do anything." Judith has established a loyalty not only to the show but to the fans that she openly adores.



Judith Light of One Life to Live

"I can't get enough of them," said Judith, who thrives on making personal appearances. "They understand and support what I try to mirror through Karen and that's important to me."

Channel Chatter. Love of Life cast members recently celebrated the show's 28th anniversary with an outrageous alumni party. Held in the CBS Broadcast Centre, where the show is taped, notables mingled around the award-winning sets of the McCauley mansion. Alumni attendance ran high with such familiar faces as Jessica Walter, Nancy Marchand, Beatrice Straight, Hildy Parks, John Gabriel (now Seneca Beaulac on Ryan's Hope), Douglass Watson (now Mackenzie Cory on Another World), and John Aniston (now Martin Tourneur on Search for Tomorrow) on hand, as well as current regulars — Chandler Hill Harben (Ben Harper), Tudi Wiggins (Meg Hart), Peter Gatto (Tony Alphonso), Gary Giem (Dr. Paul Graham) . . .

Three familiar soap faces join the cast of Another World this month: David Bailey, who left the popular show 15 months ago is now back continuing in the role of Dr. Russ Mathews. William Gray Espy, who originated the role of Snapper Foster and developed quite a following on The Young and the Restless, will play Mitchell Blake, a man from Janice Frame's past. The most surprising addition is Lee Patterson, who for the past 11 years has been a mainstay on One Life to Live (in the role of Joe Riley). Patterson will play Dr. Kevin Cooke, head of the cardiac unit at Bay City Hospital . . .

Stan Birnbaum (Dr. Adam Cohen on Ryan's Hope) legally changed his name to Bryant a few years ago. Now he plans to make the change back. Stan also goes by the name of Vince Fontaine in the hit Broadway musical Grease . . .

Plot Portents. Lee Carmichael must snare Doug on Days of Our Lives to cash in on deceased hubby Byron's money. But Stephen wants a piece of the action, or he'll spill the beans.

Sweet Leslie is changing on The Young and the Restless now that she's a mother. If Stuart Brooks has the spirit to move in on Liz, now is the time.

All is not well with the vacationing Ed and Rita on Guiding Light. Jackie makes an important decision and Roger has a confrontation with Alan.

Rae is shaken by questions from the FBI on Ryan's Hope. Frank is upset — about the possible effect his troubles will have on the Ryan family name. Also, Adam gives Pat a suggestion about Nancy.

Kelly takes the first step to help herself on All My Children. Ruth gets help in making a decision about her unborn child. Meanwhile, an out-of-town visitor complicates Cliff and Nina's relationship.

Maggie goes to work with an ultimatum on One Life to Live. Carla and Jack prepare for their wedding while the Health Club opens and the Riley household is badly shaken.

Chances are you are already volunteering or you know someone who is. Ask a few volunteers and you'll discover that their reasons for volunteering are numerous:

Students volunteer to obtain work experience, retired people volunteer to remain active in the community, mothers volunteer to be involved in activities outside the home or to build experience for re-entry to the job market, working people volunteer to enjoy their leisure time in a productive activity.

Volunteering also provides a way to meet people, learn a new skill or share a hobby or talent with others.

The Victoria Volunteer Bureau is a central resource and referral agency for those who are interested in donating their time and energy to the community. Upon visiting the Volunteer Bureau, the prospective volunteer is given a personal interview with the opportunity to scan requests from over 130 organizations in such areas as social service, corrections, health, education, recreation, mental health, culture and the environment.

Volunteers choose work that interests them, based on the amount of time they wish to devote, their mode of transportation, and other considerations. Volunteer work is available on weekdays, evenings and weekends.

Who needs you?

A foster parent recruitment program needs volunteers to assist with public relations. Volunteers could help with research, organize presentations, put up posters, help with speaking engagements, or a number of other activities.

The Boys and Girls Clubs of Greater Victoria need adult men and women with skills to share with boys and girls, 7-17 years of age. Some skills required are ceramics, painting, chess, guitar and dance. Men and women are also needed to assist with physical recreation programs such as sailing, fishing, gym, floor hockey and basketball. Volunteers with the desire to help as well as those with particular skills are welcome.

An environmental centre is looking for volunteers to work half a day per week in its office, preparing educational or display materials, researching items of environmental interest or reading magazines and cataloguing articles.

At Glendale, a special person is needed to be a one-to-one volunteer with Pauline, a 12-year-old mentally handicapped girl with a social age of about two. Pauline likes most toys and books and loves to imitate. For this position, Glendale is looking for a mature, reliable woman who could spend one hour a week at the lodge and also go on outings with Pauline's school class twice a month.

Volunteer drivers are needed to take a handicapped young woman from Nigel Avenue in Saanich to the University of Victoria for classes Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons.

These are only a few of the many requests on file with the Victoria Volunteer Bureau. If you're not volunteering think about it. And call the Victoria Volunteer Bureau at 386-2269 to find out what you can do for yourself and your community.

309 IN MEMORIAM

You were never too busy to listen, when someone was troubled or blue,
You were always there with a kind word and a smile, and we are so very proud of you.
You cared when no one had the time, you have a heart of gold.
You are a gentle man, with warmth and a special glow.
For the short time we had you and your love, you gave us more than any person could in a long lifetime.
Loved and missed forever
Wendy and Tom

HALLBERG - In loving memory of a beloved Grandfather Robert W. Hallberg, who left us on September 28, 1976.

You are my number one grandpa, and always will be.
I am so proud of you and the love you gave me.
Although I was only a baby when God called you to rest,
I will always love you Grandpa, because you are the best.
I love and miss you Grandpa, your grandson,
Ricki (Thumper)

HALLBERG - In cherished and loving memory of a beloved husband, father, grandfather, and great-grandfather Robert W. (Bob) Hallberg, who left us so suddenly September 28, 1976.

Peacefully sleeping lies one of the best,
In God's own garden now he rests,
He left us suddenly, his thoughts unknown,
but he left us his memory, we are so proud to own,
A smile for all, a heart of gold,
One of the best this world could hold,
Never selfish, always kind,
These are the memories you left behind.
He has not gone, our dear beloved,
Or has he wandered far,
Just stepped into God's loveliest room,
Arlene, Dick and family
Wendy, Tom and family
Bob, Penny and family
Debbie, Bryan and family

PAINTER - In loving memory of Herbert G. (Dick), husband, father, grandfather and brother-in-law, on September 28, 1974.

Thinging of the happy days we had together.
Always remembered,
Minnie, Herb, Mary, Viola, Ron, Grandchildren and Ethel and Jim Donaldson.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

BCR running in red, again

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Railway had an operating loss of $1.1 million during the first seven months this year, ending a short-lived period when receipts exceeded operating expenses.

Revenues increased to $75.4 million to the end of July, compared with $65.9 million in the corresponding period last year.

But operating costs rose faster, going to $76.5 million from $63.4 million last year.

After interest charges are included, the over-all loss on the first seven months was $32.9 million, compared with $28.9 million last year.

The Crown-owned railway made paper profits until 1974, when the carrier's finances were restated, according to recognized accounting practices, by the New Democratic Party government under Dave Barrett.

Since then, B.C. Rail has regularly posted over-all losses, mainly because of the interest burden of its huge accumulated debt.

In 1974, the railway had an operating deficiency of $13 million, but an accumulated debt of $98.3 million, after its finances had been restated.

By 1977, the operating loss was cut to $8.4 million, and in 1978, it was eliminated when B.C. Rail reported an operating surplus of $6.29 million on receipts of $114.4 million.

But by the close of 1978, the railway's debt had grown to $302.7 million. By its inability to meet debt servicing charges, the railway committed a technical act of bankruptcy.

The only thing saving the railway from having to recognize its insolvent position is the provincial government, the sole shareholder, which has guaranteed its borrowings and makes good interest charges when the carrier is insolvent.

Royal renovation talks

Saanich council will meet the three-member Royal Theatre committee Thursday to discuss a 60-page report recommending a $2.3 million renovation of the old structure.

Ald. Howard Sturrock said today a special council meeting will be held to discuss the report, which recommends the Royal be turned into a lower Vancouver Island centre for the performing arts.

Sturrock is also on the theatre committee along with members from Oak Bay and Victoria councils. The three municipalities jointly own the Royal.

Some Saanich council members indicated last week they are not happy with the proposal.

Ald. John Mika called it "second class" and said Victoria should pay most of the renovation costs because it ruined plans to build a proper concert hall here.

University of Victoria offered to build a 2,500-seat concert hall but the project died because "downtown movers and shakers took a parochial view," he said.

The 1,450-seat Royal isn't the kind of facility the area needs to help the economy because it's too small and its uses limited, Mika said.

Sturrock said the committee is after preliminary approval now and that financing arrangements will be made later.

Building a new performing arts centre is rejected in the report because it would cost between $12 and $15 million.

The provincial government has promised to share in the costs of proposed Royal renovations, which include adding a two-level entrance foyer and 50 seats and extensive exterior improvements.

Hearing set on lawyer ads

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyers Jack James and Donald Jabour will be issued citations for advertising their fee structures, says the British Columbia Law Society.

George Cumming, head of the society's discipline committee, said Wednesday that the two lawyers will face a society hearing as soon as possible. Both face penalties ranging from a reprimand to disbarment.

Job program already here

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Many welfare recipients are learning job-finding skills in British Columbia community colleges at one-tenth of the cost of a program that Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy wants to import from the U.S., a college instructor said Thursday.

John McBride of Capilano College said many community colleges in the province offer a program similar to the California-based Self-Directed Placement firm.

Last week, Mrs. McCarthy and her deputy minister, John Noble, travelled to California to look over the firm's one-week course and came home convinced the program gives job-seekers motivation and skills. The firm charges $500 a client.

McBride said Capilano College offers five different employment skills courses at a cost of $50 a week. The cost, except for a $5-a-week charge to participants, is paid by the education ministry and about half the people in the program are on social assistance.

The human resources ministry pays the $5 charge for welfare recipients out of discretionary funds spent by local offices, McBride said.

Store compost for winter work

GARDENING
Hilda Beastall

A stock of screened compost soil is a form of insurance for a gardener who likes to work with plants. Depending on whether you have an average home garden, a balcony, patio, or sundeck garden, the amount will vary, yet the need will be as urgent in all these different situations.

When soil is needed, from now on through winter and early spring, it is available for sowing a few seeds, rooting cuttings, repotting house plants, topping up pots of bulbs for indoors and similar uses.

Some folks will be using additional soil for tubs and pots of small vegetables on balconies and for sowing seeds of herbs for window sills. The soil must be just dry enough to handle and quickly warmed if for work on plants in the home.

For greenhouse use, it pays to construct a sturdy wood enclosure beneath a work bench, preferably on a slab of concrete. Leave the top half of the front open for bringing out full shovels of the soil. This batch need not be screened when put in the bin.

Screening on the bench before use gives the rough pieces for drainage at the bottom of flats and pots. Soil under a greenhouse bench can be lightly dampened and stirred as necessary to keep it in a lively condition.

In smaller quantities, especially without a garden for supplies, a gardener will need to buy soil unless you work out a system of making compost in perforated pails. It has been done on balconies and sundecks. Apart from money saved, it gives that sense of self-sufficiency so difficult and important to maintain in today's world. The satisfaction is similar to that experienced in making bread.

The reason for getting ahead now with storing a supply of compost is that it should be, and is, in prime condition this week and during dry weather. Having been kept well dampened at intervals during spring and summer, it is only the outer side walls and top layer that is at all dry. The rest is just beautiful black soil with only scraps of hard branches, egg shells and nut shells remaining in recognizable state.

The wood framework of the compost bin was removed months ago to make the new season's bin to receive the fresh material of summer and fall. This left the well started old heap to continue to the completely rotted stage in readiness for fall planting, which has of necessity been going on for several weeks with us.

Before all the material has been used for the outdoor work, several batches will be put through a half-inch screen for storing in big cans in an outside cool place. I may need to compromise with one heap placed in an accessible spot and covered with an old tarpaulin for partial protection. I know it will be needed for small outdoor plantings when surrounding soil may be wet and sticky with its clay content.

That is when a supply of screened compost makes winter gardening the pleasure it should be even without a greenhouse.

And working through a well-rotted compost heap, noting the healthy earthworm population and the pleasant earthy odor provides the incentive to keep the new heap in good condition at this season.

Much vegetable garden material is still to be prepared for composting. The new heap is dampened well with each fresh addition and its sprinkling of good soil, so that by the time the mass of plants and vines are discarded after the first hard frost, no further watering may be needed before fall rains take over.

With the residual warmth that is in the bottom half of this new compost heap, there should be an ample supply of fresh soil by late spring outdoors sowing and planting time.

Meanwhile there is plenty of screened compost soil ready and in usable condition for fall and winter gardening.

Fires still a threat to interior forests

Interior B.C. forests now are the main concern of protection forces as 240 fires burn in the province, the forests ministry said today.

The ministry said in a news release that high danger rating were still being recorded in the Prince George, Nelson and Cariboo forest regions. The Cariboo, with 54 new fire outbreaks during the last week and a total of 74 still burning, heads the list.

The only extreme danger rating is in the Riske Creek area of the Cariboo.

There have been 121 new fires in the province during the last week, bringing the total this year to 3,640, compared with 2,242 at this time last year, the ministry said.

Cuba deadlock heating up

Times News Services

The Soviet Union Thursday night sharply attacked President Carter's pledge to take unspecified action to counter the presence of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba, charging his tone was "ultimatum-like" and "threatening."

Carter, who was holding a second urgent meeting with his national security advisers today, will go on television Sunday night to report on the U.S.-Soviet deadlock.

The attack by the Soviet news agency Tass came as Secretary of State Cyrus Vance was locked in protracted negotiations in New York with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in an effort to resolve the issue, which has strained U.S.-Soviet relations and endangered ratification of SALT II accords.

Carter, in a "town meeting" in New York Tuesday night, reiterated the American contention that a Soviet force in Cuba is a combat unit, despite Soviet denials. He said he did not know if the current Vance-Gromyko negotiations will be successful.

But, the president said, he will take action "to change the status quo" if the current talks fail.

Referring to the president's speech, Tass said he made demands "in an ultimatum-like tone that the status quo, which has existed for almost two decades now, be changed."

It said the entire problem surrounding the Soviet combat brigade in Cuba was a propaganda "hullabaloo" that was "deliberately whipped up by circles having a stake in kindling" anti-Soviet feelings in the United States.

"It is really absolutely obvious that the Soviet military personnel do not and cannot constitute any threat, either by their numbers or their functions, to the United States or any other state," it said, adding they have been in Cuba for "the last 17 years."

While the speech contains "absolutely unfounded and crude attacks on Cuba's policy," Tass said, Carter at the same time expressed intentions "to continue keeping U.S. troops and numerous military bases in close proximity to the Soviet Union's borders."

In the Senate, meanwhile, Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., introduced an amendment to the SALT II treaty under which the pact — even if ratified — would not take effect until Carter certifies the Soviets have no combat capability in Cuba.

Under the amendment, the president also would be required to tell the Soviets that any future combat capability in Cuba would jeopardize the continuance of SALT.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd termed the situation a "pseudo-crisis" and said there should be no connection between the presence of the troops and a decision on SALT II.

He told the Senate the troops have created a mood of "near hysteria" in some quarters.

Crown firms selling for $200M

OTTAWA (CP) — Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens said today the government may sell four Crown corporations and their subsidiaries for more than $200 million.

He made the statement in a news conference after releasing an announcement that said the declared assets of the corporations is more than $804 million and their total debts are $323 million.

Saying that it is possible the companies will not be sold, Stevens listed them as Canadair Ltd. of Montreal with assets of $246.5 million, de Havilland Aircraft Ltd. of Toronto, valued at $184.2 million, Eldorado Nuclear Ltd., which mines, markets and refines uranium, valued at $314.9 million and Northern Transportation Co. Ltd., which operates mostly in the North and has assets of $58.7 million.

The minister said the government would be content to recover its total investment in the corporations — about $188 million — but said it might be willing to take a loss on individual companies.

However, Stevens said it is possible that some of the companies — comprising the federal involvement in the uranium production, aircraft production and northern transportation — will not be sold.

He said cabinet had only made an "initial decision" that the four companies should "at least in a serious way be considered for return to the private sector."

A treasury board study group would be asked to determine not only whether sale was possible, but also to recommend the best way to do it.

Reacting to news of the intended sales, Opposition Leader Pierre Trudeau, whose Liberal government took over Canada's two major aircraft companies, said today he will be watching to make sure the new Conservative government leaves them under Canadian control.

Trudeau was interviewed at the airport here as he prepared to fly to the Maritimes to speak to Liberals.

In Toronto, union leaders were concerned while company executives expressed indifference to the federal

Seagram penalty a record

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Joseph E. Seagram & Sons Inc., a subsidiary of Seagram Corp. of Montreal, must pay $1.5 million in fines for its guilty plea to making political payoffs in cash and liquor, the largest penalties ever in a commerical bribery case, the government says.

The fines were levied Thursday by U.S. District Judge Edward R. Becker as part of a plea-bargaining agreement.

Under terms of the agreement, the government refused to discuss the exact nature of the payoffs and agreed to curtail its investigation of Seagram's.

Seagram's, the largest U.S. distiller, was charged in an 82-count criminal information filed by the U.S. Attorney's office in Philadelphia.

The bribery charges are based on payments of cash and cases of liquor to Edwin Winner, former member of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board.

Winner, 79, of Huntingdon Valley, Pa., has pleaded guilty to related extortion charges and is awaiting sentencing.

The currency charges stem from the transportation of $130,000 cash from Seagram's parent company in Canada to its New York headquarters.

The cash was used to make "illegal and questionable poltical contributions and other payments to facilitate the sale of Seagrams products".

No time to be scared

ALAMOSA, Colo. (AP) — When the first grizzly sighted in Colorado in 28 years attacked, there wasn't time to be scared. Ed Wiseman killed the 350-pound bear with an arrow and his bare hands.

The soft-spoken Colorado mountain man picked up a razor-tipped arrow that had fallen to the ground and stabbed the animal twice in the throat, severing its jugular vein with the second thrust.

"It was a strange sensation," he said. "I was thinking mainly of survival — what do I do now, what do I do next. I was oblivious to the pain, but I could actually hear the flesh tearing when he bit me."

Wiseman, bleeding from his wounds and his leg broken, spent the night in minus-9° temperatures before he was taken by helicopter to Alamosa Community Hospital, where he recounted the ordeal Thursday.

Wiseman, a Crestone hunting-party outfitter and guide for 14 years, is 46, a six-foot, 185-pounder, and looks as rugged as his trade implies.

He had led a party of bow hunters from Great Bend, Kan., into the rugged back country of the San Juan Mountains west of Alamosa looking for elk. On Sunday, Wiseman and one of the hunters rode on horseback about 10 kilometres from their base camp before splitting up to hunt.

It was about 5 p.m., and Wiseman was alone. He had no gun, and his knife was in his backpack.

"I heard a bear growling and running at me through the pine trees," he recalled.

The bear, a mature female, rammed Wiseman, knocking him down and sending the bow flying, then bit into his right leg.

"The thought of dying passed through my head," he said. "The thought was: 'Could this be the end?' "

Wiseman said he did "what most experienced hunters would do." He rolled into a ball and lay still. But the grizzly kept biting.

"I let it go on for a while, but it was getting worse," said Wiseman. "I saw the arrow on the ground."

He reached out, picked up the broadhead aluminum hunting arrow and jammed it into the bear's throat. It broke in half. He grabbed the bear's head, pulled out the arrow and rammed it again into the animal's throat.

"Then shortly she quit growling and biting me," he said. "She went up on a little hill and she just sort of settled down and died."

Wiseman said he found his companion, Mike Niedree, and the two rode about 2½ kilometres, "but I couldn't go any farther. I was nauseated and dizzy from shock and loss of blood."

Niedree, started a fire and went on to the camp for help. He returned about 3 a.m. By then, the temperature had dropped sharply.

Chief's used car probed

DELTA (CP) — Mayor Ernie Burnett said today police Chief Mervyn Smith was suspended and the RCMP were called in to an investigation into the police force here because the inquiry board discovered that the chief had bought a used police car.

Burnett said he did not know the circumstances and could not comment on reports that it was common practice for members of the force to buy used police cars they knew were in good condition when traded in.

The mayor said it is quite possible that other members of the force in this municipality south of Vancouver will be under investigation, but that only the sale of a used police car to Smith was brought to the attention of the Delta police commission by the inquiry board.

"The only one brought to our attention was the chief," Burnett said. "He was suspended by us (the Delta board) and the RCMP called in at the request of the B.C. Police Commission, because there might be charges laid."

The inquiry was set up in July by the B.C. Police Commission after complaints by citizens about the municipal force.

Smith had gone fishing and was not available for comment.

However, his wife Kari Smith reacted angrily to the suspension.

"My husband is an honorable man," she said. "You can ask anyone in Delta. He wouldn't have stayed there all those years unless he was."

Smith, 60, had been scheduled to retire six monoths ago after 26 years in the service, but stayed on to help select a new chief.

Mrs. Smith said her husband bought the used police car from a dealer because her car had broken down and it would take four weeks to repair.

She said the car was bought last spring and was used to visit her sick father on Vancouver Island and to go shopping. Smith subseqently sold the car.

Clean-shaven Pierre back

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Trudeau has shaved off his beard.

"I just got up and decided vacations were over," the opposition leader said today, as he headed off for two days of meetings with Liberals in New Brunswick at Chatham and Fredericton.

He shaved it Thursday night.

Trudeau grew the beard in August on a canoe trip in the Northwest Territories.

He once joked that he would leave it on until he won the next federal election.

27 burn to death in Austrian hotel

VIENNA (AP) — An intense, choking fire roared through a Vienna hotel packed with tourists before dawn today, killing 27 persons and injuring 13, authorities said.

Two Americans were reported among the dead. There were no reports of Canadians having been in the hotel.

Most of the victims were overcome in their sleep by poisonous fumes released by burning plastic wall and floor-coverings in the Am Augarten Hotel, police said.

Eyewitnesses said guests in the four-storey, medium-class hotel hung from their room windows screaming for help, and one woman jumped to her death from the third floor.

It was the biggest loss of life in a fire in post-war Austria.

Board delays Prentice issue

By JANE COVERNTON

The Royal Jubilee Hospital Board Thursday night postponed dealing with a motion of non-confidence in board chairman Terry Prentice.

It will come up at a special meeting of the board Oct. 4 after Prentice returns from holidays.

The motion of non-confidence was brought to the board by chief of medical staff Dr. Elinor Powell on behalf of 120 doctors who voted unanimously Sept 18 to ask Prentice to resign.

She said that she would never have thought six months ago that she would present such a motion.

"We had the greatest belief in Mr. Prentice. He went to the government and fought for us. He tried to get better services for patients," Dr. Powell said.

But, she said, doctors now have lost confidence in Prentice.

Dr. Powell said Prentice's implementation of the Moreton Report calling for changes in the administrative structure has isolated the board from the staff, even though the doctors looked forward to being involved in the implementation of the report.

Deepening recession ahead

TORONTO (UPC) — The North American economy is on the brink of "a sharp deepening" of its recession, a senior economist said Thursday, but eventual recovery is in sight.

John Grant, director and chief economist of Wood Gundy Ltd. of Toronto, told the Conference Board's business outlook meeting that the finance world's "sensation of crisis is quite intense."

Grant noted that both the U.S. and Canadian economies have been ravaged by oil-price hikes and stagnation in productivity, and that both countries are prepared to keep money-supply growth down "by pushing interest rates aggressively upward."

He predicted that the United States "has an extremely painful job ahead of it in attempting to reduce the rate of inflation even to the 6- or 7-per-cent level."

The indicators add up to the "serious probability to a sharp deepening of the current North American recession in the next few quarters," Grant said, predicting "a serious drop in commodity prices.

He thought the recession would last through the first half of 1980, with slow recovery in late 1980 and 1981.

"I think it likely that Canada will achieve little better than 1-per-cent real growth in 1980, accompanied by a decline in export volumes that could last through the first or second quarter of next year," Grant said.

He anticipated "further, probably modest tax cuts" in the November federal budget and a growing current accounts deficit. All Canadian governments will probably "keep backing out of the economy for at least the next two or three years."

In private industry, profits will drop "quite sharply" for at least a few quarters, but retained earnings will continue to be healthy and cash balances strong, Grant said.

The board's chief economist, Dr. Thomas Maxwell, said Canadians can look forward to at least one more year of high inflation and a sluggish economy as a result of accumulated inventories and the U.S. recession.

Shakeup coming in B.C. labor pool

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Employers' Council of British Columbia says a major restructuring of the makeup of the labor force in the future is inevitable and will jack up productions costs in certain industries.

A report by the council says employers could be forced to abandon mandatory retirement policies and hire older employees to fill vacancies because of a shift in the numbers of people of certain ages in the work force.

It says the province faces a shortage of semi-skilled and skilled workers as trends in education and training, apprenticeship, aging and retirement all affect the work force.

"The labor market faced by corporate planners and recruiters in the future will be very different from that of today," the report says.

The council says the number of men between 15 and 24 in the work force will decrease to 173,000 from 175,000 between 1981 and 1986. At the same time, the number of men between 25 and 65 in the work force will increase to 713,000 from 616,000.

While the male work force will grow by 22.2 per cent between 1978 and 1986, the council says, the female work force is expected to increase by 36.4 per cent.

"The concentration of individuals in the 24 to 44 age group, coupled with increased female participation, will likely result in decreased employee turnover in management and administrative positions," it says.

Employers will have to implement employee training and development programs that provide new career opportunities, the council says.

Rogers Tel closes $34M deal

TORONTO (CP) — Some of the assets of Rogers Telecommunications Ltd., including its Toronto cable television service, will be sold to Canadian Cablesystems Ltd. for $34.6 million.

A Cablesystems spokesman said the deal still must be approved by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission and the shareholders of Canadian Cablesystems.

If all necessary approvals are received, the deal could be closed by Sept. 2, 1980, the spokesman said.

Bonds

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were lower in moderate trading, as cautiousness prevailed in the Canadian and U.S. markets.

The short end of the market was unchanged. Mid- and long-term issues fell three-eighths of a point. Provincial and corporate issues were down one-eighth of a point.

The negative sentiment began late Wednesday afternoon when the U.S. budget deficit for August 1979 was reported to be $14 billion, compared to $7.21 billion for July, and $4.5 billion for August 1978, the Investment Dealers Association said. Bond participants were also discouraged by this week's increase of $1.73 billion in U.S. commercial and industrial loans. Dealers said the decline of 3.24 billion in adjusted demand deposits for the same week did little to abate the bearish overtones.

The Canadian dollar moved to 86.10 after closing 85.60 Wednesday night, with good buying interest from Europe andn from the Chicago International Money Market.

Day-to-day money was available at 12 per cent.

Silver

Thursday

Closing basic price of 1,000-ounce certificates in the Victoria area, according to the Scotiabank, $16.25 U.S. bid per troy ounce and $17.25 asked. Previous day $15.00 and $16.00.

HOMES TODAY

"People are losing money by renting" says Dale Sproule, sales manager of Vista Homes, the company that built Chateau Vista, Chateau Jubilee, and Cara Vista condominium homes.

"With the escalation in real estate values that's happening now, they're not only going to lose money as rents increase, which is sure to happen, they'll lose because the cost of housing and land is going to get further out of reach all the time" he added.

People who are paying $300 a month now will pay $3600 the first year in rent. If rents go up at eight percent, in ten years the rent will be double this amount. This means they will have paid $52,154 out in rent by then, and in that time owning a home will cost twice as much as it does now.

By delaying purchasing in the hope that prices come down, or in the hope that one's financial situation will improve, one loses both ways.

'Empty nesters', (people whose children have grown and gone), who want to use their money to travel rather than to run a large family home are buying condominiums. "Most owners are around the 55-year age bracket" said Mr. Sproule.

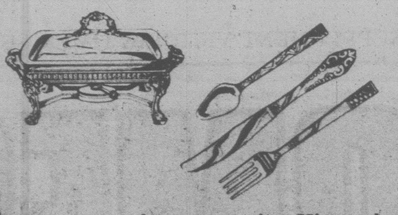
Advice for quilt buyers, silver collectors



By JOHN HEARN

I have been asked to give adviceadvice for quilt buyers and rather than guess, I passed the question along to Mary Conroy who publishes CANADA QUILTS, an excellent magazine much read by the Canadian quilting community. Here is her reply: —

1. Check the quilt carefully for neat corners, neatly bound edges and fine even stitching. Measure out an inch along the top and count all the stitches that show. There should be at least seven to the inch — single thread.

2.Be sure that the materials are all washable to the same degree — unless you plan to have the quilt dry cleaned. A patch of satin, for example, in a mostly cotton or cotton blend quilt will be the first to wear and run.

3. If you do take your quilt to the dry cleaners, ask them to hold it until they are running a new batch of cleaning fluid and put it through first.

4. Check materials for color fastness. Spit on a kleenex and gently dab any patch that looks suspicious. If the color comes off you know you are buying trouble.

5. A machine stitched and machine quilted quilt is fine for everyday use and should not cost as much as a hand-worked one.

6. Machine stitching is generally acceptable in the places that don't show — for example, to attach long strips between blocks. However, on a quilt that is handquilted the edging or binding should be put on in such a way that no machine stitching shows.

7. According to the dealers, any variation of the Log Cabin pattern is far the most popular quilt.

A subscription to CANADA QUILTS is only $6.00 and all you have to do is write to Cary Conroy at 360 Stewart Drive, Sudbury, Ontario, P3E 2R8.

I've been reading a classic book on Canadian Silversmiths — The Old Silver of Quebec by Ramsay Traquair, first published in 1940 but reprinted in 1973 and still available. He opens with a nice statement which I thought worth sharing.

"Until about the middle of the 18th century, silver was in use for most of the purposes for which today we use glass or china. Well-to-do people had, for everyday use, cups, spoons, forks and dishes of solid silver and the amount which they required must have been considerable. This silver was also an investment and a standard of exchange. In times of prosperity the family plate was displayed upon the sideboard to the admiration of friends and visitors. In case of need it could quickly be turned into money.

"Silver was also a necessity for ecclesiastical vessels. Canon law requires that sacred vessels be made of noble metals. Only inferior utensils such as censers and trays were made of copper or pewter.

"The silversmith, accordingly, occupied a very important place in the community. His work was in constant demand both by the church and the laity. He was a necessary craftsman rather than a luxury as he is today."

I wish I had better news for all those people who ask about the value of their fine volumes of the complete works of Browning, Keats & Shelley, etc. These used to be very popular as rewards for good behaviour at school in the last quarter of the 19th century. Publishers did an excellent job turning out well bound and nicely illustrated editions for this market. The recipients never read them. They were much too good to throw away and so they survive to this day in exceptionally sound condition — and in vast numbers. If you figure that they are worth between $5 and $15 you won't be too far wrong.

Seek and ye shall find space

Just as children go exploring for private spaces to play in the attic or basement, so, too, do adults look for room in the home that can be turned into useful work or hobby areas.

Short of adding a room to the house or remodeling a bedroom to become an office-in-the-house, what is possible?

Look for ends or corners of rooms that get little use. Consider minor structural changes. Maybe a door can come off a closet and, with the addition of shelves and a work surface, the closet can become a mini-office.

Designers point out that very little space is often enough to serve the purpose, making the addition or conversion of an entire room unnecessary. As little as 35 to 40 square feet can make an ideal office, for instance.

Un·real estate.

Here on the southeast slopes of Mount Newton you will find a secluded country estate — a quiet haven separated from the cares and distractions of the commonplace world.

The views are un-real.

Many homesites overlook the beautiful Dominion Agricultural Farm. Many have breathtaking views of the Gulf Islands. Many have unforgettable forest and park vistas. And no matter what sight you set your heart on, all come with a complete range of services, including underground hydro and telephone already installed.

You can also be assured your home and every home within this exclusive community will compliment one another. There is an approving panel to review designs in order to maintain a high architectural standard and overall compatibility.

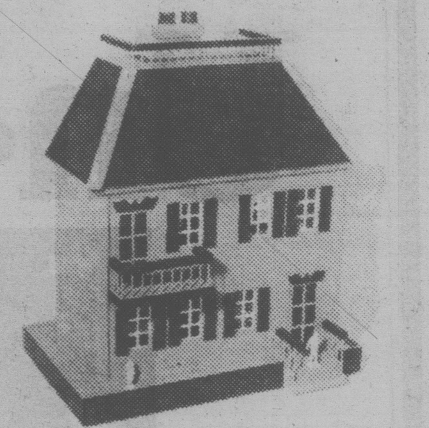
YOU CAN MAKE IT!



A dollhouse for someone special? Send for plans

By STEVE ELLINGSON

An enchanted little girl completely absorbed in a miniature world is a rich reward for the time spent in building this beautiful doll house.

For centuries a doll house has been one of the best-loved playthings a youngster could receive. Its popularity remains undiminished year after year. It will give your child hours of quiet indoor pleasure, a treat enjoyed by mothers as much as children. A few scraps of wood are all you need. The furnishings are of the inexpensive plastic variety found in the toy departments of all department stores. The base of this doll house is on casters, making it easy to maneuver during play. The pattern is full-size. You simply trace the pattern parts on plywood, then saw them out, and finally put them together. It's that easy. A list of required materials along with lots of illustrations are included with each pattern. It's something that any amateur can undertake with success.

To obtain the full-size pattern for the doll house No. 411, send $2.50 (please add 50 cents extra for postage and handling) by cheque or money order: c/o Victoria Press, Room 115, 7370 Cote St. Luc Road, Montreal H4V 2X3.

"WONDER WHO LIVES THERE?"

Norma at her front door

By ANNE SWANNELL

Norma Fitzsimmons, of Island Florist, and her husband Russell live in this modern home overlooking Cadboro Bay. Built in 1960 on the site of the old Cadboro Bay beach hotel, it was designed especially for this rocky lot by the Fitzsimmons and Bob Thomas of Victoria Design Specialties.

The entry to the house is quite impressive with its soaring ceiling, windows that let in quantities of light, and stairs that lead down to the lower level where there's a recreation room complete with bar and piano (painted white and signed by friends and family), or upstairs to the living areas.

Norma loves the color green, and she's made good use of its cool, calming qualities throughout her home. Through the white wrought iron that frames the stairways, and forms room dividers, one sees a sweep of pale green carpet in the living room, which blends beautifully with the blues and greys of the ocean, seen through living, dining, and kitchen windows.

Off the living room, the Fitzsimmons have built a conservatory right on the terrace. "If the wind is right off the sea" says Norma, "It's more comfortable to sit in here, where you can get the feeling of being outside without the draft. We put up the plastic on the outside last winter, and we did such a good job that we didn't want to take it off, and now winter is going to be coming again and so we won't bother with them this year."

Wicker fan back chairs and a swinging chair furnish the conservatory, add to the informal atmosphere, and are light and airy in keeping with the feeling needed in such a sunny location.

This is a people house, full of family photographs and souvenirs of their travels, mementoes of the visits of friends, and, as one might expect, flowers and plants everywhere.

"We've built two homes ourselves," says Norma, "and you always wish afterwards that you'd done something a bit differently -placed something in another location - or arranged something in some other way."

"But this house has been very liveable right from the start," she adds, "and we wouldn't change the layout at all."

Norma worries sometimes that her house isn't very interesting from the street. But, as she says, that's to be expected when the living areas are oriented towards the water, so the bathrooms and bedrooms are on the street side of the house.

ARCHITECTS ANSWER

You ask the questions of local architects

QUESTION:
We have, for many years, been interested in architecture, especially the heritage aspects of buildings and architecture. Where can we obtain more information on these topics?

Victoria is very fortunate that in October of this year, Heritage Canada will be holding a series of seminars and workshops during their Annual General Meeting in the city.

In November of this year, a Festival of Architecture will be held in Victoria on the 30th of November and the 1st and 2nd of December. It will focus on the joy, the impact and the inspiration of architecture. The event is part of the celebration of the 60th Anniversary of the Architectural Institute of British Columbia.

In the tradition of Joseph Paxton's Crystal Palace for the Great Exhibition of 1851 in London, the Festival will be held in the newly restored Crystal Gardens. The festival will present to, and explore with, a participating community a wide spectrum of attitudes toward architecture.

This will be a multimedia event to stimulate the senses, incorporating drama, music, displays and discussions on many topics.

Friday, the 30th of November will bethe opening of a two-day Architectural Film Festival to be held in the Newcombe Auditorium.

Saturday, Festival Day will place an emphasis on participation by all age groups. The purpose of the festival is to stimulate people's imagination and to expand our awareness of our physical environment.

Fireplaces fulfil dreams

Twenty years ago it was not the usual thing to have a fireplace in a new house. Many were put up without them to hold down costs even more.

The experts cite a variety of reasons.

They say that a fireplace is a kind of status symbol, sometimes a showpiece, a source of heat and energy and a point of home comfort.

It makes people feel cozy on cold evenings.

Paul Calhoun, vice president of this company'snew homes division, said, "The most wanted feature cited in our survey of what's wanted in a new home was the fireplace.

"We found in this survey that a fireplace was desired by 99 per cent of the people shopping at single-family home developments and by 97 per cent of those at condominium projects," he said.

Also many people wanted more than one fireplace.

"Our survey shows that many people want more than one standard fireplace," he said. "Builders should make them standard in the family room with a second optional fireplace in the living room with one or two plans and master suite fireplaces in at least one plan."

Most people surveyed wanted the fireplace in the family room instead of the living room.

KEN SMITH at work in his garden on Shelbourne Street would really rather be golfing. "I hate gardening, and really only do it because it has to be done. My wife does most of the work" says Ken. He was born in Victoria in 1910, went to school in Vancouver, and moved back to Vancouver Island in 1963. Ken and his wife have two sons and a daughter, have been living on Shelbourne seven years.

PLAN OF THE WEEK

:83.9sq.m./m.ca.// 903sq.ft./pi.ca.

This high-style four-bedroom split level design is perfectly suited to the narrow-to-medium frontage residential lot, and would make an excellent home for the larger family which requires spaciousness and convenience at every turn. The solid and comfortable appearance of the eye-catching exterior, finished in horizontal channel siding, with brick veneer and chimney, and with heavy shake roof, presents a low-profile facade which would harmonize well into any urban residential development.

The elevated weather-sheltered entry leads into a compact reception foyer and closet storage area, from which guests move naturally right into the large formal living room.

A well-planned L-configuration kitchen has a step-saving work triangle, abundant countertop work surfaces and generous cupboard storage. The kitchen divides the formal dining room from the more casual sunken family room, for excellent separation of formal dining when entertaining and relaxed family meals. The large family room is stepped-down two risers from the main level, and features a wide, cantilevered-hearth masonry fireplace, with built-in log storage, and sliding glass doors giving onto a wide patio for outdoor recreation and and dining in fine weather.

Acessible from either the family room, main hallway or garage, is a large sunken laundry-utility complex, with built-in folding counter, and a two-piece vanity bathroom. The garage access provides for a mud room facility and outdoor tool storage. The stairwell to the basement is also conveniently located in this handy utility area.

A double enclosed garage and a basement complete the lower level convenience features of this outstanding design.

All four bedrooms are positioned on the second level, around the central bath and linen storage closet. Each has generous closet storage facilities and excellent exposure for natural lighting and view. The large master bedroom has a four-piece ensuite bathroom with tub and twin vanities, the latter being separated from the tub and toilet by a space-saving pocket door.

Plans for design No. 79-2195 may be purchased either by the single set, at a cost of $85.00 for the first set and $14.00 for each additional set, or by the package. A five-set plan package, including the first set, is economically priced at $120.00 and an eight-set package, also including the first set, is only $150.00.

Whichever method you choose, please include $5.00 for postage and handling. B.C. residents add 5% sales tax.

Send for the current edition of Select Home Designs Magazine, Series 42, featuring imaginative decorating and home improvements ideas, plus 320 quality home plans of every type. Available for $2.75 ($2:00 plus .75 cents postage and handling).

To order any of these items please send cheque or money order payable to the Home of the Week. Address to: Home of the Week, c/o Victoria Press,382 West Broadway, Vancouver, B.C., V5Y 1R2.

INTERIOR DESIGN

How to create feeling of space in your rooms

By PAULINE GRAVES

The art of living well and looking your best includes the use of trickery. In clothes, for instance, vertical stripes give a slender appearance as contrasted to horizontal stripes that widen. And a large, bold print dress makes the wearer look larger than when she wears a plain color.

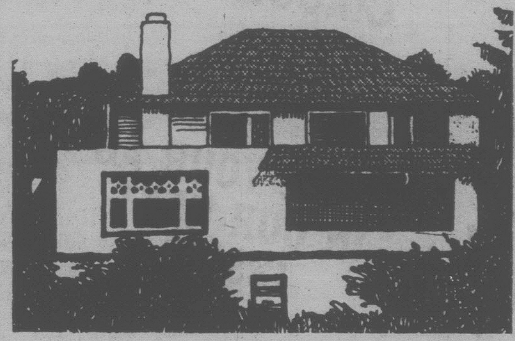
The same rules apply to house interiors. A bold wallpaper diminishes the size of a room, and when used on a ceiling brings the ceiling down. Stripes in rooms widen or heighten depending upon how they are used. Trickery is a fact of life and we might as well use the principles to our own advantage.

Trickery is employed in this attractive room by Norman Colburt. A floor to ceiling mirror fills the wall at the side of the bed, but it gives the impression of being a window instead. The narrow, wooden strips that criss-cross the mirror look like mullions, normally seen on traditional windows. It is unusual to see them on a mirror, and that is the trick.

Putting the large plant in front of the mirror is a good idea, because the plant's reflection in the mirror gives a first impression of outdoors.

A large mirror can be installed on the wall, and the mullions placed over the entire surface, or the wall section can be treated as a large window, the mullions placed and the mirror sections fitted between them. Another alternative is to use narrow aluminum strips that can be placed over the window expanse. These have been developed to convert sliding glass doors from a contemporary look to that of traditional.

A mirror not only makes a room look larger because it reflects the room and visually eliminates the wall on which it is installed, but it also reflects window areas and brings in light to brighten room interiors.



SOUTH OAK BAY

John West and Barry Bowes are delighted to offer one of the most exciting contemporary homes in South Oak Bay. Situated in the midst of an established garden of mature rhododendrons and Garry oaks, the large lot offers total seclusion. Minutes from the marina and golf course, the home, designed by James Grive and custom built 3 years ago, offers a unique plan ideally suited for intimate or large scale entertaining and takes full advantage of lovely gardens. If your environment is of paramount importance to you and you demand the best in design, you should view this adult oriented home soon. Well priced at $210,000.

George tells how to get moss off roof, moisture out of windows

NOW YOU KNOW

By
GEORGE DALGLEISH

Q. We have moss growing on the roof of our house. We've tried a number of different things such as herbicide, but it doesn't seem to work too well. Our house is in an area where there are a lot of trees and is well shaded. Is there any way we can keep the moss from growing on the roof?

A. If your roof is not too steep you can sprinkle crystal copper sulphate along the peak of the roof so that when it rains the water will dissolve the copper sulphate and will wash down the roof and kill the spores. Although you will kill the spores in this manner you will still have to scrape the moss off the roof. I don't think the moss will really harm the roof but of course the real reason for getting rid of it is to improve the looks of the roof. If you do use copper sulphate you have to give it a new application after every rain as it will have washed off. In areas where this is a major problem, building supply stores carry 5-lb. bags of copper sulphate. When scraping moss off the roof, use a hoe or spade and be careful not to damage your shingles. After you have removed as much of the moss as possible then the roof can be hosed down before you sprinkle the copper sulphate crystals along the top edge of the roof.

George Dalgleish

Q. We have moisture getting in between two panes of glass in our living room window. It happens whenever it gets cold outside and when the weather turns really cold we notice some frost build up between the panes of glass. How can we prevent this?

A. It all depends on how the two pieces of glass are installed in your window. If it is a sealed unit and moisture is getting in between the pieces of glass there's not much you can do about it. Most of the sealed units are now guaranteed for fifteen to twenty years and some place on the inside of the window you usually find a date stamped that would indicate when it was manufactured. So it still may be under guarantee. If of course the two pieces of glass that you mention are two separate windows, for example a prime inside window and an exterior storm, then the problem is caused by warm moist air from the house escaping in between the two windows. The inside prime window should be well sealed where it meets the jamb and the outside storm window should be loose-fitting and you could even drill in a few vent holes on the top and bottom of the window to allow air to circulate. If the exterior window is well sealed and the interior window is loose than there will be a considerable amount of frost build up. Don't try to seal both windows as you can never seal them 100 per cent and it will cause problems.

Q. Last winter we had problems with our windows sweating a lot and we were told by our furnace repairman that our humidity was too high in the house. We bought ourselves a hydrometer so now we know what the humidity levels are but what we would like to know is what should they be for our area.

A. Humidity levels have to vary depending on the temperature outside. As the temperature outside goes down the humidity level in the house has to be reduced otherwise windows will sweat. However doctors who are ear, nose and throat specialists say that we should have a humidity level of 50 per cent for healthful living. Building experts say that if you want to have problem-free windows you have to lower it well below 50 per cent when it gets cold outside. Listed below are practical humidity levels for outside temperatures. If you live in a newer home that is well sealed with good insulating windows then your percentage of humidity can be the higher of the two. However if your house is quite old with loose-fitting windows then the percentage should be the lower of the two figures.

—34°C	15%-25%
—29°C	20%-30%
—23°C	25%-35%
—18°C	30%-40%
—12°C	35%-45%
—7°C	40%-45%
—1°C	45%-55%

More humidity will condense on windows where there are heavy drapes and the drapes are closed.

Q. I built a walnut coffee table and I want to preserve it and yet retain the natural beauty of the wood. What kind of finish should I use?

A. I prefer an oil finish on walnut. A clear oil will darken the wood slightly but allow the graining and texture to show through. Oil such as Watco's Danish Oil is good. You simply brush the oil on to the surface of the walnut either with a brush or a cloth and keep it wet for about a half an hour. Then after it has soaked in use a wet and dry sandpaper with more oil to sand the surface smooth. This will tend to fill the pores in the walnut as you are sanding off any part of the grain that has bubbled up. This then is worked into the surface of the wood. Let the table sit over night and then give it another oil treatment keeping it wet for half an hour. Again sand it and leave it. The next day if there are any raised parts of the grain, sand them down again and then wipe the whole table with oil.

Tender drama about a writer

Internationally renowned Canadian actor Saul Rubinek stars in Mordecai Richler's touching drama The Wordsmith, a CBC-TV special on Channel 2, Saturday, at 8 p.m.

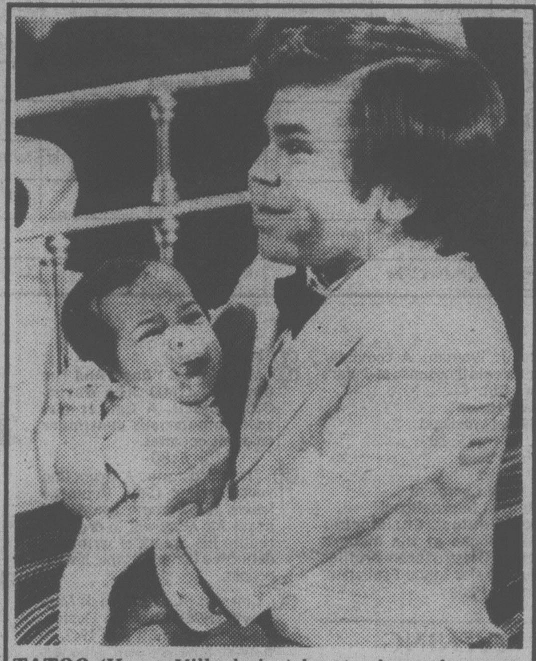
The 90-minute film is the bittersweet story of Mervyn Kaplansky (Rubinek) an idealistic, struggling young Jewish writer who boards with the Hersh family in Montreal's St. Urbain district to write "the definitive novel of his people."

Mrs. Hersh (Janet Ward) takes a deep interest in his work and his life, going so far as to arrange his first love affair with Molly (Sherry Lewis), the local beauty who lives upstairs. Her recalcitrant husband, played by Peter Boretski, is finally won over when Mervyn apparently has a short story printed in a magazine. Their young son Jake (Jeremy Zeitlin) idolizes him.

For a time, Mervyn rides high on the tide of popularity that flows his way as a local celebrity. But as publisher after publisher rejects his novel, and his rent grows long overdue, pressures force the disheartened and embarrassed young author to take drastic action.

This tender film, a compassionate glimpse of a young man forced to come to grips with life and love is directed by Claude Jutra, one of Canada's leading directors. Produced by Robert Sherrin, Robert Allen is executive producer.

At the age of 30, Saul Rubinek has managed to assemble a formidable list of acting credits. He is a well-known face in Toronto theatre, having worked on several occasions at Factory Theatre Lab, Theatre Passe Muraille (starring in Me?) and Toronto Free Theatre, as well as the St. lawrence Centre.



TATOO (Herve Villechaize) has to choose between his own fantasy and the well-being of the baby he wants to keep in Fantasy Island, Thursday at 8:30 on Channel 13 and Friday at 8 on Channel 4.
